"Think not tomorrow can repay
The debt of pleasure lost today:
Alas! tomorrow's richest store
Can but pay its proper score."

Mr. Hoover is promoted from slap to slapjacks.

It's getting so nowadays that unless a bandit murders somebody in China he can't get on the first page.

* * * *

Man's history moves in cycles, and thus the news of today is much what it was thirty, forty, fifty, five hundred, five thousand years ago, and there is nothing really novel. In 1888 the Chinese were rioting against us because we had just passed an exclusion law, and now they're rioting to exclude us, and so The Post this morning has a front page much like that of 39 years ago, with the Yellow Peril in one column and the President carrying a crowd to church with him in another.

"Shall I ask the brave soldier, who fights by my side,
In the cause of mankind, if our creeds agree?
Shall I give up the friend I have valued and tried,
If he kneel not before the same altar with me?"

One who was born a Baptist and "raised" in a Methodist Sunday school can not be accused of religious bias when he expresses the opinion that Al Smith challenges the spirit of intolerance in as lofty a note of patriotism as this continent has heard since Charles Carroll added "of Carrollton" to the Declaration of Independence, that King George might make no mistake in identifying him.

* * * *

President Machado, who had prided himself on finesse will be chagrined to learn with what ease Senator Fess single-handed extends the presidential term indefinitely.

* * * *

The ladies of China some day are going to have a mighty hard time organizing a D. A. R., as what revolution will they decide on?

* * * *

Senator Fess having written the next Democratic platform all the party has to do now is to postpone their convention until after the Republicans have held theirs—if any.

* * * *

Where Bucky Harris made his mistake was in not organizing a sanitarium this year instead of a ball team.

* * * *

What's delaying the New York World in reviving its celebrated boom for Herbert Hoover as the Democratic nominee?

* * * *

The new army cook book will contain a wide variety of menus, but we didn't know there were that many ways of cooking pork and beans.

* * * *

South Carolina is defying the blue laws so flagrantly that in some parts of the State soda water is sold on Sunday almost as openly as cawn.

* * * *

There's a good deal of dissatisfaction in Poland over the proposed loan from America, but we judge that in the end Grabski will get it.

* * * *

After he gets this question settled all Al Smith will have to worry about is being a wet member of Tammany Hall.

* * * *

If the politicians aren't discouraged after endeavoring to "smoke out" William M. Butler they might try their hands smoking out Frank Stearns.

* * * *

In this emergency can't Bucky Harris bring Walter Johnson in on a stretcher and let him pitch from a reclining chair?

* * * *

Judging from reports from pneumonia germ circles the Easter parade yesterday was one of the least satisfactory in years.

* * * *

Representative Begg is going to talk about the future Washington, but we have generally noticed that even in Congress actions speak louder than words.

* * * *

The President is understood to have said not a word that might erase the apprehensions of Mr. Hoover's friends. Breakfast is the most unsatisfactory meal of the day.

* * * *

With 21 girl gangs in Chicago it would seem that when woman started out after her rights she never dreamed how far she'd get.

* * * *

What this country needs is the separation of the State and buncombe.

* * * *

The complete separation of the railroad crossing and the joy-riding flivver is also a reform awaiting attention.

* * * *

And when we shall have separated the pork-barrel Congressman from the public crib the task of perfecting democratic government may be said to have been ended.

DELEGATES OF D.A.R. BOW AT MEMORIAL FOR SOCIETY'S DEAD

Eulogies, Music, Prayers and Executives' Talks Mark Service.

MRS. BROSSEAU GIVEN DINNER BY OFFICERS

3,000 Representatives to Be Present When Congress Opens Today.

Easter was celebrated by thousands of delegates in Washington to attend the sessions of the thirty-sixth continental congress of the D. A. R. which will open this morning in the new auditorium by a special memorial service held in Memorial Continental hall yesterday afternoon as a tribute to the leaders of the society and 2,067 members of the D. A. R. who have died since the thirty-fifth congress, last April.

The tribute to the departed daughters as a group was given by Mrs. Alfred J. Brosseau, president general of the D. A. R., who presided over the memorial session. The national officers and other notables who were individually eulogized by associates in the work or representatives of their State delegations were the late Mrs. A. Howard Clark, honorary vice president general, Washington, D. C.; Mrs. Charles S. Whitman, curator general, New York; Mrs. Henry M. Thompson, assistant historian general, Massachusetts; Mrs. Thomas Day, vice president general, Tennessee; Mrs. John Lee Dinwiddie, vice president general, Indiana; Mrs. William A. Guthrie, vice president general, Indiana; Mrs. Arthur E. Clarke, State regent, New Hampshire; Mrs. John McLane, State regent, New Hampshire; Mrs. Lucy Woodhull Hazlett, State regent, Maine; Mrs. Charles Eugene Riggs, charter member, No. 793, Minnesota, and Mrs. Sarah F. Tracy, charter member, No. 299, New Jersey.

The memorial service was attended not only by delegates to the congress but by friends and relatives of those eulogized. A quartet, Mary Sherier Bowie, soprano; William F. Raymond, tenor; Richie McLean, contralto; Fred East, basso, and George Wilson, accompanist, opened the service by singing "Only Remembered by What We Have Done."

Offers Prayer for Dead.

Mrs. Matthew Brewster, New Orleans, chaplain general, then gave a Scripture reading and offered a prayer for the dead membership of 2,067, as follows:

"At this solemn service it is our sorrowful duty to express our deep grief

Drop in Temperature Forecast for Today

A slight decline in the temperature is forecast for today by the weather bureau. Forecaster R. Hansen Weightman predicted last night that thermometer will drop to below 50 degrees this morning and that, though the sun will cause a slight upward trend, the day will not approach the balminess of yesterday's weather.

He declared that the entire eastern seaboard had an ideal day for Easter parades yesterday with the exception of a few isolated spots where slight showers fell.

Dodge and His Wife Sail Home Together

Honolulu, April 17 (By A. P.).—When the liner President Madison cast off for San Francisco last night it carried Mr. and Mrs. Horace Dodge, jr., aboard and the story of the reconciliation of the estranged couple.

Dodge refused to admit his identity since he came to Honolulu incognito several days ago to patch up his differences with Mrs. Dodge.

The good humor of Mr. and Mrs. Dodge as the boat pulled out led Honolulu friends to believe that a complete reconciliation had been effected.

CROWD OF 20,000 AT THE AUDITORIUM TO SEE COOLIDGES

Only 6,600 Are Able to Get In to Worship With President.

CAPITAL THRONGED BY 150,000 VISITORS

Streets Gay With Display of Fashion, Especially Called Out by Balmy Weather.

Aided by perhaps 150,000 visitors from all over the nation, Washington yesterday took advantage of the brightest day of the year to celebrate Easter with a fashion pageant in the out-of-doors.

The greatest throng that has yet crowded the doors of the Washington auditorium turned out for the Easter services of the First Congregational church, the President's church, attended by President and Mrs. Coolidge, at the auditorium yesterday morning.

It was estimated that the President and first lady attracted to the services a crowd of 20,000 persons, most of them out-of-town visitors who were taking advantage of their first opportunity to see a President of the United States.

Besides this great throng, who were there to satisfy a desire which all people living at a distance from Washington cherish, a great many delegates to the convention of the Daughters of the American Revolution, held here annually, and just now assembling, were present.

Crowd Surrounds Auditorium.

There have been few scenes in the recent history of Washington like it. The auditorium, which accomodates at capacity 6,600 persons, was crowded to its entrance doors, while on the outside the crowd lined the sidewalk to the curb, and those not able to find a place on the auditorium side of the street lined the opposite side of the street, several persons deep. This condition maintained nearly the distance around the auditorium.

The small squad of policemen at the auditorium strove heroically to keep the crowd in order, but their commands were frequently disobeyed.

Admittance to the services was by ticket. However, there were dozens of holders of tickets who were unable to gain admittance, so completely did the crowd dominate the situation. Three elderly women, holding tickets above their heads, pushed their way about among the seething mass of humanity, crying hysterically. One man fainted.

Hesse Unable to Get In.

Maj. Edwin B. Hesse, chief of police, received a taste of the crowd's impetuousity. Attired in civilian clothes, he appeared on the scene shortly after the presidential party arrived. He tried to gain entrance. It was in vain. He

MAN DIES AT WHEEL OF MOVING MOTOR CAR

Heart Attack Kills Abraham Van Horn as He Starts on Drive.

Immediately after he released the emergency brakes and before he could start his automobile, which was parked near his home, Abraham Van Horn, 65 years old, a retired contractor, of 3331 Tennyson street northwest, yesterday, was seized with a heart attack and died.

The vehicle ran by gravity a short distance down the block and crashed into a parked automobile of C. C. Herst, of 3364 Tennyson street. Herst, who witnessed the collision, telephoned Dr. Thomas K. Conrad, 5904 Connecticut avenue northwest, who responded and pronounced the man dead.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 2 o'clock at the residence. Burial will be in Fort Lincoln cemetery, and the Rev. H. T. Cocke will officiate. Mr. Van Horn is survived by his wife, four daughters, Mrs. James Menamin, of Virginia; Mrs. S. W. Crist, Mrs. L. H. Riggles and Margaret Van Horn, all of Washington, and a son, James A. Van Horn.

PASTOR AND DAUGHTER MURDERED BY CHINESE

COMMUNISTS ARE RAIDED

Shanghai, April 17 (By the Associated Press).—The Rev. Morris Slichter, of Toronto, Canada, and his 8-year-old daughter have been murdered by Chinese bandits near Yunnanfu, in one of the wildest parts of China. The tragedy occurred while a party of missionaries was trying to make its way to a railroad and safety on the coast.

Mrs. Slichter, wife of the missionary, her five-year-old son, John, and Miss Mary I. Craig, an American nurse whose home is in Philadelphia, were taken captives by the bandits, and extreme fears are held for their safety.

The murdered missionary, his family and the others in the party were attached to the China inland mission at Anshunfu. A report that there were others in the party has not been confirmed, but is likely to prove true since the seven adults composing the mission staff probably would travel together. Dr. D. V. Rees, is a member of the mission reported to have been with Mr. Slichter's party.

The date of the outrage has not been determined definitely, but it is believed to have occurred about a week ago.

The China inland mission here learns that the party had left their post for Shanghai on the advice of the British consul and because of the disturbed conditions they were unable to come by way of Szechwan province, the shortest route. Hence they were making their way southward in an endeavor to reach the railway leading to Hongkong.

Gen. Tang Chi Yao, the civil and military governor of Yunnan province, where the missionary and his daughter were killed, has been asked to ap-

Carroll's Condition Improving Steadily

Greenville, S. C., April 17 (By A. P.). Continued improvement in the conditionof Earl Carroll was reported today by physicians attending the theatrical producer who has been in a local hospital since he collapsed several days ago on a train bearing him to Atlanta, where he was to enter the Federal penitentiary.

Carroll had a "good night" last night and took more nourishment today they said, than he had taken since he lapsed into a coma early last Wednesday. His wife, Mrs. Marcelle Carroll, the actress, who has been a plent in the same hospital recovering from an attack of bronchitis, left the hospital tonight.

Severe Earthquake At Kodiak, Alaska

Cordova, Alaska, April 17 (By A. P.).—The United States Naval Radio station at Kodiak reported a severe earthquake of 30 seconds' duration at 8:50 this morning, Pacific coast time.

The report, which was received by naval headquarters here, made no mention of possible damage. It was considered unlikely that any considerable damage had been done as most of the buildings in Kodiak are of solid construction and have withstood many heavy temblors.

BREAKFAST TO HOOVER FAILS TO QUIET RUMORS

Guests of President Say That Friday's Incident Was Not Mentioned.

MAY EXPLAIN TOMORROW

By NORMAN W. BAXTER.

The awkward situation created by the White House bald announcement on Friday that in the event Frank B. Kellogg, Secretary of State, should resign Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce, would not get the place was not eradicated by yesterday's White House breakfast to which Mr. Hoover was summoned hurriedly and unexpectedly from New York on Saturday afternoon.

One of a dozen guests at the table, Mr. Hoover refused, following the gathering, to make any statement, but others present at the affair said that there had been no discussion of the incident which was interpreted by the majority of those friendly to the Secretary of Commerce as a direct attack upon him by the head of the administration.

One fact which served yesterday to

JAPAN'S CABINET OUT; MONEY CRISIS FEARED

Resignation Due to the Privy Council's Rejection of Formosa Bank Aid.

Tokyo, April 17 (By A. P.).—The cabinet, headed by Heijiro Wakatsuki as premier, resigned today.

This action was taken as a result of the privy council's rejection of the government's decision to give substantial aid to the Bank of Formosa.

The resignation of the cabinet is expected to precipitate a financial crisis, although the directors of the Bank of Japan have decided, on their own responsibility, to offer some emergency aid in an effort to prevent the Bank of Formosa from closing tomorrow. The privy council disapproved the government's proposed imperial ordinance to aid the Bank of Formosa because the councillors believed the measure unconstitutional.

The emperor has ordered Premier Wakatsuki to continue in office until his successor is appointed.

After long conferences representatives of the leading banks agreed to provide temporary assistance to the embarrassed banks. Concrete proposals, however, have not been formulated.

THREE KILLED, SIX HURT AS AUTOMOBILES CRASH

GIRL DIES AT CROSSING

Three were killed and six were injured in automobile accidents in neighboring States yesterday. A young engaged couple drowned when their coupe skidded from the road near Easton, Md., and plunged into 6 feet of water. A 14-year-old girl was killed and her father and 4-year-old brother injured when the automobile in which they were riding was demolished by a Southern railway train near Delafield, Va., their home.

The young couple, Miss Nanilla Warner, 28 years old, of Windy Hill, Md., and her fiance, Carlton Matthews, a farmer of Trappe, Md., died before nearby farmers could pull their car from Meyers creek, about 12 miles from Easton. It is believed Matthews did not see a sharp turn which hides the bridge over the creek in time and lost control of the car, which skidded from the road and crashed through a guard rail.

The wrecked auto was discovered by James Andrews, of Windy City, who called Melvin Ozman, a farmer. The two tied ropes around the car and pulled it from the water with the aid of mules. The couple had been doing their Easter shopping at Easton and were returning home early yesterday.

Gertrude Pierson, 14 years old, is

GOV. SMITH SEES NO CHURCH RIGHT TO IMPEDE LAWS

Open Letter to Governor Says Constitution and Faith Clash.

PRELATES ARE CITED TO SUPPORT VIEWS

Question of Tolerance of the Various Religions Is One Point Raised.

Replying to C.C.Marshall, New York Executive Is Explicit.

DENIES THAT CHARGES OF LAWYER ARE TRUE

Can Not Imagine, He Writes, Any Possibility Where Loyalties Conflict.

The complete text of Gov. Smith's reply to Charles C. Marshall's questions on religion, together with the text of Mr. Marshall's letter, will be found on Pages 4 and 5.

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, N. Y., April 17.—The letter of Charles C. Marshall, New York lawyer and member of the Anglican church, to which Gov. Smith now makes answer, appeared in the April issue of the Atlantic Monthly, under the title: "An Open Letter to the Hon. Alfred E. Smith." After setting forth the pride the American people take in the progress of Gov. Smith from humble origin to the highest office of his State and in the record of his public trusts successfully and honestly discharged, Mr. Marshall's letter said:

"Through all this tribute there is a note of doubt, a sinister accent of interrogation, not as to intentional rectitude and moral purpose, but as to certain conceptions which your fellow citizens attribute to you as a loyal and conscientious Roman Catholic, which in their minds are irreconcilable with that Constitution which as President you must support and defend, and with the principles of civil and religious liberty on which American institutions are based!"

Alleges Open Conflict.

Mr. Marshall then pointed out that the Catholic Church recently at Chicago, in the greatest religious demonstration the world has ever seen, declared her presence and power in American life. Returning to the "conceptions," which, in the opinion of Mr. Marshall, Gov. Smith's fellow citizens regard as "irreconcilable with the Constitution," he continued:

"These conceptions have been recognized before by Roman Catholics as a potential obstacle to their participation in public office, Pope Leo XIII himself declaring, in one of his encyclical letters, that 'it may in some places be true that for most urgent and just reasons, it is by no means expedient for (Roman) Catholics to engage in public affairs or to take an active part in politics.'

"It is indeed true that a loyal and conscientious Roman Catholic could and would discharge his oath of office with absolute fidelity to his moral standards. As to that in general, and as to you in particular, your fellow citizens entertain no doubt. But those moral standards differ essentially from the moral standards of all men not Roman Catholics. They are derived from the basic political doctrine of the Roman Catholic Church, asserted against repeated challenges for 1,500 years, that God has divided all power over men between the secular state and that church.

"Thus Pope Leo XIII, in 1885, in his encyclical letter on 'the Christian constitution of states,' says: 'the Almighty

Mother Surrenders Fugitive Son, 26

Milwaukee, Wis., April 17 (By A. P.). Acting on a tip received from the mother of a man long sought by police of several cities, detectives left here tonight for Eau Clare, Wis., to arrest Vernon Newcomb, 26, who managed Milwaukee's pageant of progress last summer. Wanted by the police of Milwaukee, Chicago, Louisville and St. Louis for fraudulent issue of checks and working a confidence game, Newcomb was a fugitive and last night telephoned his mother for advice.

She communicated with the detective bureau and announced she would see that all his shortages were made good.

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, April 17.—Gov. Alfred E. Smith's reply to the open letter of Charles C. Marshall, demanding whether in an issue the governor would stand by the Catholic Church or the Constitution of the United States, was made public today by the Atlantic Monthly. In it Gov. Smith says:

"I recognize no power in the institution of my church to interfere with the operations of the Constitution of the United States or the enforcement of law of the land." Mr. Marshall's letter, which appeared in the April issue of the Atlantic Monthly, charged that the Catholic Church claims the deciding power in any conflict between the jurisdictions of the church and the state and that a fundamental of the Catholic Church is that no other religion shall be permitted to exist as a matter of right but only as a matter of favor. He quoted numerous prelates to prove his assertions and asked Gov. Smith whether, in view of his potential candidacy for the Presidency, he would not make his position upon these questions clear.

Denies Charges are True.

Gov. Smith replies that neither of these main charges made by Mr. Marshall concerning the Catholic church is true; accuses Mr. Marshall of conveying a false impression of the facts by isolating the quotations he uses from their context, and, in turn, quotes other high officers of the Catholic church to prove that what Mr. Marshall charges are not true.

"But," Gov. Smith says, "you have no more right to ask me to defend as part of my faith every statement coming from a prelate than I should have to ask you to accept as an article of your religious faith every statement of an Episcopal bishop or, of your political faith, every statement of a President of the United States."

Gov. Smith continued that neither his Catholic education nor his entire political experience suggested any foundation for Mr. Marshall's views nor the possibility of any contingency ever arising where the Constitution of the United States and the Catholic Church might come into conflict, but in any event he would follow the "dictates of conscience," which is the "solemn duty" entrusted by the electorate to officers of every faith.

Father Duffy Aids.

The governor, pleading himself a layman, acknowledged the help of Father Francis P. Duffy, wartime chaplain of the 165th regiment, in discussing the theological questions raised by Mr. Marshall.

Mr. Marshall declined today to comment upon the governor's reply, but said he would do so tomorrow. Mr. Marshall, an Episcopalian and retired lawyer, is an independent in politics. He has voted against Gov. Smith the five times he has run for governor, though, he explains, not on religious grounds. The purpose of his letter, he said was merely to elicit information.

Gov. Smith's answer was to have been made public next Monday, on which date it will appear in the Atlantic Monthly. Immediate publication was precipitated when the Boston Post published the gist of the reply last Saturday.

Mother Colors Eggs, Then Ends Her Life

Special to The Washington Post.

Chicago, April 17.—Eleanor Williams, aged 7, slept fitfully last night. She wanted to be awakened early to hunt for Easter eggs. Her mother, Mrs. Sadie Seddema Williams, wife of Dr. W. Robert Williams, health commissioner of Riverside, had told the child of the Easter rabbit. At 6 o'clock the child leaped from her bed and slipped down the stairs. She laughed and clapped her hands, for there was a basket of gayly colored eggs.

The little girl entered the kitchen and then ran screaming to her sleeping father, who accompanied her back to the kitchen. There was the wife and mother, dead upon the floor, a tube in her mouth leading to an open gas jet. Her last act before committing suicide had been to color the eggs. Despondency, due to ill health, is blamed.

Raging Rivers Over Farms; Many Lives Are in Peril

Memphis, Tenn., April 17 (By A. P.). The mighty flood sweeping down the Mississippi valley today took toll along two streams tributary to the Mississippi, marooned and endangered hundreds, and spread itself over additional thousands of acres of fertile farm lands.

Along the parent waterway—the Mississippi river—a raging torrent for hundreds of miles, dykes tonight were resisting the crush of the elements, but with the mightiest swell of the record-breaking flood yet to be reckoned with.

Levees along the Arkansas and White rivers in Arkansas broke in four places today under the pressure of the waters. The Arkansas embankment near Frenchtown, Robroy and the levee protecting the towns of English, Reidel and thousands of acres between Pine Bluff and Farrelly gave way before the flood; the White river dyke before McClelland county collapsed, and the Plum bayou levee, protecting the towns of Altheimer, Sherill and Humphreys, went out.

Approximately 250 residents of the town of McClelland, forced to flee for of tlAheimer, Sherill and Humphreys, rooned without food or water on a ridge 2 miles from help, and a raging current making their rescue before tomorrow problematical. Loss of life was feared as a result of breaks in the Plum bayou embankment.

The Cascading tide which carried away the levee section at Robroy, took with it 200 feet of the tracks of the St. Louis & Southwestern Railroad. High-

D. A. R. Congress Notes

Like the late President Wilson, Mrs. Alfred J. Brosseau, president general of the D. A. R., writes her speeches on her own typewriter. She has real speed as a typist, acquired in her young womanhood when she was society editor of an Illinois newspaper. Her literary style is of a very good quality and she writes with clarity and brevity, few of her speeches taking more than 10 minutes to deliver. She composes rapidly and it is noticeable that she does not repeat her phrases from one speech to another but manages to get a new angle and new treatment for each one.

No business head of a great corporation pays more attention to practical details than does Mrs. Brosseau in running this society of 160,000 members. She appears in her office at national headquarters here by 8 o'clock every morning when she is in town and often works at her desk until late at night and has made a practice of cleaning up all business from day to day, leaving no business "held over." Often the staff of the D. A. R. arrive at their work to find that Mrs. Brosseau has already put in a good morning's work with her mail and other details before the offices were officially open for the day.

Four women who formerly held the office of president general are present at the thirty-sixth continental congress in their capacities of honorary presidents general. These women are Mrs. William Cumming Story, of New York; Mrs. George Thatcher Guernsey, of Independence, Kans.; Mrs. George Maynard Minor, of New London, Conn., and Mrs. Anthony Wayne Cook, of Cooksburg, Pa. They will bring brief greetings to the congress at its opening session this morning and will also be in line at the reception to be given at the new National Museum on Tuesday.

Among the other interesting figures at the congress are the honorary vice presidents general who have been given that title for distinguished service to the society. Those include this year Mrs. Julius J. Estey, of Vermont, who is giving loyal service to the credentials committee; Mrs. William Butterworth, of Illinois, and Mrs. John Newman Carey, of Indiana.

One of the most interesting of the candidates this year is Mrs. Eleanor Washington Howard, who has the distinction of being the last girl child of the Washington family born at Mount Vernon. Mrs. Howard is a candidate for honorary vice president general. She is a charter member of the Mount Vernon chapter and has served the society as chapter regent, recording secretary general, State regent and vice president general. She is specially indorsed by the State regent of Virginia, Mrs. James Reese Schick; State vice regent, Mrs. Edward Willis Finch; State recording secretary, Miss Dora C. Jett, and her chapter regent, Mrs. D. Mauchlin Nevin.

Mrs. Russell William Magna, of Massachusetts, chairman of the Constitution hall finance committee, is one of the busiest women at the congress and in the society between the congresses. Mrs. Magna has visited many State conferences to tell of the Constitution hall plan during the past year. The regional vice chairmen are Mrs. William S. Buchanan, Mrs. William J. Becker, Mrs. Charles E. Herrick and Mrs. Francis E. Wilson.

Mrs. E. H. Darrach is chairman of arrangements for the Indiana State dinner, which will be held at the Willard hotel tomorrow evening at 7 o'clock. The State regent, Mrs. Charles William Ross, will preside. Yesterday afternoon a reception was held in the Indiana room in Memorial Continental Hall in honor of Mrs. Ross. The Indiana State meeting will be held in the Indiana room Wednesday morning.

Mrs. Bertha Lincoln Huestis, of Dubuque, Iowa, who is a member of the delegation, is well-known in civic and patriotic circles in Washington, as she lived here many years. Mrs. Huestis has been a song leader at many congresses also. She has served in many national and State offices of the society and is a former vice president general.

Mrs. William Howard Taft, wife of the Chief Justice of the United States, was the guest of honor at a tea given by the Iowa delegation at the New Willard yesterday afternoon. Mrs. E. G. Bowman, of Washington, was in charge of arrangements. The State regent, Mrs. Charles George Saunders, was assisted in receiving the guests by the State officers and committee. Iowa pages at the congress are Miss Nelly Anderson, of the James Harlan chapter; Miss Alice Brown Custer, of Old Thirteen chapter, and Miss Helen Maynard, of the Melrose chapter.

Another important committee in making the congress function smoothly is the credential committee which began its work three days ago. Miss Margaret Barnett is chairman; Mrs. Lisle S. Lipscomb and Mrs. Harvey Tyson White vice chairmen. The members are: Mrs. Joseph Acklen, Mrs. Clyde B. Aitchison, Mrs. Walter H. Allen, Mrs. Frank Bahnsen, Mrs. Frank D. Callan, Mrs. William E. Crow, Mrs. George L. Darte, Mrs. Joseph H. Dearborn, Mrs. Harold S. Dickerson, Mrs. Samuel L. Earle, Mrs. Julius J. Estey, Miss Lucy D. Evans, Mrs. Frank Felter, Mrs. Harry B. Gauss, Mrs. Frederick B. Gerber, Miss Isabel W. Gordon, Mrs. S. Ernest Griffin, Mrs. William B. Hardy, Mrs. Rufus N. Hemenway, Mrs. F. A. Kinch, Mrs. Eliza F. Leary, Mrs. W. S. Lindsley, Mrs. Joseph W. Marsh, Mrs. Oliver H. Meyers, Mrs. Towson Price, Mrs. Alexander H. Ruhl, Mrs. Albert J. Sandles, Mrs. Martin L. Sigmon, Mrs. G. Howard Shriver, Mrs. Edwin Earle Sparks, Mrs. A. L. Stillwell, Mrs. Bert Van Wie, Mrs. Benjamin F. Wade, Mrs. Vernon West, Mrs. C. R. Whitaker, Mrs. Adele C. Wright and Mrs. George M. Young.

The program committee is being congratulated on its work by the delegates, for it arranged the program so that they will have time for their State meetings, the annual pilgrimage to Mount Vernon, plenty of time to dress for the reception to be given by the President and Mrs. Coolidge and time to hold State teas and luncheons. The chairman is Mrs. Rhett Goode, former chaplain general and former State regent and vice president general from Alabama. She is assisted by Mrs. Delos A. Blodgett, Mrs. Frank H. Briggs, Mrs. John A. Lequene, Mrs. Frank W. Mondell, Mrs. Charles W. Richardson and Mrs. Lawrence Townsend.

Mrs. Amos Edwin Ayres, candidate for vice president general, is a graduate of Oberlin college, Ohio. Mrs. Ayres has nine revolutionary ancestors on her father's side. The D. A. R. chapter at Pierre, S. Dak., is named in honor of Anna Wainwright Cushing, ancestress of Mrs. Ayres. It was formed during her term as State regent. During the world war Mrs. Ayres was State chairman of the French orphan fund and raised $15,000 for the fund. Another patriotic achievement was the raising of an endowment fund for the children of soldiers, sailors and marines of the world war living in South Dakota. Mrs. Ayres is State registrar of the United States Daughters of 1812 and a member of the Society of Founders and Patriots of America and the Society of Mayflower Descendants. Mrs. Ayres is second vice president of the American Association of University women; the chaplain of Chapter No. 1, P. E. O., of Sioux Falls; a member of the D. A. R. National Officers' club, and has served on several national D. A. R. committees. At present she is vice chairman of the patriotic lectures and lantern slides committee.

Mrs. Ayres is a leader of the Children of the American Revolution and is president of the Caleb Cushing society, named for her revolutionary ancestor.

The arrangements for the routine workings of the congress have been made by the house committee under the chairmanship of Mrs. Alfred Ball Carges, chairman, assisted by Mrs. William D. West, vice chairman, and the following special vice chairmen:

Mrs. Alfred Ball Garges, chairman; Mrs. William D. West, vice chairman; Mrs. Archibald Campbell Jordan, vice chairman; Mrs. Joseph M. Caley, in charge of badges; Mrs. Sarah L. Saffold, assistant in charge of badges; Mrs. Frank S. Hight, in charge of banquet; Miss Margaret Withers, assistant in charge of banquet; Mrs. J. WASHINGTON JEWS OBSERVE PASSOVER AT MANY MEETINGS

Throngs Crowd Community Center to Celebrate Feast of Seder.

EIGHT-DAY HOLIDAY WILL CLOSE SUNDAY

Occasion Commemorates the Deliverance of Children of Israel From Egypt.

Jewish people throughout Washington held services yesterday, observing the Passover commemorating their deliverance from Egypt.

Thousands crowded the synagogues to attend the celebrations conducted by Rabbi Louis J. Schwefel, Rabbi Julius T. Loeb, Rabbi Moses A. Horwitz and Rabbi Abraham Simon.

The feast of Seder of the Passover was held in the Jewish Community center and in the homes of the Jewish people last night. Service men from Quantico, St. Elizabeths hospital and Walter Reed hospital attended the feast held in the center, the Jewish welfare board arranging for their attendance. Rabbi Loeb officiated at the service at the center.

In speaking upon "Escaping the Plague of Today" at the Sixth Street temple, Rabbi Schwefel declared that there is need of a more intensive Jewish life and a closer association with the youth of the day. The plagues of today, he pointed out, are indifference to religion, a low standard of morality and hatred.

The Passover is an eight-day holiday and will close next Sunday. It began at sundown Saturday, at which time the feast of Seder was celebrated in the homes.

Church Uses Lamp Given as Memorial

A sanctuary lamp, given to St Teresa's Catholic church by Mrs. Lucy Peacock as a memorial to her husband, the late Joseph Peacock, was used for the first time yesterday at Easter services conducted at the church.

Mozart's "Twelfth Mass," by the church choir, and instrumental solos by Taylor Branson, director of the United States Marine band, featured a special program of Easter music. Soloists were Miss Addie Wathen, Miss Myrtle Peacock, John Arendes and Louis Knight. The Rev. Cleophus Ivis, of Sioux City, Iowa, delivered the sermon.

Tractor Braves Snow, Ends Food Shortage

Lance Creek, Wyo., April 17 (By A. P.).—The food shortage which had existed here since Wednesday night, when Lance Creek's one general store was destroyed by fire, was relieved today, when a State highway department tractor, pulling a trailer with food, broke through snow drifts from Lusk, 30 miles distant.

The fire came when all roads out of Lance Creek were blocked by a 4-foot snow, piled 10 to 15 feet deep in drifts. The tractor left Lusk yesterday afternoon and reached here nineteen hours later.

DELEGATES OF D. A. R. BOW AT MEMORIAL

in the passing of several distinguished national officers and State regents; but it is also our great joy to feel assured that these brave and noble spirits have only been transferred from the battlefields of life to 'that glorious country, where their eyes shall behold the King in His beauty.'

"Steadfast amid 'the changes of this mortal life,' they unflinchingly held aloft the standard of ideal Americanism. Firmly rooted in the altruistic principles of loyal citizenship, their lives contributed to the nation's glory, and, because of their patriotic deeds the stars of our flag shine brighter in their azure field, while their inspiring example heightens the stainless purity of its white bars and deepens its crimson stripes with the warm blood of their hearts' true devotion."

Eulogies were given of the national officers and State officials who had died, by the following: Miss Ella Lorraine Dorsey, District of Columbia; Mrs. Rhett Goode, Alabama; Mrs. Edwin C. Gregory, North Carolina; Mrs. Arthur S. Buchanan, California; Mrs. Charles W. Ross, Indiana; Mrs. George H. Warren, New Hampshire; Mrs. Helen Frye White, Maine; Mrs. Blaine S. Viles, Massachusetts; Mrs. Brooke G. White, Florida, and Mrs. Clarence J. Hand, New Jersey.

Shrum Gives Address.

The principal address of the memorial service was given by the chaplain of the President's yacht, Mayflower. Commander Reuben W. Shrum, whose words were filled with Easter hope and sheer, and who pointed out the lessons contained in the lives of these D. A. R. members for the nation and for their communities. The Rev. Joseph R. Sizoo, pastor of the New York Avenue Presbyterian church, who was scheduled to give the address was unable to do so due to unexpected illness.

The chaplain of the Mayflower stressed the beauty of the heritage of women, and especially commented on the mention of the devout religious convictions of the dead members of the D. A. R. by those who gave tributes.

Thousands of delegates and alternates and members of the congress descended on Washington yesterday and peacefully captured the city. Every hotel was filled with these representative women from every State in the Union and the lobbies and corridors were filled with the greetings of the delegates as they met old friends and made new acquaintances. It was noticed that the candidates for the seven vacancies in the ranks of the vice presidents general and the two gaps in the ranks of the honorary vice presidents general were much in evidence, escorted by their admirers and managers, each with a bouquet of Easter flowers, tributes of the States who had put them forward for the offices.

Much interest was taken in the dinner at the Willard hotel given by high officers of the D. A. R. in honor of Mrs. Brosseau, of Greenwich, Conn. Guests included the national board of management, national committee chairmen, and other national officials and the four honorary presidents general. Informal speeches were given.

3,000 to Attend.

Judging from the number of delegates who already have registered at the credentials committee headquarters in the new auditorium, where Miss Margaret M. Barnett, chairman of credentials, Pennsylvania, and her 40 assistants have been busy for several days, more than 3,000 delegates will be present at this congress, with thousands of alternates and members also in town for the big annual gathering. Every delegate, alternate and member is wearing her ribbon badge to that effect, so the D. A. R. are easily recognized throughout the town. Hundreds of the D. A. R. saw the cherry blossoms on the Speedway yesterday afternoon, while other sightseeing parties were organized for inspection of the Capital and its historic spots.

All is in readiness for the opening session of the congress, which will begin in the new auditorium at 10 a. m. with a procession of national officers, pages and flag bearers, the latter leading the way with the American flag and the D. A. R. standards.

The processional, which will be played on the great organ of the new auditorium by C. M. Ashton, was written by Helen Stone McColl and dedicated to Mrs. Brousseau.

After Mrs. Brosseau has declared the thirty-sixth continental congress in session, Mrs. Matthew Brewster, chaplain general, will give a scriptural reading and prayer, followed by the salute to the flag, led by Mrs. Charles Brand, of Urbana, Ohio, national chairman correct use of flag committee, and the recital of the "American Creed," led by William Tyler Page, its author. Greetings will then be extended by Commissioner Proctor L. Dougherty on behalf of the city, heads of patriotic soiceties and the honorary presidents general.

Mrs. Brosseau then will make her first annual address as president general, in which she is expected to discuss matters of national defense, civic ideals and other issues of special moment. The morning session will be closed by special committee reports, after which a visit will be made to the Pen American Union building on the invitation of Dr. Leo S. Rowe, director general of the Pan American union.

At the morning session a picturesque incident will be the presentation to Mrs. Brosseau of a basket of Easter flowers by the Children of the American Revolution, represented by Philip Devereuz Johnston, four years old, of Evanston, Ill.

The afternoon session of the congress will be given over to the reading of the reports of national officers.

The formal opening of the congress will take place tonight when in the presence of a brilliant assemblage speeches will be given by Secretary of the Navy Curtis D. Wilbur, the Ambassador of the Belgians, Baron de Cartier; Miss Mabel Boardman, national secretary of the American Red Cross; Dr. Rowe, and Princess Michael Cantacuzene, on "Our International Relations."

The annual Easter celebrations of Christ Episcopal church and St. Paul's church were held yesterday afternoon, when the members of the Sunday schools were presented with potted plants.

Funeral services for Mrs. Emma Elizabeth Arrington, wife of Charles Arrington, of Franconia, who died Friday at the Alexandria hospital, will be conducted at the funeral home of Cunningham, Kennedy & Watkins at 11 o'clock this morning by the Rev. GRAY, SAY ALIENISTS MUST STAND TRIAL ON MURDER CHARGE

Attorneys, After Learning of Findings, Decide Not to Plead Insanity.

MRS. SNYDER EXPECTED TO SHIFT ALL BLAME

Trial of Pair for Death of Art Editor Is Scheduled to Open Today.

New York, April 17 (By A. P.).—Four alienists, two appointed by the State and two by the defense, agreed today that there is no reason why Henry Judd Gray should not go on trial with Mrs. Ruth Snyder before a Queens county jury tomorrow for the murder of Mrs. Snyder's husband, magazine art editor.

While in their report to District Attorney Newcombe, they do not state that they found Gray sane, they declare that their findings are "harmonius." Gray's attorney, Samuel L. Miller, declared upon learning of the report that the defense would not be based on insanity.

Confessions are Denied.

Mrs. Snyder will attempt to shift the whole blame for her husband's murder on the narrow shoulders of Gray, in private life a corset salesman. In a statement to the public in which she asked the people at large, particularly wives and mothers, to withhold judgment until the jury has spoken, Mrs. Snyder denounced Gray and called him names.

Early confessions, announced by police from both defendants, were later repudiated by the pair, with a claim that they were obtained by force.

Elaborate preparations have been made for reporting the trial. To offset poor accoustics in the courtroom, Supreme Court Justice Townsend Scudder, who will preside, has permitted the installation of microphones and loud speakers. Places have been provided for approximately 130 writers and artists.

Photographers will not be permitted to ply their trade inside the court room

200 Talesmen Called.

With 200 talesmen summoned to report at Long Island City tomorrow, the task of selecting twelve was not regarded as easy. Each defendant may peremptorily challenge 20, and it was regarded as likely that every challenge would be used. There will be no women on the jury.

Snyder was found dead in bed March 20 by neighbors who answered the daughter's call for help. Mrs. Snyder was discovered bound and gagged in an adjoining room. Gray, arrested in Syracuse, offered an alibi which failed to stand the pressure of investigation.

READY FOR THE GRAY-SNYDER TRIAL TODAY

MACDONALD IN BOSTON; IS SLIGHTED IN ENGLAND

CHINA POLICY ATTACKED

Boston, April 17 (By A. P.).—James Ramsay MacDonald, former labor prime minister of England, completed another stage in a journey to the home of a friend "somewhere in New England," when he arrived here early tonight after an automobile trip from New York.

Accompanied by his daughter, Ishbel, and Oswald Garrison Villard, editor of the Nation, Mr. MacDonald registered at a Back Bay hotel and retired to his room for dinner, declining to see reporters.

Mr. MacDonald has announced that he will visit the home of an aged hostess, who entertained him and his wife when they were in this country on their honeymoon trip 30 years ago. He has declined to reveal the identity of his friend because of the publicity which he fears would annoy her.

London, April 17 (By A. P.).—The growing strength of the revolt against Ramsay MacDonald's labor leadership was shown at the annual conference of the independent labor party, which opened today at Leicester. The administrative council this year omitted the customary nomination of MacDonald as treasurer of the party, the ground of omission being that MacDonald opposes some planks the independent labor party wants the parliamentary labor party to adopt.

The omission led to prolonged and heated secret discussions today over a motion seeking to force the council to nominate MacDonald, but the motion was defeated by a vote of 312 to 118.

Fener Brockway, leader of the anti-MacDonald faction, criticized his policy toward China, lack of robustness in his leadership and his apparent failure to adopt the policy of a standard living wage.

The vote carries no immediate effect on MacDonald's leadership of the whole party, but weakens his position.

NOTED FRENCH ROADS AGAIN NEED REPAIRS

Once Famous Highways Are Only Bogs in Places, It Is Asserted.

Paris, April 17 (By A. P.)—France's once famous roads again are in a deplorable state, in the opinion of Charles Faroux, a leader among automobile engineers and touring authorities.

Faroux has called upon Andre Tardieu, minister of public works, for an explanation, declaring that parts of the 40,000 kilometer system of main highways are almost bogs and that hundreds of kilometers are barely passable.

Besides this main system of hard roads France has more than 500,000 kilometers of small roads and lanes, but it has been the government's policy to see that the chief arteries are in good condition.

War, says Faroux, wrecked the macadam roads, but after the war they were rebuilt and repaired until last year they were in fair condition. Now, he declares, the whole system is going to pot and the work of years is all but undone.

Three arrests were made by police investigating the shooting. They took into custody Mr. and Mrs. Frank Muccicano, in whose home the shootings occurred, and Joe Pino.

Grafton, W. Va., April 17 (By A. P.).—A house owned by the Simpson Creek Colliery Co. at Galloway, near here, was partly wrecked by a dynamite explosion today. No one was injured. After a day of investigation, county authorities said they had discovered no clues that might lead to those who set off the charge.

ALLEGED COUNTERFEIT RINGLEADER CAPTURED

J. H. Mayes, Veteran, Tranied in Federal Bureau, Arrested in Illinois.

$250,000 IN FAKE NOTES

St. Louis, April 17 (By A. P.).—Government secret service agents at Murphysboro, Ill., today captured John H. Mayes, 35 years old, world war veteran and alleged leader of a counterfeiting ring, who, it is charged, has made and distributed more than $250,000 in spurious money.

Mayes was run to earth after a chase that lasted a year and led to Mexico and back to Illinois. Two secret service operatives working under Stephen A. Connell, Federal secret service agent in charge of the St. Louis district, arrested Mayes with the tools of a counterfeiter all about him in a small frame house in Murphysboro.

Behind the alleged counterfeiter stood his wife and three small children and a modern printing press on which the money was made. The plate from which the money was printed was found in the press.

Its product was said by Connell to have been accepted many times by leading banks in New York City, St. Louis, Chicago, Detroit and southern Illinois. Experts on counterfeit money were said by Connell to have been deceived many times by the spurious notes made by Mayes.

Mayes, who shot himself through the foot while home on a furlough, and has received compensation through the United States veterans' bureau, was trained as an engraver by the bureau, Connell said.

"He was sent to a school at Effingham, Ill., to study photoengraving as vocational training," Connell said. "There he learned his trade so well that he makes United States notes so well that the most wary bankers were deceived."

The Birger and Shelton bootleg gangs of southern Illinois also were used as a means of distribution of the bogus money, Connell declared. Both gangs bought fake notes from him and passed them on purchasers of liquor.

HONORS TROPHY WON BY PACIFIC FLEET

Battleships Carry Off the Athletic and Small-Arms Prizes.

U. S. Fleet, off Guantanamo, Cuba, April 17 (By A. P.).—The Pacific battle fleet of the United States navy was today declared winner of the general excellence honors and trophy, which was awarded by the commander in chief, Rear Admiral Charles F. Hughes, for athletic supremacy. The Pacific battle fleet won 20 points to 10 over the Atlantic scouting ships.

The U. S. S. New Mexico captured the departmental small arms trophy, classic of the fleet rifle matches. The battleships California, Arizona and Colorado finished next in order.

The battle fleet won six of the seven wrestling events at various weights, and two of the six boxing events. The middleweight feature event went to Cohen, of the scouting fleet, who defeated Waterman, of the New Mexico, the battle fleet champion of 1927 and the navy champion of 1926.

The stay of the combined United States fleet in Guantanamo bay will end tomorrow when the 109 warcraft will depart on the third annual maneuvers of 1927. The Caribbean cruise will end April 21. After that the fleet, with the exception of the New Mexico, will proceed for New York.

CHICAGO CABARET MEN ARE KIDNAPED; HELD FOR RANSOM

Two Owners and Their Chauffeur Are Prisoners Since Wednesday Last.

DEMANDS FOR MONEY RANGE TO $200,000

Captured by Bootleggers in Revenge for Refusing to Buy, Is Theory.

Chicago, April 17 (By A. P.).—Wealthy cafe and night club operators once sought by liquor racketeers, "as their first-class customers," are now the victims of a scheme modeled on Moroccan brigand methods—that of kidnaping the valuable customer and holding him for ransom because he no longer dares jeopardize his club or cafe by illegal handling of liquor.

This system, expounded tonight by Michael Grady, deputy chief of detectives, is believed to be the cause of the kidnaping last Wednesday of Jake Adler and Frank Galello, owners of the Midnight Frolics, and their chauffeur, known as "Tony the Wop." Reports today were that the three men were held for ransom, varying from $10,000 a head, to $200,000 for the trio. With no formal complaints from the men's families, the police still lack a definite clew after a fruitless 56-hour search throughout the city and throughout its environs.

Siezed Near Club.

Adler, Galello, and the chauffeur were siezed after they left the Midnight Frolics, near Twenty-second and State street, on the fringe of the negro district and adjacent to Chinatown. Their absence was not reported until Friday. Neither relatives nor friends have received personal communications from them.

Telephone messages to friends and relatives, however, assuring safety of the men, have been reported to police, yet nothing definite has been learned. That the men may be in personal danger is believed by relatives who fear to lend aid to the police, Detective Grady says.

The Frolics, recently prosecuted, under an "observation" injunction, has not sold any liquors for months. Police believe that the refusal to handle any liquors may have caused the "racketeers" to embark in the new game of kidnaping to replenish their bankrolls. Reports that "Tony the Wop" had been released by the captors and ordered to return to the night life district to spread the word of the kidnaping reached the police, but they had not heard of nor seen him.

Waits, But Gets No Word.

Ralph Gallett, also an owner of the Frolics, was given telephone instructions Friday by an unidentified voice to visit a certain street corner and remain there for word of his business associates. He kept the appointment, waiting three hours without results.

The two owners, with the chauffeur, had completed a check of the night receipts shortly before they were taken, but the funds were reported to have been left in the Frolics safe.

Police entertained the idea that possibly the men would be returned tomorrow after banking hours. This theory led to the belief that the demands for ransom would run as high as $200,000.

Porto Rican Liberty Is Urged on Coolidge

San Juan, Porto Rico, April 17 (By A. P.).—As Easter greeting to President Coolidge, the nationalist party, through its president, Fedrico Acosta Velarde, sent the following message: "The anti-American sentiment found here by McFadden (Representative Louis T. McFadden, of Pennsylvania) is more than justified by the nullification of Gen. Miles' promises of freedom, instead of which we suffer under a regime of colonial servitude and exploitation without precedent. The real inner aspiration of the people of Porto Rico is immediate and absolute independence."

Representative McFadden, of Pennsylvania, who recently returned from a visit to Porto Rico, informed President Coolidge of a growing anti-American sentiment in the island and urged a more aggressive American policy.

Fat Babies, at Baptism, Cry Most, Pastor Says

Special to The Washington Post.

Atlantic City, N. J., April 17.—When being baptized, "blond babies" usually cry, brunettes smile and bald headed ones look blank, it was declared here today at the Ambassador hotel by the Rev. Dr. F. B. Short, of New York. Dr. Short was for 35 years pastor of a Methodist church, but is now connected with the J. C. Penney Co.

"Thirty per cent of the babies smile when christened," he said, "30 per cent cry and 40 per cent take the rite calmly. It's usually the fat ones who cry most."

BYRD AND COMPANIONS, HURT IN CRASH, IMPROVE

No Decision Reached Regarding Plans for Proposed Flight to Paris.

SHIP SLIGHTLY DAMAGED

Hackensack, N. J., April 17 (By A. P.).—Three noted American airmen tonight were recovering from injuries received in an airplane crash that, temporarily at least, has disrupted their plans to make a nonstop flight across the Atlantic next month. About 5 miles away from the Hackensack hospital, where they were confined, their giant Fokker monoplane, the America, also was receiving professional attention at the Teterboro airport.

The injured airmen are Commander Richard E. Byrd and Pilot Floyd Bennett, north pole fliers, and Lieut. George O. Noville, who was to have accompanied them on their transatlantic hop as alternate pilot and radio operator. Their plane, piloted by its designer, Anthony H. G. Fokker, crashed at Teterboro airport late yesterday afternoon on its first test flight. Fokker was uninjured.

Commander Byrd, whose left wrist was broken, left the Hackensack hospital tonight and joined his wife in New York. Lieut. Noville, Dr. R. P. Sullivan said, was "doing much better today." He received contusions of the right hip joint and leg and was suffering from shock last night. Dr. Sullivan said he had "pretty well recovered from the shock," but would be confined to the hopsital for a week or more.

Bennett, the most seriously injured of the three, suffered severe shock. His right thigh was broken, his lower lip and chin were badly cut, and he received cuts on the head and body. Dr. Sullivan said that at present he had no fears about Bennett's recovery. Bennett, he said, is worried about his wife who is seriously ill in Brooklyn.

No decision has been reached as to continuing with plans for the transatlantic flight, officials said, but if the flight is attempted, it will be made in the America. Fokker said after the mishap last night that the plane could be reconditioned in three or four days.

The accident occurred after the giant monoplane had landed and was speeding along the ground at about 40 miles an hour. It struck a soft spot of ground, tilted suddenly on its nose and turned over on its back.

Grover Whelan, vice president of the Trans-Oceanic Co., said the plane was on a factory test, under direction of Fokker, when the crash occurred, and that none of the personnel of the transoceanic flight crew, Commander Byrd, Bennett or Novell, had any responsibility for handling of the plane.

21 GANGS OF GIRLS FOUND IN CHICAGO

Inquiry Is Made by Head of Bureau of Recreation; 205 Boys' Gangs.

Special to the Washington Post.

Chicago, April 17.—For every ten boys who band together into a gang there is one girl who joints a girls, gang.

This ratio is based on data obtanied by C. E. English, supervisor of the board of education's bureau of recreation and incorporated by him into his annual report submitted today to Superintendent of Schools William McAndrew.

Because of publicity given to gang activity throughout the city, Mr. English determined to find out just how seriously gangs interfered with the functioning of playgrounds. Accordingly, he sent out questionnaires to the entire corps of playground instructors.

Here are some of the results of the massed answers to his queries: There are 226 gangs in the playground areas; 205 of them are composed of boy and 21 are groups of girls.

Of the total number of 226, there are 109 groups classified as michievous and 46 as vicious.

AVIATOR DROPS FOOD TO 2 ON PIKE'S PEAK

Plane, Caught in Pocket, Falls 1,500 Feet During Dangerous Flight.

Colorado Springs, Colo., April 17 (By A. P.).—Food supplies were dropped from an airplane to James Amess and Axel Simonson, who have been snowbound on top of Pikes Peak for a week, when H. C. Lippiatt and his mechanician, A. C. Luz, both of Los Angeles, climbed to an altitude of 22,000 feet to do it.

As the big plane roared over the summit of the peak, Amess and Simonson hurried to the roof of Summit house and shouted their appreciation to the fliers.

The two men are employes of the firm which operates the Summit house during the summer. They went to the top last Sunday with the first cog-road train and did not return, thinking that another train would make the trip Monday. A heavy snowstorm a few hours later blocked the cog-road.

Lippiatt said that his plane was caught in a treacherous air pocket over what is known as the bottomless pit and fell 1,500 feet before he could control it.

TEXT OF MARSHALL CHURCH AND STATE LETTER

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE HON. ALFRED E. SMITH.

I.

Did The American people take pride in viewing the progress of an American citizen from the humble estate in which his life began toward the highest office within the gift of the nation. It is for this reason that your candidacy for the presidential nomination has stirred the enthusiasm of a great body of your fellow citizens. They know and rejoice in the hardship and the struggle which have fashioned you as a leader of men. They know your fidelity to the morality you have advocated in public and private life and to the religion you have revered; your great record of public trusts successfully and honestly discharged: your spirit of fair play and justice even to your political opponents. Partisanship bids fair to quail before the challenge of your personality, and men who vote habitually against your party are pondering your candidacy with sincere respect—and yet—through all this tribute there is a note of doubt, a sinister accent of interrogation, not as to intentional rectitude and moral purpose, but as to certain conceptions which your fellow citizens attribute to you as a loyal and conscientious Roman Catholic, which in their minds are irreconcilable with that Constitution which as President you must support and defend, and with the principles of civil and religious liberty on which American institutions are based.

To this consideration no word of yours, or on your behalf, has yet been addressed. Its discussion in the interests of the public weal is obviously necessary, and yet a strange reticence avoids it, often with the unjust and withering attribution of bigotry or prejudice as the unworthy motive of its introduction. Undoubtedly a large part of the public would gladly avoid a subject the discussion of which is so unhappily associated with rancor and malevolence, and yet to avoid the subject is to neglect the profoundest interests in our national welfare.

American life has developed into a variety of religious beliefs and ethical systems, religious and nonreligious, whose claims press more and more upon public attention. None of these presents a more definite philosophy or makes a more positive demand upon the attention and reason of mankind than your venerable church, which recently at Chicago, in the greatest religious demonstration that the world has ever seen, declared her presence and her power in American life. Is not the time ripe and the occasion opportune for a declaration, if it can be made, that shall clear away all doubt as to the reconcilability of her status and her claims with American constitutional principles? With such a statement the only question as to your proud eligibility to the presidential office would disappear, and the doubts of your fellow citizens not of the Roman Catholic Church would be instantly resolved in your favor.

The conceptions to which we refer are not superficial. They are of the very life and being of that church, determining its status and its relation to the state and to the great masses of men whose convictions deny them the privilege of membership in that church. Surely the more conscientious the Roman Catholic, and the more loyal to his church, the more sincere and unqualified should be his acceptance of such conceptions.

These conceptions have been recognized before by Roman Catholics as a potential obstacle to their participation in public office, Pope Leo XIII himself declaring, in one of his encyclical letters, that "it may in some places be true that for most urgent and just reasons it is by no means expedient for (Roman) Catholics to engage in public affairs or to take an active part in politics."

It is indeed true that a loyal and conscientious Roman Catholic could and would discharge his oath of office with absolute fidelity to his moral standards. As to that in general, and as to you in particular, your fellow citizens entertain no doubt. But those moral standards differ essentially from the moral standards of all men not Roman Catholics. They are derived from the basic political doctrine of the Roman Catholic Church, asserted against repeated challenges for 1,500 years, that God has divided all power over men between the secular state and that church. Thus Pope Leo XIII, in 1885, in his encyclical letter on "The Christian Constitution of States," says: "The Almighty has appointed the charge of the human race between two powers, the ecclesiastical and the civil, the one being set over divine, and the other over human things."

The deduction is inevitable that, as all power over human affairs, not given to the state by God, is given by God to the Roman Catholic Church, no other churches or religious or ethical societies have in theory any direct power from God and are without direct divine sanction, and therefore without natural right to function on the same basis as the Roman Catholic Church in the religious and moral affairs of the State. The result is that the church, if true to her basic political doctrine, is hopelessly committed to that intolerance that has disfigured so much of her history. This is frankly admitted by Roman Catholic authorities.

Pope Pius IX in the famous Syllabus (1864) said: "To hold that national churches, withdrawn from the authority of the Roman pontiff and altogether separated, can be established, is error."

That great compendium of Roman Catholic teaching, the Catholic Encyclopedia, declares that the Roman Catholic Church "regards dogmatic intolerance, not alone as her incontestable right, but as her sacred duty." It is obvious that such convictions leave nothing in theory of the religious and moral rights of those who are not Roman Catholics. And, indeed, that is Roman Catholic teaching and the inevitable deduction from Roman Catholic claims, if we use the word "rights" strictly. Other churches, other religious societies, are tolerated in the state, not by right, but by favor.

Pope Leo XIII is explicit on this point; "The (Roman Catholic) Church, indeed, deems it unlawful to place the various forms of divine worship on the same footing as the true religion, but does not, on that account, condemn those rulers who, for the sake of securing some great good or of hindering some great evil, allow patiently custom or usage to be a kind of sanction for each kind of religion having its place in the State."

That is, there is not a lawful equality of other religions with that of the Roman Catholic Church, but that church will alow state authorities for politic reasons—that is, by favor, but not by right—to tolerate other religious societies. We would ask, sir, whether such favors can be accepted in place of rights by those owning the name of freemen?

II.

Furthermore, the doctrine of the two powers, in effect and theory, inevitably makes the Roman Catholic Church at times sovereign and paramount over the state. It is true that in theory the doctrine assigns to the secular state jurisdiction over secular matters and to the Roman Catholic Church jurisdiction over matters of faith and morals, each jurisdiction being exclusive of the other within undisputed lines. But the universal experience of mankind has demonstrated, and reason teaches, that many questions must arise between the state and the Roman Catholic Church in respect to which it is impossible to determine to the satisfaction of both in which jurisdiction the matter at issue lies.

Here arises the irrepressible conflict. Shall the state or the Roman Catholic Church determine? The Constitution of the United States clearly ordains that the state shall determine the question. The Roman Catholic Church demands for itself the sole right to determine it, and holds that within the limits of that claim it is superior to and supreme over the state. The Catholic Encyclopedia clearly so declares: "In case of direct contradiction, making it impossible for both jurisdictions to be exercised, the jurisdiction of the Church prevails and that of the state is excluded." And Pope Pius IX, in the syllabus asserted: "To say in the case of conflicting laws enacted by the two powers, the civil law prevails, is error."

Extreme as such a conclusion may appear, it is inevitable in Roman Catholic philosophy—that church by the very theory of her existence can not yield, because what she claims as her right and her truth she claims is hers by the "direct act of God"; in her theory, God himself directly forbids. The state can not yield because of a great mass of citizens who are not Roman Catholics. By its constitutional law and in the nature of things, practices of religion in its opinion inconsistent with its peace and safety are unlawful; the law of its being—the law of necessity—forbids. If we could all concede the "divine and exclusive" claims of the Roman Catholic Church, conflict would be eliminated; but, as it is, there is a wide consensus of opinion that those claims are false in fact and in flat conflict with the very being and order of the state.

In our constitutional order this consensus is bulwarked on the doctrine of the Supreme Court of the United States that our religious liberty and our constitutional guaranties thereof are subject to the supreme qualification that religious "practices inconsistent with the peace and safety of the state shall not be justified." (Watson v. Jones 13 Wall. p. 579).

The Roman Catholic Church, of course, makes no claim, and never has made any claim, to jurisdiction over matters that in her opinion are solely secular and civil. She makes the claim obviously only when the matter in question is not, in her opinion, solely secular and civil. But as determination of jurisdiction, in a conflict with the state, rests solely in her sovereign discretion, no argument is needed to show that she may in theory and effect annihilate the rights of all who are not Roman Catholics, sweeping into the jurisdiction of a single religious society the most important interests of human well-being.

The education of youth, the institution of marriage, the international relations of the state, and its domestic peace, as we shall proceed to show, are in certain exigencies wrested from the jurisdiction of the state, in which all citizens share, and confided to the jurisdiction of a single religious society in which all citizens can not share, great numbers being excluded by the barriers of religious belief. Do you, sir, regard such claims as tolerable in a republic that calls itself free?

And in addition to all this, the exclusive powers of the Roman Catholic Church are claimed by her to be vested in and exercised by a sovereignty that is not only created therefor by the special act of God, but is foreign and extraterritorial to these United States and to all secular states. This sovereignty, by the highest Roman Catholic authority, that of Pope Leo XIII, is not only superior in theory to the sovereignty of the secular state, but is substituted upon earth in place of the authority of God himself.

We quote Pope Leo in his encyclical letter on "The Christian Constitution of States:" "Over the mighty multitude of mankind, God has set rulers with power to govern, and He has willed that one of them (the Pope) should be the head of them all." We quote Pope Leo in his encyclical letter on "The Reunion of Christendom:" "We who hold upon this earth the place of God Almighty."

It follows naturally on all this that there is a conflict between authoritative Roman Catholic claims on the one side and our constitutional law and principles on the other. Pope Leo XIII says: "It is not lawful for the state, any more than for the individual, either to disregard all religious duties or to hold in equal favor different kinds of religion." But the Constitution of the United States declares otherwise: "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof."

Thus the Constitution declares the United States shall hold in equal favor different kinds of religion or no religion and the Pope declares it is not lawful to hold them in equal favor. Is there not here a quandary for that man who is at once a loyal churchman and a loyal citizen?

Pope Leo says that the Roman Catholic Church "deems it unlawful to place the various forms of divine worship on the same footing as the true religion." But the Supreme Court of the United States says that our "law knows no heresy and is committed to the support of no dogma, the establishment of no sect." (Watson vs. Jones 13 Wall. p. 728.)

Americans indulge themselves in the felicitation that they have achieved an ideal religious situation in the United States. But Pope Leo, in his encyclical letter on Catholicity in the United States, asserts: "It would be very erroneous to draw the conclusion that in America is to be sought the type of the most desirable status of the church." The modern world reposes in the comfortable reflection that the severance of church and state had ended a long and unhappy conflict, when the same Pope calls our attention to the error of supposing "that it would be universally lawful or expedient for state and church to be, as in America, dissevered and divorced."

Is our law, then, in papal theory, no law? Is it contrary to natural right? Is it in conflict with the will and fiat of Almighty God? Clearly the Supreme Court and Pope Leo are profoundly at variance. Is it not obvious that such a difference of opinion, concerning the fundamental rights between two sovereignties operating within the same territory, may, even with the best intentions and the most sensitive consciences, be fruitful of political offenses that are odious among men?

Citizens who waver in your support would ask whether, as a Roman Catholic, you accept as authoritative the teaching of the Roman Catholic Church that in case of contradiction, making it impossible for the jurisdiction of that church and the jurisdiction of the state to agree, the jurisdiction of the church shall prevail; whether as statesman you accept the teaching of the Supreme Court of the United States that, in matters of religious practices, which in the opinion of the state are inconsistent with its peace and safety, the jurisdiction of the state shall prevail; and, if you accept both teachings, how you will reconcile them.

III.

At the present time no question assumes greater importance than the education of youth. The legislatures of Tennessee, of Oregon and of Nebraska have of late laid impious hands upon it, and the judiciary has sternly curbed them. From what has been said above, it is clear that the claims of the Roman Catholic Church touching this point, more than those of any other institution, may conflict with the authority of the state.

It is true that in the famous Oregon school cases the Supreme Court of the United States held a State law unconstitutional that forbade parents to educate their children at church schools of every denomination. But there was no assertion in the law that the church schools in question gave instruction inconsistent with the peace and safety of the State, and there was no allegation of that tenor in the pleadings. On the record the church schools were void of offense. But had that feature existed in the cases, it would necessarily have led to a reversal of the decision. There would have been a conflict between church and state as to whether the instruction was inconsistent with the peace and safety of the state. The Roman Catholic Church, if true to her doctrine and dogma, would have had to assert exclusive jurisdiction over the determination of this point. Equally the State, in self-preservation, would have had to assert exclusive jurisdiction. The conflict would have been irreconcilable. What would have been the results and what the test of a sincere and conscientious Roman Catholic in executive office or on the bench?

Nothing can be clearer to the American mind than that the plain political teaching of Pope Pius IX and of Pope Leo XIII, as set forth in their encyclical letters, is inconsistent with the peace and safety of the state within the meaning of those words as used by the Supreme Court of the United States in its great decision. That it is "not lawful for the state to hold in equal favor different kinds of religions"; that it is not universally lawful for the state and the Roman Catholic Church to be dissevered and divorced; that the various kinds of religion in theory have their place in the state, not by natural right, but by favor; that dogmatic intolerance is not alone the incontestable right of the Roman Catholic Church, but her sacred duty; that in the case of conflicting laws of the state and the Roman Catholic Church the law of that Church shall prevail, are propositions that would make up a strange textbook for the instruction of American youth.

IV.

A direct conflict between the Roman Catholic Church and the state arises on the institution of marriage, through the claim of that Church that in theory in the case of all baptized persons, quite irrespective of specific consent, Protestants and Roman Catholics alike, jurisdiction touching marriage is wrested from the state and appropriated to the Roman Catholic Church, its exercise reposing ultimately in its Pope. In Roman Catholic theory the civil contract over which the state claims jurisdiction merges in the religious sacrament of marriage, which is, as to baptized persons, exclusively within the jurisdiction of the Roman Catholic Church. Pope Pius IX in 1864 proclaimed in the famous Syllabus: "It is error to hold that the sacrament of marriage is only a something accessory to the contract and separate from it."

It would be generally conceded that the Roman Catholic Church—and indeed any religious society—has the natural right, in case of a question as to the validity of the marriage of a member, to determine as to whether that member may receive its sacramental ministrations and on what terms. Action by the Church would obviously relate only to the religious incidents of the civil contract and would leave untouched the civil contract over which the state claims jurisdiction. But the doctrine expressed by Pope Pius IX and the nature of the claims of his Church forbid such reasonable action. The Church proceeds in disregard of the law and sovereignty of the state, and claims, at its discretion, the right to annul and destroy the bond of the civil contract. The practical result of such claims in the conflict of church and state appears in the light of the recent and notorious annulment of the Marlborough marriage.

The essential facts are few. It was the case of a marriage between two "Protestants," solemnized within the sovereignty of the State of New York, by ecclesiastics of the Episcopal Church duly authorized in the matter by the commission of that sovereignty. The parties took up their residence within the sovereignty of England. Twenty-five years after the marriage, and after the birth of two children, the wife, disregarding the remedy of annulment that existed in the law of England and in the law of New York, as well as in the Roman Catholic Church (and, if she were entitled to it at all, could have been had for the asking in either jurisdiction), sued the husband for divorce in the English courts, on the grounds of his gross misconduct. The divorce was granted. After the divorce both parties contracted civil marriages with new partners, religious marriages being difficult for them for obvious reasons. The wife's second marriage was contracted with a Roman Catholic. An annulment of the first marriage became manifestly desirable.

In the courts of New York and of England, several matters barred the way. New York had solemnized the contract under the due and usual safeguards as to the freedom of the contracting parties, and, in her sovereign right, recognized the contract as valid. England, at the request of the wife, had recognized the New York contract as valid and had taken jurisdiction over it so as to base the civil decree of divorce upon it. The parties for 25 years had proceeded in a course of life based on the assumption that the marriage was valid, and the wife, by her own election under the advice of able counsel, had waived all claim to annulment and had sought divorce. In the jurisprudence of every civilized country the wife was estopped from claiming annulment, by her own acts, by the lapse of time, and by the conclusive presumptions of secular law established in the interest of social morality and the sanctity of contracts. But the wife applied to the Roman Catholic authorities, who granted the annulment upon the theory that she had been under fear and duress at the time of the marriage 31 years before, and had not known in all that time that such fear, if is existed, established her right in the Roman Catholic court to an annulment. Disregarding facts in the case which might reflect upon the ingenuousness of the ecclesiastical court of the sacred rota of Rome, we would point solely to the fact that in the proceeding before that court the sovereignties of New York State and of England, and all that they had done in the matter, were ignored. The evidence at the time on the record of the English court, and conclusively against the claims of the wife, was not even produced. The decree was granted on an ex parte hearing, on the testimony of interested witnesses only. It would be difficult to find a more utter disregard of the sovereignty of states than this by the sovereignty of Rome, touching that comity which, in good morals and public decency, is supposed to exist between sovereign powers.

In your opinion, sir, are such proceedings consistent with the peace and safety of states?

V.

The Mexican situation has brought the claims of the Roman Catholic Church into great prominence in this country. It is inevitably linked with issues that will concern the executive office at Washington for the next term. We have been very fully advised of the claims of the church in the matter through the official opinion of that eminent jurist and Roman Catholic, Mr. William D. Guthrie, of the American bar, prepared at the request of the Roman Catholic hierarchy of America and extensively circulated.

Mr. Guthrie challenges the right of Mexico to enact into her constitution the provision that "the Mexican law recognizes no juridical (that is, juristic) personality in the religious institutions known as churches."

It must be borne in mind that this provision is not a statutory enactment of administrative law under a constitution—it is a part of the constitution itself, of the organic law legally adopted by the political sovereignty of the Mexican people, absolute and supreme in creating their constitutional conditions. The opinion claims that this provision violates international law, the principles of liberty and justice of the civilized world and of American constitutional law. If the opinion is right, then a political sovereignty, convinced that its existence is best served by the constitutional elimination of churches as juristic personalities, can not lawfully proceed so to decree in its constitution.

Further, Mr. Guthrie maintains: "The Roman Catholic Church is not opposing the separation of church and state in Mexico, provided that such separation be not a sham or screen, and will leave the church free to teach the Gospel, to educate children, and inculcate sound and true spiritual doctrine and moral rules of conduct, without dictation from or supervision by government officials, and subject to reasonable police regulation."

The opinion proceeds upon the theory that the Roman Catholic Church should determine, in case of conflict with Mexican sovereignty, what are "sound and true spiritual doctrine and moral rules of conduct." The political teaching of Pope Leo XIII or the syllabus of Pope Pius IX would be regarded as sound and true by the Roman Catholic Church, but it would in reason be regarded as suicide by the autonomous Mexican state—or any other state.

Mr. Guthrie enthusiastically quotes Lord Acton: "Where ecclesiastical authority is restricted, religious liberty is denied." And he invokes public opinion in the United States, and international opinion generally, in a protest against the Mexican constitutional and legal situation, because, he says, it is "in clear conflict with the basic doctrine of the Roman Catholic Church, and the deep belief of her members, that she is ecumenical and universal in the very sense and scope of the belief that all people ought to worship God, and that their church (the Roman Catholic Church) was founded by Christ, true God and true man, for the governance of all men living under the skies."

The claim here asserted for the Roman Catholic Church is exclusive of every other religious foundation as having any spiritual rights under the Savior of mankind; and it is bluntly asserted in a word that connotes a sovereign jurisdiction in theory over all men in spiritual affairs without regard to their assent. It is the last official promulgation of the ancient and dangerous theory of the two powers.

Americans, as well as other peoples, may deplore the Mexican standard of what is inconsistent with the peace and order of the state, but we submit that the application of the Mexican standard by the Mexican people in Mexican affairs, in the assertion of an undisputed national sovereignty within its own territory and over its own people, can not be held contrary to reason, and null and void in law, however much it may impugn the sovereign claims of the Roman Catholic Church, afford a minority a reason for rebellion, or offend the sentiments of other nations.

Mr. Guthrie's appeal opens up international questions of a grave character. He assures us that the problem of dealing with the Mexican situation "is extremely delicate and complex;" that the Mexicans are "resentful of foreign advice or interference, especially on our part;" that "our treatment at times has inflamed a sensitive and proud people to intense indignation"—and so forth.

In all this may inhere a long series of unhappy international episodes. Into the complex of prejudice and resentment of a sensitive and proud people, according to Mr. Guthrie we are to project American opinion that the Mexican constitution is intolerable because it invades the prerogatives of the ecumenical and universal Roman Catholic Church. We are, by the expression of American opinion, to invade the sovereign rights of Mexico and at the same time to register our own surrender of religious liberty de jure to the claims of that church.

How serious might be the crisis, if Mr. Guthrie's premises were to be accepted by the people of the United States, is seen in his declaration that "many historical precedents of action on the part of the government of the United States of America, as well as of other countries, could be cited which would abundantly support a protest or remonstrance, and even armed intervention, at the present time in Mexico, in order to assure to the Mexican people religious liberty." Armed intervention!—and, Mr. Guthrie goes on to explain, the papacy and the Mexican hierarchy refrain from asking for it, not because it is unlawful and unreasonable, but because "history admonishes them of the horrors of civil war and of the danger of inviting interference by foreign powers and arms to compel what the aggressors conceive to be either religious liberty or the only true faith." It is clear that Washington is saved an international episode only out of considerations of expediency and policy by the papacy and the Mexican hierarchy.

"To this society (the Roman Catholic Church)," wrote Pope Leo XIII in his encyclical letter on "The Christian Constitution of States," "the only begotten Son of God entrusted all the truths which He had taught in order that it might keep and guard them and with lawful authority explain them and at the same time He commanded all nations to hear the voice of the (Roman Catholic) Church as if it were His own, threatening those who would not hear it with everlasting perdition."

It is the voice of that church that speaks to America by the American hierarchy in the words of its distinguished counsel in the Mexican situation; and your fellow citizens are concerned to inquire what authority you ascribe to that voice.

VI.

We have no desire to impute to the Roman Catholic Church aught but high and sincere motives in the assertion of her claims as one of the two powers. Her members believe in those claims, and, so believing, it is their conscientious duty to stand for them. We are satisfied if they will but concede that those claims, unless modified and historically redressed, precipitate an inevitable conflict between the Roman Catholic Church and the American state irreconcilable with domestic peace. With two illustrations—and those relating to English Christianity—we have done.

In the sixteenth century the decree of Pope Pius V in terms deposed Elizabeth, Queen of England, from the English throne and absolved her subjects from their allegiance. The result is well known. Much that pertained to the venerable forms of religion in the preceding centuries became associated in the popular mind of England with treason—even the mass itself when celebrated in the Roman form. Roman Catholics were oppressed in their rights and privileges. Roman Catholic priests were forbidden within the realm. The mills of God turned slowly, but they turned. The Roman Catholics of England endured the penalties of hostile legislation with heroic fortitude and resignation. Public opinion slowly changed and gradually Roman Catholic disabilities were removed, and in 1850, under Cardinal Wiseman, the Roman Catholic hierarchy was restored in England, with no other condition than that its sees should not use the ancient titles that the hierarchy of the Church of England had retained. Peace and amity reigned within the realm, irrespective of different religions, and domestic repose marked a happy epoch. But the toleration and magnanimity of England bore strange fruit. Scarcely was the Roman hierarchy restored to its ancient privileges when the astounding Apostolic Letter of Pope Leo XIII appeared (1896), declaring to the world that the orders of the Church of England were void, her priests not priests, her bishops not bishops, and her sacraments so many empty forms.

But this was not all. Reaching hands back through three centuries, the Roman pontiff drew from obscurity the case of John Felton, an English citizen who in 1570, contrary to the law of treason at that time on the statute book of England, posted on the walls of London the decree of Pope Pius V already referred to, deposing the English queen. Felton was beatified in 1886 by the act of Pope Leo XIII.

The honors paid him were rendered 300 years after his treasonable act. There lies their sinister import. They are no part of the mediaeval milieu; they belong to the modern world and must have judgment not by mediaeval but by modern standards. One would have supposed, in view of the critical situation in modern states in relation to the respect for authority of government and the obedience of citizens to the law, that the beatification might have been omitted. One would have supposed that the changes in political thought and theory through 300 years would have dictated the wisdom of letting the dead past bury its dead, and the memory of blessed John Felton rest in peace with those abandoned political doctrines that inspired his heroic but unhappy deed.

Is the record of the Roman Catholic Church in England consistent, sir, in your opinion, with the peace and safety of the state?

Nothing will be of greater satisfaction to those of your fellow citizens who hesitate in their indorsement of your candidacy because of the religious issues involved than such a disclaimer by you of the convictions here imputed, or such an exposition by others of the questions here presented, as may justly turn public opinion in your favor.

Yours with great respect,

CHARLES C. MARSHALL.

RAGING RIVERS OVER FARMS; MANY LIVES ARE IN PERIL

ways leading into Pinebluff are covered with water and impassable, while the water encroaching into east Pinebluff forced a rapid evacuation of the residents of that section of the city.

Along the main artery, the Mississippi, forces were mustered for a supreme battle against the elements. So far only one main line levee has fallen—near Dorena, in southeastern Missouri.

Meanwhile relief organizations were assembling their forces. Red Cross workers are being dispatched to strategic points, refugee colonies established at a dozen points and other State and Federal agencies making ready for eventualities.

State troops were called into service today to patrol the embankment along Washington county, in Mississippi, and 100 members of the American Legion joined forces with the State troops as levee guards. The Greenville (Miss.) company of State guardsmen were assigned the task of guarding the Washington county levees.

Maj. Donald Connolly, United States engineer directing the flood fight in the Memphis district, declared conditions today were improved over yesterday and reports from his sector indicated a satisfactory situation. Similar reports were made by directing officials of the upper and lower Yazoo levee districts in Mississippi, extending through six counties southward from the Tennessee-Mississippi line.

New Orleans, April 17 (By A. P.).—An exodus of residents of Lauderdale, seven miles below Donaldsonville on the Mississippi river, was reported today by the telephone operator there.

No break was feared, the operator said, unless a high wind should come up, but the lashing waves of the past several days have worn the levees thin in places. About 1,500 persons were called into service, sandbagging the levees at points and reinforcing weak spots with earth. The water still is about three feet from the top of the levee.

Cross said, "indicates the the peak of the floods has not yet been reached and probably will not arrive for three more days, unless of course, there is unusually favorable weather."

All chapters of the Red Cross from southern Illinois to New Orleans have been ordered to provide such immediate relief as seems expedient until Director Baker has been able to go over the ground and map out a comprehensive program.

In the light of developments, it occurs to Red Cross officials that in addition to first aid, from three to four weeks' rations will have to be provided to refugees in the northern flood area and probably two months' rations for those in the South.

Roads leading into Forrest City, Ark., were reported literally blocked with flood sufferers, who, loaded with personal belongings, were making their way to safety.

Levee conditions along the lower Mississippi river were reported as "serious" to the War Department yesterday by Gov. Murphree of Mississippi. He declared national guard troops have been ordered out, presumably to patrol the river and give such aid as is necessary.

The War Department granted a request for additional tents to house refugees, ordering 800 sent to Greenville, Miss., from New Orleans.

National headquarters of the American Red Cross estimated yesterday that flood refugees in Kentucky, Tennessee, Mississippi and Louisiana total 9,000. Other thousands, it was said, have been driven from their homes in States immediately west of the Mississippi.

Flood conditions at Natchez, Miss., and Wickliffe, Ky., were described in reports to the Red Cross as "rapidly growing more serious." Marion Rust, Red Cross field worker, already in the flood area, has been ordered to proceed immediately to Wickliffe and report on conditions there.

Red Cross Holds Meeting To Plan Help for Refugees

(By the Associated Press.)

A special meeting of Red Cross officials was called at national headquarters here last night to prepare for any emergency which may arise out of increasingly alarming reports from areas in the southern Mississippi river valley.

The meeting was called after the organization had received reports of additional levees breaking in the Arkansas river and of especially distressing conditions in and around Marion county, Ark. The Red Cross said more than 24,000 persons had been reported to it as in need of assistance, William M. Baxter, organization official at St. Louis, reporting 15,200 refugees in Illinois, Missouri and Arkansas alone.

Henry M. Baker, national disaster relief director, has been detailed to leave Washington immediately for the flood area to make an extensive survey of conditions, and Miss Pauline Marshall, active in the Florida hurricane, has been ordered to Natchez, Miss., to aid T. R. Buchanan, who reported the situation in Mississippi as very serious.

dead, and her father, George Pierson, and 4-year-old brother, Alvin, are in Alexandria hospital as the result of the Delaplane accident.

The crash occurred at 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon and the three injured persons arrived at Alexandria hospital at about 7 o'clock. Both legs of the girl were amputated by Dr. M. D. Delaney, but she died a few minutes after the operation. The father and brother were not seriously injured. The body of the girl was taken to Demaine's funeral establishment pending funeral arrangements.

The other four were injured when automobiles driven by Dr. Jeremiah Rogers, 37 Bryant street northwest, a staff physician at Georgetown hospital, and Claude H. Leaman, of Hagerstown, Md., crashed on the road eight miles from Frederick, Md.

Dr. Rogers was brought to this city with a fractured left leg and cuts on his head and body. Leaman, with a dislocated hip and severe cuts on the scalp, his wife, whose left arm and leg were fractured, and Mrs. Cora Beard, suffering from concussion of the brain, were treated at the Frederick hospital. Mrs. Beard was a passenger in the Leaman car. Dr. Rogers' auto swerved from the road when it struck a rut, witnesses say, and when he tried to drive it onto the roadway it collided headon with the Leaman automobile.

Cuno Attends Easter Services in Chicago

Special to The Washington Post.

Chicago, April 17.—Easter worshipers in Chicago today included Dr. Wilhelm Cuno, chancellor of Germany in 1923, now managing director of the Hamburg-American steamship lines. Dr. Cuno attended the pontificial high mass at Holy Name cathedral, solemnized by Cardinal Mundelein. His program for tomorrow includes an audience with the cardinal.

Germany's economic progress since the war, he reported, has been slow but steady. His country would be lost without the credit it has been given so far, he pointed out, and the friendship and commercial intercourse with America is invaluable in reestablishing Germany on a sound economic basis. Dr. Cuno was the principal guest tonight at a dinner given by Rudolph Zimmer, German consul. He will leave tomorrow for the West coast.

GOV. AL SMITH'S ANSWER ON RELIGIOUS ISSUE

(From the Atlantic Monthly for May.)

Gov. Smith's reply to Mr. Marshall follows:

"Charles C. Marshall, Esq.

"Dear Sir: In your open letter to me in the April Atlantic Monthly you 'impute' to American Catholics views which if held by them, would leave open to question the loyalty and devotion to this country and its Constitution of more than 20,000,000 American Catholic citizens. I am grateful to you for defining this issue in the open and for your courteous expression of the satisfaction it will bring to my fellow citizens for me to give 'a disclaimer of the convictions' thus imputed.

"Without mental reservation, I can and do make the disclaimer. These convictions are held neither by me nor by any other American Catholic as far as I know. Before answering the argument of your letter, however, I must dispose of one of its implications.

"You put your questions to me in connection with my candidacy for the office of President of the United States. My attitude with respect to that candidacy was fully stated in my last inaugural address as governor when, on January 1, 1927, I said:

"'I have no idea what the future has in store for me. Every one else in the United States has some notion about it except myself. No man could stand before this intelligent gathering and say that he was not receptive to the greatest position the world has to give to any one. But I can say this, that I will do nothing to achieve it except to give to the people of the State the kind and character of service that will make me deserve it.'

* * * *

"I should be a poor American and a poor Catholic alike if I injected religious discussion into a political campaign. Therefore I would ask you to accept this answer from me not as a candidate for any public office, but as an American citizen, honored with high elective office, meeting a challenge to his patriotism and his intellectual integrity.

"Moreover, I call your attention to the fact that I am only a layman. The Atlantic Monthly describes you as 'an experienced attorney,' who has made himself an authority upon canon law.' I am neither a lawyer nor a theologian. What knowledge of law I have was gained in the course of my long experience in the legislature and as chief executive of New York State. I had no such opportunity to study theology.

"My first thought was to answer you with just the faith that is in me. But I knew instinctively that your conclusions could be logically proved false. It seemed right, therefore, to take counsel with some one schooled in the church law, from whom I learned whatever is hereafter set forth in definite answer to the theological questions you raise.

* * * *

"I selected one whose patriotism neither you nor any other man will question. He wears upon his breast the distinguished service cross of our country, its distinguished service medal, the ribbon of the Legion of Honor, and the croix de guerre with palm of the French republic. He was the Catholic chaplain of the almost wholly Catholic 165th regiment in the world war. Father Francis P. Duffy, now in the military service of my own State.

"Taking your letter as a whole and reducing it to commonplace English, you imply that there is conflict between religious loyalty to the Catholic faith and patriotic loyalty to the United States. Everything that has actually happened to me during my long public career leads me to know that no such thing as that is true.

"I have taken an oath of office in this State nineteen times. Each time I swore to defend and maintain the Constitution of the Unitde States. All of this represents a period of public service in elective office almost continuous since 1903. I have never known any conflict between my official duties and my religious belief. No such conflict could exist.

"Certainly the people of this State recognize no such conflict. They have testified to my devotion to public duty by electing me to the highest office within their gift four times. You yourself do me the honor, in addressing me, to refer to 'your fidelity to the morality you have adopted in public and private life and to the religion you have revered; your great record of public trusts successfully and honestly discharged.'

* * * *

"During the years I have discharged these trusts I have been a communicant of the Roman Catholic Church. If there were conflict I, of all men could not have escaped it, because I have not been a silent man, but a battler for social and political reform. These battles would in their very nature disclose this conflict if there were any.

"I regard public education as one of the foremost functions of government and I have supported to the last degree the State department of education in every effort to promote our public school system. The largest single item of increased appropriations under my administration appears in the educational group for the support of common schools. Since 1919, when I first became governor, this item has grown from $9,000,000 to $82,500,000. My aim—and I may say I have succeeded in achieving it—has been legislation for child welfare, the protection of working men, women and children, the modernization of the State's institutions for the care of helpless or unfortunate wards, the preservation of freedom of speech and opinion against the attack of war-time hysteria, and the complete reorganization of the structure of the government of the State.

"I did not struggle for these things for any single element, but in the interest of all of the eleven million people who make up the State. In all of this work I had the support of churches of all denominations.

"I probably know as many ecclesiastics of my church as any other layman. During my long and active public career I never received from any of them anything except cooperation and encouragement in the full and complete discharge of my duty to the State. Moreover, I am unable to understand how anything that I was taught to believe as a Catholic could possibly be in conflict with what is good citizenship. The essence of my faith is built upon the commandments of God. The law of the land is built upon the commandments of God. There can be no conflict between them.

"Instead of quarreling among ourselves over dogmatic principles it would be infinitely better if we joined together in inculcating obedience to these commandments in the hearts and minds of the youth of the country as the surest and best road to happiness on this earth and to peace in the world to come. This is the common ideal of all religions. What we need is more religion for our young people, not less, and the way to get more religion is to stop the bickering among our sects, which can only have for its effect the creation of doubt in the minds of our youth as to whether or not it is necessary to pay attention to religion at all.

"Then I know your imputations are false when I recall the long list of other public servants of my faith who have loyally served the state. You as a lawyer will probably agree that the office of Chief Justice of the United States is second not even to that of the President in its influence on the national development and policy. That court, by its interpreation of the Federal Constitution, is a check not only upon the President himself, but upon Congress as well.

"During one-fourth of its history it has been presided over by two Catholics, Roger Brooke Taney and Edward Douglass White. No one has suggested that the official conduct of either of the men was affected by any unwarranted religious influence or that religion played with them any part other than it should play in the life of every God-fearing man.

"And I know your imputations are false when I recall the tens of thousands of young Catholics who have risked and sacrificed their lives in defense of our country. These fundamentals of life could not be true unless your imputations were false.

"But wishing to meet you on your own ground, I address myself to your definite questions, against which I have thus far made only general statements. I must first call attention to the fact that you often divorce sentences from their context in such a way as to give them something other than their real meaning. I will specify:

"You refer to the apostolic letter of Pope Leo XIII as 'declaring to the world that the orders of the church of England were void, her priests not priests,' and so forth. You say that this was the 'strange fruit' of the toleration of England to the Catholics.

* * * *

"You imply that the pope gratuitously issued an affront to the Anglican Church. In fact, this apostolic letter was an answer to a request made at the instance of priests of the Anglican church for recognition by the Roman Catholic Church of the validity of their priestly orders. The request was based on the ground that they had been ordained in succession from the Roman Catholic priests who became the first priests of the Anglican Church.

"The apostolic letter was a mere adverse answer to this request, ruling that Anglican priests were not Roman Catholic priests, and was in no sense the gratuitious insult which you suggest it to be. It was not directed against England or citizens of that empire.

"Again, you quote from the Catholic encyclopedia that my church 'regards dogmatic intolerance, not alone as her incontestable right, but as her sacred duty.' And you say that these words show that Catholics are taught to be politically, socially and intellectually intolerant of all other people. If you had read the whole of that article in the Catholic encyclopedia, you would known that the real meaning of these words is that for Catholics alone the church recognizes no deviation from complete acceptance of its dogma. These words are used in a chapter dealing with that subject only.

"The very same article in another chapter dealing with toleration toward non-Catholics contains these words: 'The tolerant man is avoided as much as possible by every high-minded person—the man who is tolerant in every emergency is alone lovable.'

"The phrase 'dogmatic intolerance' does not mean that Catholics are to be dogmatically intolerant of other people, but merely that inside the Catholic church they are to be intolerant of any variance from the dogma of the church.

* * * *

"Similar criticism can be made of many of your quotations. But, beyond this, by what right do you ask me to assume responsibility for every statement that may be made in any encyclical letter? As you will find in the Catholic encyclopedia (Vol. V. p. 414), these encyclicals are not articles of our faith. The syllabus of Pope Pius IX, which you quote on the possible conflict between church and state, is declared by Cardinal Newman to have 'no dogmatic force.' You seem to think that Catholics must be all alike in mind and in heart, as though they had been poured into and taken out of the same mold.

"You have no more right to ask me to defend as part of my faith every statement coming from a prelate than I should to ask you to accept as an article of your religious faith every statement of an Episcopal bishop or of your political faith every statement of a President of the United States.

"So little are these matters of the essence of my faith that I, a devout Catholic since childhood, never heard of them until I read your letter. Nor can you quote from the canons of our faith a syllable that would make us less good citizens than non-Catholics. In fact and in truth, I have been taught the spirit of tolerance, and when you, Mr. Marshall, as a Protestant-Episcopalian, join with me in saying the Lord's Prayer, we both pray, not to 'my father,' but to 'our father.'

* * * *

"But I go further to demonstrate that the true construction of your quotations by the leaders of Catholic thought is diametrically the opposite of what you suggest it to be."

"Your first proposition is that Catholics believed that other religions should, in the United States, be tolerated only as a matter of favor and that there should be an established church. You may find some dream of an ideal of a Catholic state, having no relation whatever to actuality, somewhere described. But, voicing the best Catholic thought on this subject, Dr. John A. Ryan, professor of moral theology of the Catholic University of America, writes in 'The State and the Church" of the encyclical of Pope Leo XIII quoted by you:

"'In practice, however, the foregoing propositions have full application only to the completely Catholic state * * * The propositions of Pope Pius IX condemning the toleration of non-Catholic sects do not now, says Father Pohle, apply even to Spain or the South American republics, to say nothing of countries possessing a greatly mixed population. He lays down the following general rule: 'When several religions have firmly established themselves and taken root in the same territory, nothing else remains for the state than to exercise tolerance toward them all, or, as conditions exist today, to make complete religious liberty for individual and religious bodies a principle of government.'

"That is good Americanism and good Catholicism. And Father Pohle, one of the great writers of the Catholic Church, says further:

"'If religious freedom has been accepted and sworn to as a fundamental law in a constitution, the obligation to show this tolerance is binding in conscience.'

* * * *

"The American prelates of our church stoutly defend our constitutional declaration of equality of all religions before the law. Cardinal O'Connell has said: 'Thus to every American citizen has come the blessed inheritance of civil, political and religious liberty safeguarded by the American Constitution—the right to worship God according to the dictates of his conscience.'

"Archbishop Ireland has said: 'The Constiution of the United States reads: "Congress shall make no laws respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof." It was a great leap forward on the part of the new nation toward personal liberty and the consecration of the rights of conscience.'

"Archbishop Dowling, referring to any conceivable union of church and state, says: 'So many conditions for its accomplishment are lacking in every government of the world that the thesis may well be relegated to the limbo of defunct controversies.'

"I think you have taken your thesis from this limbo of defunct controversies.

"Archbishop Ireland again said: 'Religious freedom is the basic life of America, the cement running through all its walls and battlements, the safeguard of its peace and prosperity. Violate religious freedom against Catholics, our swords are at once unsheathed. Violate it in favor of Catholics, against non-Catholics, no less readily do they leap from the scabbard.'

"Cardinal Gibbons has said: 'American Catholics rejoice in our separation of church and state, and I can conceive no combination of circumstances likely to arise which would make a union desirable to either church or state.'

"For ourselves we thank God that we live in America, 'in this happy country of ours,' to quote Mr. Roosevelt, where 'religion and liberty are natural allies.'

"And referring particularly to your quotation from Pope Pius IX, Dr. Ryan, in the state and church, says: 'Pope Pius IX did not intend to declare that separation is always inadvisable, for he had more than once expressed his satisfaction with the arrangement obtaining in the United States.'"

"With these great Catholics I stand squarely in support of the provision of the Constitution which guarantees religious freedom and equality.

"I come now to the speculation with which theorists have played for generations as to the respective functions of church and state.

"You claim that the Roman Catholic Church holds that, if conflict arises, the church must prevail over the state. You write as though there were some Catholic authority or tribunal to decide with respect to such conflict. Of course there is no such thing. As Dr. Ryan writes:

"'The Catholic doctrine concedes, nay, maintains, that the state is coordinate with the church and equally indepent and supreme in its own distinct sphere.'

"What is the Protestant position? The articles of religion of your Protestant Episcopal Church (xxxvii) declare: 'The power of the civil magistrate extendeth to all men, as well clergy as laity, in all things temporal; but hath no authority in things purely spiritual.'

"Your church, just as mine, is voicing the injunction of our common Saviour to render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and unto God the things that are God's.

"What is this conflict about which you talk? It may exist in some lands which do not guarantee religious freedom. But in the wildest dreams of your imagination you can not conjure up a possible conflict between religious principle and political duty in the United States, except on the unthinkable hypothesis that some law were to be passed which violated the common morality of all God-fearing men.

* * * *

"And if you can conjure up such a conflict, how would a Protestant resolve it? obviously by the dictates of his conscience. That is exactly what a Catholic would do. There is no ecclesiastical tribunal which would have the slightest claim upon the obedience of Catholic communicants in the resolution of such a conflict. As Cardinal Gibbons said of the supposition that 'the Pope were to issue commands in purely civil matters.'

"'He would be offending not only against civil society, but against God, and violating an authority as truly from God as his own. Any Catholic who clearly recognized this would not be bound to obey the Pope; or rather his conscience would bind him absolutely to disobey, because with Catholics conscience is the supreme law which under no circumstances can we ever lawfully disobey.'

"Archbishop Ireland said: 'To priest, to bishop or to Pope (I am willing to consider the hypothesis) who should attempt to rule in matters civil and political, to influence the citizen beyond the range of their own orbit of jurisdiction that are the things of God,' the answer is quickly made: Back to your own sphere of rights and duties, back to the things of God.'

"Bishop England, referring to our Constitution, said: 'Let the Pope and the cardinals and all the powers of the Catholic world united make the least encroachment on that Constitution, we will protect it with our lives. Summon a general council—let that council interfere in the mode of our electing but an assistant to a turnkey of a prison—we deny the right, we reject the usurpation.'

* * * *

"Our Supreme Court has marked out the spheres of influence of church and State in a case from which you quote copiously, Watson vs. Jones, 13 Wall. 723: But you refrain from quoting this statement: 'The right to organize voluntary religious associations, to assist in the expression and dissemination of any religious doctrine, and to create tribunals for the decision of controverted questions of faith within the association, and for the ecclesiastical government of all of the individual members, the congregation and officers within the general association, is unquestioned.

* * * *

"'It is of the essence of these religious unions and of their right to establish tribunals for the decision of questions arising among themselves that these decisions could be binding in all cases of ecclesiastical cognizance, subject only to such appeal as the organism itself provides for.'

"That is the state's attitude toward the church. Archbishop Ireland thus puts the church's attitude toward the state:

"'To the Catholic obedience of law is a religious obligation, binding in God's name the conscience of the citizen—both Americanism and Catholicism bow to the sway of personal conscience.'

"Under our system of government, the electorate intrusts to its officers of every faith the solemn duty of action according to the dictates of conscience. I may fairly refer once more to my own record to support these truths. No man, clerical or lay, has ever directly or indirectly attempted to exercise church influence on my administration of any office I have ever held, nor asked me to show special favor to Catholics or exercise discrimination against non-Catholics.

"It is a well-known fact that I have made all of my appointments to public office on the basis of merit and have never asked any man about his religious belief. In the first month of this year there gathered in the capitol at Albany the first governor's cabinet that ever sat in the State.

* * * *

"It was composed, under my appointment, of two Catholics, thirteen Protestants and one Jew. The man closest to me in the administration of the government of the State of New York is he who bears the title of assistant to the governor. He had been connected with the governor's office for 30 years, in subordinate capacities, until I promoted him to the position which makes him the sharer with me of my every thought and hope and ambition in the administration of the State. He is a Protestant, a Republican and a thirty-second degree Mason.

"In my public life I have exemplified that complete separation of church from state which is the faith of American Catholic today.

"I next come to education. You admit that the Supreme Court guaranteed to Catholics the right to maintain their parochial schools, and you ask me whether they would have so ruled if it had been shown that children in parochial schools were taught that the state should show discrimination between religions, that Protestants should be recognized only as a matter of favor, that they should be intolerant to non-Catholics, and that the laws of the state could be flouted on the ground of imaginary conflict. My summary answer is: I and all my children went to a parochial school. I never heard of any such stuff being taught or of anybody who claimed that it was. That any group of Catholics would teach it is unthinkable.

"You next challenge the action of the Rota in annulling the Marlborough marriage. You suggest that the Rota by annulling the marriage (where the civil courts recognized it, but granted only a divorce) is interfering with the civil jurisdiction. That might be so if anybody claimed that the decree of the Rota had any effect under the laws of America, or any other nation of the world, but you must know that it has no such effect and that nobody claims it has. The decree merely defined the status of the parties as communicants of the church.

"Your church refuses to recognize the ecclesiastical validity of divorces granted by the civil tribunals. Your church has its tribunals to administer its laws for the government of its members as communicants of your church. But their decrees have no bearing upon the status of your members as citizens of the United States. There is no difference in that respect between your tribunals and the Rota.

"Finally you come to Mexico. By inference from the brief of a distinguished lawyer you intimate that it is the purpose of organized Catholics to seek intervention by the United States. Now, I never read Mr. Guthrie's brief. I do not have to read it to reply to you, because the pastoral letter of the Catholic Episcopate of the United States in unmistakable words disclaimed any such intention. I do not see how, with complete candor, you could write to me about Mexico without quoting the following from the pastoral letter.

"What, therefore, we have written is no call on the faithful here or elsewhere to purely human action. It is no interposition of our influence either as bishops or as citizens to reach those who possess political power anywhere on earth, at least of all in our own country, to the end that they should intervene with armed force in the internal affairs of Mexico for the protection of the church. Our duty is done when by telling the story we sound a warning to Christian civilization that its foundations are again being attacked and undermined. For the rest, God will bring his will to pass in His own good time and His own God way.

* * * *

"My personal attitude, wholly consistent with that of my church, is that I believe in peace on earth, good will to men, and that no country has a right to interfere in the internal affairs of any other country. I recognize the right of no church to ask armed intervention by this country in the affairs of another, merely for the defense of the rights of a church. But I do recognize the propriety of church action to request the good offices of this country to help the oppressed of any land, as those good offices have been so often used for the protection of Protestant missionaries in the Orient and the persecuted Jews of Eastern Europe.

"I summarize my creed as an American Catholic. I believe in the worship of God according to the faith and practice of the Roman Catholic Church.

"I recognize no power in the institution of my church to interfere with the operation of the Constitution of the United States or the enforcement of the law of the land.

"I believe in absolute freedom of conscience for all men and equality of all churches, all sects and all beliefs before the law as a matter of right and not as a matter of favor.

"I believe in the absolute separation of church and state and in the strict enforcement of the provision of the Constitution that Congress shall make no laws respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof.

"I believe that no tribunal of any church has any power to make any decree of any force in the law of the land, other than to establish the status of its own communicants within its own church.

"I believe in the support of the public school as one of the corner stones of American liberty.

"I believe in the right of every parent to choose whether his child shall be educated in the public school or in a religious school supported by those of his own faith.

"I believe in the principle of noninterference by this country in the internal affairs of other nations and that we should stand steadfastly against any such interference by whomsoever it be urged, and I believe in the common brotherhood of man under the fatherhood of God.

"In this spirit I join with fellow Americans of all creeds in a fervent prayer that never again in this land will any public servant be challenged because of the faith in which he has tried to walk humbly with his God.

"Very truly yours,

ALFRED E. SMITH."

APPLE-BLOSSOM QUEEN TO HAVE HIGHEST FLOAT

Trees to Be Trimmed and Wires Raised for Shenandoah Parade.

FETE APRIL 27 AND 28

Winchester, Va., April 17.—As Queen Shenandoah of the fourth annual apple blossoms festival here April 27 and 28, Mrs. Kenneth N. Gilpin, of Clarke county and Washington, daughter of United States Senator L. D. Tyson, of Tennessee, will be seated so high on a throne mounted on a float of gold and silver that branches of trees will have to be cut off and electric and telephone wires raised on streets on which the second day's parade will move.

The queen's float will be the largest in the festival parade. It will be erected on the longest and widest chassis obtainable, and the throne will be 15 feet above the street. From the dais of the float the queen will ascend a broad stairway to the throne chair, which will be decorated with gold leaf, and there attended by ladies in waiting and flower girls.

Nelson F. Richardson, director of parades, said today that city authorities and officials of power and telephone companies would begin the work of removing low-hanging tree branches and raising wires tomorrow, in order that the passage of the queen's float may not be obstructed.

With the festival dates definitely set for April 27 and 28, Richards said he expected a flood of applications early this week for parade positions from many parts of Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland, the District of Columbia and eastern Pennsylvania. His office had been advised recently that many interests desired to participate, but could make no arrangements until the dates had been set.

The 25-acre field of city property to be used by the cadet corps of the Staunton Military academy during its 10-day encampment here was in readiness today. The cadets and faculty members, numbering about 650, will arrive here by special train April 20, detraining at the Lee-Jackson highway crossing on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad and marching to camp, a few hundred yards distant. In addition to taking an active part in all festival programs features, the band, classical and jazz orchestras and dramatic club of the academy will repeat the "S. M. A. Frolicks of 1927" at a local theater.

By request of the 650 young women of the Harrisonburg State Teachers college, they will be escorted in the second day's parade by the band of the Greenbrier Military academy of Lewisburg, W. Va.

INVINCIBLES OBSERVE FREEDOM ANNIVERSARY

Celebrates Slave Emancipation in District of Columbia by Act of 1862.

GIVE LINCOLN SIDELIGHTS

The Blaine Invincibles, oldest colored Republican organization in the District of Columbia, yesterday celebrated the sixty-fifth anniversary of the emancipation of slaves here through an act of Congress, April 16, 1862, "for the release of certain persons held to service or labor in the District of Columbia."

The meeting was addressed by Thomas H. R. Clarke, official of the recently amalgamated Equal Rights league and National Race congress, and Mrs. May D. Lightfoot, executive secretary of the Republican State committee for the District of Columbia. Francis Wells, who presided, called attention to emancipation of slaves here by Congress as contrasted with emancipation elsewhere by presidential proclamation or by State legislation.

Mrs. Lightfoot spoke of Abraham Lincoln and emancipation, giving interesting sidelights of civil war times in connection with activities of her father, who, as a member of the quartermaster corps, was closely associated with the Great Emancipator. Clark spoke of the negro's advancement as a justification of emancipation.

Other speakers were Miss E. A. Chase, J. Franklin Wilson and James W. Jackson, a 74-year-old employe of the government printing office, who was a beneficiary of the congressional act of 1862.

Mystery Sloop Seen By U. S. Ship, Claim

(By the Associated Press.)

Norfolk, Va., April 17.—Although the "mystery" man, sighted early last week in a small sloop 40 miles off the Virginia capes by the American steamer Levisa, has not been seen by coast guard vessels, the American steamer Westerner several days ago is reported also to have sighted a small vessel far out at sea. Unlike the Levisa, the Westerner did not come close enough to the small boat to identify it.

When the Levisa sighted the little craft she was flying distress signals. The lone occupant said he was without food, having been at sea, from Jacksonville, for three weeks. He was given provisions but declined to state his name or destination.

Street Car With 13 Aboard Leaps Track; Strikes Auto

Pattie V. Aylor, motorman for the Washington Railway & Electric Co., is not superstitious by nature. Nevertheless there were thirteen passengers on his street car when it jumped the track yesterday at Georgia avenue and Upshur street, and without injury to anyone crashed to a stop against a passing automobile.

Lieut. Frank A. Crawford, attached to the surgeon general's office, his wife and their 2-year-old daughter, Frances, occupied the automobile which was struck by the derailed car. Here the hoodoo figures again enter the story, for Lieut. Crawford lives at 513 Whittier street northwest.

Both automobile and street car were moving slowly when the car left the track, according to witnesses. Its wheels cut deep in the roadway for a hundred feet before it brought up against the sedan of Lieut. Crawford, who had drawn to the curb in an effort to avoid the collision. The automobile was badly damaged.

S. R. Royal, 647 Park road northwest, the conductor, and Motorman Aylor, of 608 I street northwest, attributed the derailment to the forward truck jumping a switch at a point where the track is under repair. Traffic was tied up for half an hour.

You can certainly get the most automobile for the least money when you read and heed the used car ads every morning in The Post.

"You Need a Diuretic!"

To Be Well There Must Be Proper Kidney Function.

THE part played by the kidneys and their importance to bodily health should be clearly understood.

The kidneys are the blood filters. If their action becomes sluggish, they do not thoroughly cleanse the blood of poisonous wastes. Such impurities may make one dull, tired and achy with often a toxic backache, drowsy headaches and dizziness. A common symptom of imperfect function is scanty or burning excretions.

Doan's Pills, stimulant diuretic, aid the kidneys in their eliminative work. 50,000 users have publicly recommended Doan's. Ask your neighbor!

Mrs. C. A. Curry, Graduate Nurse, 802 Maple St., Zeigler, Ill., says: "I have recommended Doan's Pills for twenty years and the results have justified my faith. I was bothered with backache, headache and dizziness and attributed it to my kidneys as their action was sluggish. Doan's Pills soon relieved me and I am glad to endorse them."

Frank Marks, 580 E. Chestnut St., Wauseon, Ohio, says: "My kidneys were sluggish and the secretions were scanty and burned in passing. My back ached and I had dizzy sensations. Doan's Pills proved effective and I continued their use until I was a well man again. I am always glad to recommend Doan's Pills."

GOV. SMITH'S RELIGION.

The country will read with intense interest Gov. Alfred E. Smith's reply to the questions propounded by Charles C. Marshall, bearing upon Gov. Smith's religious beliefs and his interpretation of the attitude of the Roman Catholic Church toward civil government. It is unnecessary to say that Gov. Smith's letter reveals his stalwart Americanism and devotion to the Constitution, but it may be added that he displays the highest ability in his exposition of the various phases of this delicate subject of "church and state." No one who reads his letter can doubt either his sincerity or his loyalty to both his country and his church. He shows that loyalty to one is not incompatible with loyalty to the other.

It is something of a reproach to the American spirit that a question should arise as to the entire devotion of Catholic citizens to the Constitution of the United States. When the roll of American heroes, statesmen and jurists is called it is seen that the names of Catholics are mingled with those of other denominations, all giving their lives and labors to their country with whole-hearted love. Before Washington became commander in chief of the Continental army, Catholic Americans had shed their blood for America, and some of his most capable lieutenants were Catholics. Two Chief Justices of the Supreme Court of the Catholic faith have helped to make that tribunal illustrious. Congress has always numbered Catholics among its members, and Catholics have served in all the legislatures of the States. In all the wars and on all battlefields, Catholics have shed their blood for the Stars and Stripes. It seems superfluous, therefore, for any man to defend the loyalty of American Catholics to the Constitution and the flag.

Gov. Smith's reply is of special interest, of course, in view of the prospect that he may be nominated by the Democratic party for the Presidency. Can a loyal Catholic serve as President, with entire devotion to the Constitution and the laws, and without any danger of being influenced by the hierarchy of his church? That is the question which many Protestants ask; some of them frankly skeptical and others anxious to have ancient prejudices removed. Gov. Smith has answered them, so far as he is concerned, and his answer ought to satisfy any reasonable citizen.

It is not generally known that an effort was made to inject the religious question into the campaign of 1908. A citizen whose name has not been disclosed wrote to President Roosevelt, asking him if it would not be wise for William H. Taft to deny a rumor that he was a member of the Roman Catholic Church. President Roosevelt replied as follows from the White House, under date of October 16, 1908:

> Dear Mr.———: I thank you for your letter of the 14th inst. If asked by Mr. Taft, I should most emphatically advise him against making any declaration as to his religious belief such as your friend suggests. If there is one thing for which we stand in this country, it is for complete religious freedom and for the right of every man to worship his Creator as his conscience dictates. It is an emphatic negation of this right to cross-examine a man on his religious views before being willing to support him for office. Is he a good man, and is he fit for the office? These are the only questions which there is a right to ask, and to both of these in Mr. Taft's case the answer must be in the affirmative. In my own cabinet there are at present Catholic, Protestant and Jew—the Protestants being of various denominations. I am incapable of discriminating between them, or judging any one of them, save as to the way in which he performs his public duties. The rule of conduct applicable to Catholic, Protestant and Jew, as regards lesser offices, is just as applicable as regards the Presidency.

It should be the desire and aim of every patriotic American to exclude religious discussions in dealing with government. In times of stress and danger there is no question as to the loyalty of citizens of all religious beliefs. They join the colors, and without distinction of creed they go forth to battle, "marching to the quickstep of the Union." Why should dissensions arise in times of peace?

"Is he a good man? Is he fit for the office?" These are the questions that should be raised whenever any man is proposed for office. No man should be helped in or kept out because of his religious beliefs. Unless a candidate is otherwise fit for office his religion, whatever it is, will not make him fit; and if he is fit, his religion, whatever it is, does not make him unfit.

DIPLOMATIC FORGERIES.

The State Department has finally admitted that documents pertaining to Mexico have been abstracted and forged. Apparently the work was done in the American embassy in the City of Mexico, but that point has not been made clear. Members of the embassy staff have been questioned, and steps have been taken to safeguard the delivery of papers en route to the embassy.

Over a year ago Ambassador Sheffield suggested that Mexican assistants in his office be replaced by former service men of the A. E. F. The Ambassador expressed anxiety as to the integrity of the files, and took pains to keep them under lock and key as much as possible. But some of the papers disappeared, either from the embassy or while they were in transit from Washington; and after interpolations had been made they were delivered to the Mexican government and reached the hands of President Calles. The nature of these papers and the manner in which they were changed have not been revealed.

Presumably the misunderstandings that may have resulted from this trickery have been removed by direct interviews between President Calles and Ambassador Sheffield. Therefore it is improbable that the State Department is laboring under any anxiety as to the effect which the forgeries may have upon further negotiations with Mexico. But there is a possibility that other forgeries may be extant, not only among the Mexican papers, but among others relating to Central America.

TOO MUCH OF A GOOD THING.

Unless some efficient means shall be devised for the disposition of the surplus pack of green peas during the next few weeks the outlook for the growers of this vegetable in the season of 1927 will be extremely dark.

Last fall the growers in Wisconsin undertook to raise a fund of $300,000 with which to conduct a national advertising campaign. But the movement failed to meet sufficient support from the growers and packers to make it effective, and it was abandoned.

That the business is overdone seems evident from the reports of the growth of the pea-packing industry. In 1910 the total pack of the United States was 4,347,000 cases, of 24 cans to the case. In 1918 the pack reached 10,898,222 cases. But that was not the peak, for in 1924 reports of the canneries showed 19,315,000 for that year and the average for the past three years has been in excess of 18,000,000. Apparently the consumers have not responded with their orders in the same ratio as the increase in the production. The result is that the canners find themselves with stocks on hand sufficient to meet the ordinary demand of the trade for a period of fully two years.

In the State of New York, which may be regarded as the center of the industry, 34,990 acres were planted to peas for the canneries, besides 7,800 acres on which peas were grown "for table use," in 1926. In the same year the total acreage sown to "cannery peas" was 218,400 acres, besides 36,820 for the markets throughout the United States. While there has been no glut of "market peas" reported, there were altogether too many acres sown to contract, or cannery peas during the past three years.

It should be explained that peas for the canneries are grown upon a basis that differs materially from other agricultural methods unless it be sugar beets, and some other vegetable crops. The canner enters into a contract or agreement with the farmer to plant, or sow, a certain number of acres. The canner furnishes the seed and agrees to take the crop at a price agreed upon. The farmer takes no risk of finding a market, and if the season proves a good one for peas he is sure of a handsome return for his labor. Except during the growing season he is not worried over the weather, for as soon as the pods are filled the crop is harvested and hauled to the cannery. Rainy weather does not hinder the marketing as is the case with hay or grains, and it is perhaps for this reason that the farmers who grow peas for the packers proved so indifferent to the proposition to start an advertising campaign.

Perhaps after the farmer finds that the packers propose to curtail their contracts with growers by at least 30 per cent for the season of 1927 there may be a change in his views. Otherwise the revamped Haugen-McNary bill ought to provide for the disposition of surplus canned peas as well as cotton, corn, hogs, wheat and tobacco.

A TRIUMPH FOR BRITISH WOMEN.

The perseverance and determination of the women of Great Britain have at length achieved a notable triumph, for the prime minister announced in the house of commons on Wednesday that a bill extending the franchise equally to both sexes will be introduced in the next session of parliament. This announcement was made with the concurrence and sanction of the cabinet, and it brings to an end a protracted fight in that body on the subject. Prime Minister Baldwin was pledged to the equalization of the franchise since the last general election, but many of his colleagues in the ministry would have preferred, mainly from political considerations, to maintain the voters' register on its present footing. Various alternative proposals were made, including one of considerable merit—namely, to give the vote to men and women on equal terms, but to raise the voting age, for all alike, from 21 to 25. This solution of the problem would have been both an equitable and a common-sense one, but it was ultimately rejected in favor of the original proposition of the prime minister.

As the arrangement now stands the voting age for women will be reduced from its present minimum of 30 to 21, with a simple residence qualification, and the two sexes will thus be put on exactly the same basis as far as the parliamentary franchise is concerned. The new plan means that, if the women so wish and if they exercise to the full the rights now about to be conferred on them, they can become the real rulers of Great Britain. That, in practice, this will occur is extremely unlikely, for many of them, like many of the men, will never cast a vote, and those who do will be guided by exactly the same political considerations as influence the male members of the family, with this distinction, however, that the votes of the women will not necessarily go in the same direction as those of their fathers, brothers, husbands or sweethearts. In other words, the women will largely do their own thinking and arrive at their own conclusions. Some of them, it is true, but not all, will follow the family tradition and be conservative, liberal or labor, just as their forbears have been for years.

In estimating the new influence in British politics it must be remembered that, as Lady Astor very wisely pointed out, women have no objection to being represented by men, but the men must be of the best type. On this point the women's influence can make itself felt and respected. They will be in a majority of over 2,000,000. At present they show a total of 8,800,000 as against 11,800,000 men voters, but, with the 5,126,000 extra votes which the new legislation will confer on the women while conferring none on the men, the preponderance in favor of the former is easy to calculate. Such a formidable element of the electorate will be well worth winning, and by insisting, as they can insist, that those, whether men or women, who seek to win it must be of the proper stamp, the female voters of Great Britain can exercise an enormous influence for good in the councils of the nation. They may not be able immediately to rise to the occasion, but time and experience will teach them how to use to the best advantage the power they are about to acquire. It is quite possible that a new era has dawned in British parliamentary life.

CHARITY AS AN INVESTMENT.

President Lewis, of George Washington university, in his address at the recent annual meeting of the Associated Charities, performed a valuable service by making clear the fact that the services rendered by these voluntary agencies of family welfare, as well as the material relief disbursed by them, represent a valuable investment for the community, an investment the dividends from which are shared by every citizen.

When the trained social workers of this society visit the families brought to their attention because of illness or unemployment, desertion or other maladjustment, immediate and adequate relief is given when necessary, such as food, fuel, clothing, etc., or the payment of rent. But these visitors do not stop with a temporary relief, for their task is to find out what a given family may need in order to hold together in the face of some disaster, whether it be medical care for the wage earner laid up by illness, or improved conditions for the children, that their health may not suffer and that they may be kept in school. Through the experience of these trained workers all available resources of the city, both public and private, are continually being drawn upon as need may be for the benefit of those under their care.

Underlying all this work and always in view is the important object of enabling the family broken by misfortune to carry on its own responsibilities, even to the point of helping to find employment wherever possible for its members able to work, or, it may be conserving health and strength so that they can hold a job. It is this conserving of the homes of the less fortunate and making them serve their rightful purpose to the children born therein which constitutes the greatest part of the value of organized social work in the community.

The audited figures published by the Associated Charities and Citizens Relief association show that the expenditures for material relief and service amounted last year to $97,488. This left an expenditure of $21,336 as the total cost of administration of the entire organization, maintenance of office, accounting and subscription department, which is about 17.4 per cent of the entire year's disbursements.

The men and women who are responsible for the conduct of the Associated Charities and Citizens Relief association have a high standing in this community. They are giving of their time and means to meet a very serious increase in the number of families needing material assistance. It is the duty, and should be the privilege, of every public-spirited man and woman in Washington to respond so far as they may be able to the appeal now being made by the Associated Charities and Citizens Relief association.

THE CONGESTION PROBLEM.

The city traffic conference which recently met in Chicago brought forth nearly a score of suggestions for the relief of the problem of congestion in metropolitan centers. The recommendations, all of them backed up by thorough surveys and years of expert study, might be grouped roughly into four classifications, namely:

Prohibit parking in congested areas.

Establish a simple and uniform traffic code.

Widen streets and guard against inadequate future construction.

Speed up transit to the maximum.

This appears to be an adequate program, one which, if adopted, would effect great relief. It does not seem beyond the bounds of reason to prophesy that eventually such a program, modified to meet local requirements, will be universally adopted.

Parking prohibitions are inevitable. As the nation approaches the saturation point of automobile use public sentiment probably will undergo a change, and the automobile owner will come to the realization that the parked machine is a hindrance to traffic. When the individual owner makes this admission, the battle will be won. In the meantime, of course, parking must continue to be prohibited in certain sections by police regulations. Here and there parking places even now are springing up in which an automobile may be left, not on public property, for a nominal fee. This system should be extended.

The uniform code project is so sane and logical as to need no defense. The value of wider streets also is self-demonstrating. High speed traffic, in existence here and elsewhere, has proved its efficacy already, without at the same time increasing accidents.

Until comparatively recently, traffic has "just growed," like little Eva. It is small wonder that it has become such an involved problem. The fact that it is being studied scientifically, however, presages well for the future, and it is not too much to hope that before long a simple method will be found to control autobomiles to the best interests of both driver and pedestrian.

Soldier and Diplomat.

Philadelphia Public Ledger: The retirement of Maj. Gen. Crowder as Ambassador to Cuba will bring to an end an exceptional career in the public service. Though primarily an army officer, some of his most important work has been diplomatic in nature. During the American intervention in Cuba, from 1906 to 1908, he was secretary of state and justice there, and he went back in 1919 on invitation of the Cuban government for consultation on election law changes. In 1921 he was in Havana as "personal representative" of President Harding, who appointed him Ambassador in 1923 after a special law had been passed by Congress, made necessary by the statutory prohibition against army officers in the diplomatic service. His task as Ambassador has been delicate and important. Because of his special relations between Cuba and the United States, our Ambassador there is regarded as a sort of confidential adviser of the Cuban government. He had his troubles, but during the last two or three years the situation has been characterized by particularly smooth sailing.

Spring Madness

By ROBERT QUILLEN

IN the spring a young maid's fancy fondly turns to thoughts of love, but a middle-aged gentleman who has a daughter of his own is privileged to throw a little cold water.

Romance is beautiful, if you are young and spring is in the air and the fire of life is in your veins, but romance takes no account of mathematics and it doesn't compare values.

All of the creatures, large and small, go a little mad when the sap rises and the buds swell. Nature, jealously bent upon perpetuating her handiwork, prompts the creatures to woo and mate.

And this prompting, however beautifully we may describe it, and whatsoever ecstacies it may wring from the heart of the poet, is much the same in mortals as in other creatures.

Will you, dear maiden, give your heart and life to the lad, the old bachelor or the family-burdened widower who now courts so ardently?

Wait just a moment. Times have changed. Matrimony is no longer the choice of two evils.

Suppose you have a job—a good job that pays you enough to live well, with enough left over to fatten an account in the savings bank.

You have liberty, freedom from responsibility and anxiety—no one to nag at you, no one chained at your side to bore you.

But you say matrimony is better than a lonely old age?

What you mean by "lonely old age" is a dependent old age—inability to work and the necessity of swallowing your pride along with the bread provided by charity.

Your savings can obviate that. An "old maid" who has money enough can hire somebody to be as good to her as aged husbands and married children are to old women.

Don't deny yourself a man if a man is what you want. But weigh the disadvantages carefully. Is the man you think you love worth the sacrifice of liberty, the joy of having your own spending money, the freedom from a critic who assumes the right to be in some measure your boss?

There was a time when failure to get a man was tragic. Now, when woman has all the advantages men enjoy plus the privileges of her own sex, the man who is worth more than the privilege of being single must be a wonder.

It isn't poverty that makes "poor relations" objectionable, but the qualities that keep them poor.

There's just one kind of regular he-man. He acts natural, and doesn't give a darn what other people think of it.

Correct this sentence: "When the new neighbors moved in," said she, "I didn't sit at the window to observe their furniture."

FISH AND SHIPS.

It is all very well to maintain that everything will be bright and beautiful if only we can get back to nature and nature's idea of how things should be done, but the German engineer who says that he can make an ocean liner that will move faster than an express train if only he is allowed to construct it on the same lines as a trout probably knows more about trout than he does about ocean liners protests the Manchester Jardine weekly. Granted that the trout is an ambitious animal and will do its best to accommodate almost anything from a minnow up to another trout almost as big as itself. But how on earth is a trout going to hold (among other things):

An American bar,
A full-sized ballroom.
An old English dining room in the baronial style,
A French restaurant,
A Turkish baths establishment,
A suite of beauty parlors,
A palm court with jazz band,
A concert hall,

to say nothing of a few old-fashioned oddments like engine rooms and somewhere for the captain to keep his binnacles, belaying pins and other obsolete nautical accessories? All these details—and many more—are now expected on any well-found liner, and one of these days it will be necessary to add a covered cabrank where taxis can wait in wet weather. However, if anybody can build a trout to hold all this the result will certainly add a new possibility to fishing stories.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Dr. Wiley as a Coiner.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Dr. Wiley may be good at detecting the presence of benzoate of soda in canned goods, but as a word-coiner he is a miserable failure. Again the old adage, "Shoemaker, stick to your last," has an inning. REGULAR.

A Word to the Police.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Maj. Hesse has issued a public statement that he intends to drive out of business all speakeasies, and put an end to the illicit sale of intoxicants in Washington. Also he says he intends the police force shall be a valuable adjunct to the Federal prohibition agencies. It is commendable in Maj. Hesse to drive out the speakeasies, &c., but to me it looks as if he would more deserve the thanks of the public if he would use his police force to drive out or capture the hundreds of burglars, holdups and purse snatchers now infesting Washington. The streets of the city should be made safe, and the homes protected. That is much more important than closing up some place where it is charged liquor is sold. Murders have not been infrequent, but convictions of murderers have been excessively infrequent. Let the prohibition agents of the government run their own auto for awhile, and let our police force attend to its own knitting of hunting out criminals.

RANDOLPH WHARTON.

Community Recreation Centers.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Having formerly lived in Chicago, where the community recreation center has been established with much success, I am glad to note through your columns that the system is to be adopted in Washington. The community recreation center will provide in each community a central place in which children and grown-ups can indulge in their favorite outdoor sports. While Washington has beautiful parks, the children can not play in them, and the other recreational facilities are too distant for the youth of the various communities into which the city is divided to enjoy their benefits.

I have noted the proposal to create community recreation centers on Analostan island, in the section near Takoma and in Columbia Heights. Land for these centers should be acquired at once in order that they may be available for the long spring and summer season which is opening. I am at a loss particularly to understand why the Takoma area has not been secured for the recreation center. According to reports, an unimproved tract of 25 acres north of Sheridan street, between Third and Fifth streets, has been available for purchase since March. Your paper states that it is the only available land in that region where the National Capital park and planning commission proposes to establish the first recreation center in its broad program of such centers for Washington. What is more surprising to me is the fact that, although this is the first time officials have been able to buy school and park land within the price limitation fixed by Congress a year ago, the chance has not been seized.

I do not understand why there should be any delay in this matter, and hope that this and other tracts can be speedily acquired in order that there may be provided close to the homes of our people these recreational facilities which are so sorely needed. Nothing will contribute so much to the physical and moral uplift of the race as healthy outdoor sports. They will do much toward allaying the spirit of unrest among youth. Can you not lend your support to this splendid movement? W. C. BENSON.

PEN WOMEN HONOR MRS. SOUTHWORTH BY TREE DEDICATION

Oak Stands in Plot Adjoining Old Georgetown Home of Novelist.

ADDRESSES ARE GIVEN BY MR. AND MRS. SETON

Others, Who Knew Woman Writer, Also Speak at Exercises.

The memory of Mrs. E. D. E. N. Southworth, earliest of American women novelists, who as a resident of Georgetown, wrote many of her books in her quaint little home standing high on the shores of the Potomac, at Thirty-sixth and Prospect streets, was honored yesterday afternoon by the National League of Pen Women, when a red oak tree was dedicated to her memory.

The tree, given and planted through courtesy of the park commissioner, Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, stands in the little plot which adjoins the old home of Mrs. Southworth, and which has been set aside as a park dedicated to her memory.

Ernest Thompson Seton, founder of the Boy Scouts of America, paid tribute to the memory of Mrs. Southworth, and during the course of his remarks referred to the dwindling forest lands of the country and the need of wise tree planting. He quoted an axiom of the Woodcraft club to the effect that, "He that destroyeth a tree robbeth his people of a good thing and is justified only if he has need of the room or the timber." For his ill doing he can compensate by planting two trees as an act of patriotism, he said.

Mrs. Seton, national president of the League of American Pen Women, gave the address before Pen Women, a troop of Girl Scouts and one of Boy Scouts. Mrs. Seton referred to the "brilliant and inventive power of Mrs. Southworth's imagination," which produced more than 50 novels widely read in the author's day.

Remarks also were made by Miss Jennie Kedrick, who as a child often was a guest in the home of Mrs. Southworth, and by Ethel Tomkins Moose, of Louisiana, who as a girl had known Mrs. Southworth, and whose own novel, "The Gift Divine," contains a chapter devoted to a description of her visit to the Southworth home. Mrs. Josephine Beach, of New York, recited Dana Burnett's "Glory of the Day."

BREAKFAST TO HOOVER FAILS TO QUIET RUMOR

overshadow the evident presidential gesture as represented by the breakfast invitation was that Mr. Hoover was not present at the cabinet meeting on Friday which immediately proceeded the bombshell pronouncement. This served to destroy utterly the theory that Mr. Hoover himself suggested that the President deny the recurring rumor that it was the intention to move him from the Department of Commerce to the Department of State.

As the matter stands now there is still nothing that serves to explain the remark, made with considerable show of irritation and which has evidently been regarded by Mr. Hoover's friends as an indication that the President no longer views his cabinet associate with favor and possibly suspects him of having had some hand in the persistent report that he was to succeed Mr. Kellogg.

It was suggested last night that the White House spokesman tomorrow might clear some of the doubt which was created by the remarks on Friday, but this did not serve to explain why the President himself did not seize the opportunity at the breakfast yesterday to remove any apprehension or misunderstanding which his remarks might have caused.

No other political utterance of the President, certainly, has attracted as widespread attention and aroused as much curiosity as that of the White House concerning Mr. Hoover. Accounts of the statement had no sooner been published than messages were received in Washington from all parts of the country asking for some explanation that would serve to explain what appeared in almost any light to be a direct slap at the Secretary of Commerce.

The only additional information which could be given such individuals last night was that the President had summoned Mr. Hoover back from New York on Saturday afternoon, when it had been the intention of the Secretary of Commerce to remain there until this morning; that Mr. Hoover had been one of the guests at a White House breakfast at which the matter had not been discussed and that there, temporarily, the situation rested.

There was almost as much surprise yesterday when it was learned from those who attended the breakfast that the President had said nothing about the White House statement as to when it was originally made. The supposition was on Saturday, when it was learned that Mr. Hoover would be one of the presidential guests, that the invitation was intended to quiet reports of any disagreement. The belief then was that the President would take the occasion which the breakfast would offer to explain to Mr. Hoover that what appeared to be a rebuke had not been directed at him personally but intended to silence the recurrent reports of a cabinet shift.

When this explanation failed to develop, the construction placed on the affair was that either the President considered an invitation to break bread with him sufficient recognition of harmony between himself and his Secretary of Commerce, or else did not wish to go any further than this gesture.

It was fairly apparent last night from the tenor of the words and messages of those who admire Mr. Hoover that they have been by no means satisfied, and that lacking some other more public and open demonstration of accord between the two men they will be convinced that an injury has been done Mr. Hoover in the eyes of newspaper readers all over the United States.

It was because of this very evident feeling of resentment that many observers believed that the White House spokesman tomorrow would either attempt to clarify the very literal statement made last week or contend that what had been said had been misinterpreted by the press.

In addition to Mr. Hoover, yesterday's breakfast was attended by Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, who also was invited on Saturday, and a number of senators and representatives including the following:

Speaker Nicholas Longworth, Senator James E. Watson, of Indiana; Senator Peter Norbeck, South Dakota; Senator Frederick I. Gillett, Massachusetts; Senator Porter H. Dale, of Vermont; Senator Claude Swanson, Virginia; Senator William H. King, Utah; Representative William Williamson, South Dakota, and former Senator Irvine L. Lenroot, of Wisconsin.

Women in London Hire Dance Mates

London, April 17 (By A. P.)—The hiring of professional partners by London society women is proving costly.

A school of dancing that supplies reputable and skilled partners charges a fee of from one to three guineas for a "tea dance" and two to five guineas and expenses for an evening dance.

When it is remembered that, besides the fee and "expenses"—which cover taxi fares and tips—the expense of the dinner or supper and the guest fee, if the partner is taken to a club, are included, the hire of a dance partner is a very expensive matter.

Stars' Footprints in Concrete.

Hollywood, April 17 (By A. P.).—The footprints of film stars done in concrete and signed by the makers, will become flagstones in the forecourt of Sid Grauman's new picture theater to be opened here in May. Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks, Norma and Constance Talmadge stepped gingerly into forms filled with soft concrete to "make their marks."

TAFT TO ADDRESS 30,000 YALE MEN OVER RADIO

200 Cities Throughout World Will Be Linked by Networks.

DINNER TO OPEN DRIVE

Chief Justice William Howard Taft heads the list of speakers who will address their 30,000 fellow alumni at the Yale "round-the-world dinner," to be held Wednesday evening in Washington and nearly 200 cities linked by two radio networks, aggregating 27 broadcasting stations. Within the range of his voice probably will be more than 15,000,000 listeners.

The Washington Yale alumni will dine at the Carlton hotel. Arrangements for the dinner have been completed and among the local speakers will be Prof. C. B. Tinker, sent here especially to represent the university.

Other speakers who will be heard in the radio program, are Dr. George E. Vincent, former president of the Chautauqua institution, now president of Rockefeller Foundation; Dr. James Rowland Angell, president of Yale, and Dr. Arthur Twining Hadley, president emeritus of Yale. The first two named will broadcast from New York. The Yale Glee club will go on the air from New York, and from that city also will be directed the singing of "Bright College Years," by all Yale diners. Dr. Hadley will broadcast from Chicago, and Dean Clarence W. Mendell, of Yale college, from Cleveland.

Chief Justice Taft will speak before the microphone here. This will be the first time he has spoken for a nation-wide radio network.

The fact that the Yale dinners are being held in widely separated places will make it necessary for President Angell to broadcast early in the afternoon as well as later.

It is a curiosity of timekeeping that his first speech will be heard Tuesday in Honolulu, while his second speech will be heard Thursday in Manila. Yale men in Hawaii will try to get both speeches from the air, one when their time is shortly after 11 p. m. Tuesday, and the other about 6:30 a. m. Wednesday. The alumni in Manila have planned a late breakfast Thursday, and those in Tokyo an early luncheon the same day.

Other cities in which Yale reunions will be synchronized with those in the United States include London, The Hague, Paris, Geneva, Rome, Tarsus, Cape Town, Rio de Janeiro and Buenos Aires. Yale men at sea also hope to listen in.

A score of professors and officers of Yale will travel to various parts of this country to tell the alumni the story of life at Yale today. In certain distant places Yale motion pictures will be shown.

The event, which Yale authorities believe will be by far the greatest reunion ever held, signals the opening of the campaign to add $20,000,000 to Yale's endowment.

Strike Is Considered By French Notaries

Paris, April 17 (By A. P.)—The notary, for centuries a powerful figure in French life, has lost his proud position. The notaries claim they are "starving to death" and even talk of joining a union and going on strike. They regret the days when popular belief held their greatest worry was where to store their money.

The government has doubled the prewar scale of fees, but with paper francs worth only one-fifth of their prewar value, the notaries claim the fees hardly pay the clerks who do the work. Also marriage contracts are becoming rarer, people with money to invest are doing their own investing, and more and more persons are doing business through large corporations.

ENGLISH IS GAINING IN THE PHILIPPINES

Spaniard Blames the Spanish Regime for Decline of Older Language.

Manila, April 17 (By A. P.)—Decline of the Spanish tongue in the Philippine islands is the fault of Spaniards themselves, Don Luis de Oteyza, Spanish writer and journalist, declared after extensive travel over the islands.

"English is now so woven into the warp and woof of Filipino life that only a miracle can destroy it," said de Oteyza, deploring the decreasing use of his tongue among a people so long under the Spanish regime.

The decline of the language, which brought the Filipino "virtually all the occidental culture they had before Americans came on the scene, to say nothing of the tongue in which their religion was communicated to them," is due to the fact, he said, that the Spanish "failed to do in 300 years what the Americans have done in less than 30."

Aside from English, Spanish and Chinese, there are nearly 80 native dialects spoken in the Philippines.

A Beautiful Woman Is a Joy to the World

Mrs. C. B. Smith

Tampa, Fla.—"For womanly ills I know of nothing better than Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I was suffering from feminine trouble and became all rundown in health. I was nervous and weak, could not sleep, had no strength nor energy to do anything—had a draggy, heavy, wornout feeling. I took Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and it strengthened my nerves and I grew well and strong. I would advise any weak woman to take it."—Mrs. C. B. Smith, 1408 Florida ave.

REBELS OF MEXICO LOSE FIERCE FIGHT ON VOLCANO SLOPE

Capture of Four Strongholds Held Serious Blow to the Revolutionists.

MOTHER OF ALMEIDA SEEKS TO PLEAD CASE

Many Believe Governor Is Not in Revolt; Others See Kidnaping.

Mexico City, April 17 (By A. P.).—Fighting on the slopes of the active volcano of Colima, sometimes amid sulphurous fumes blown down from the crater above them, federal troops have gained an important victory over the revolutionists, the war department announces.

The federals dislodged the revolutionists from four different strongholds on the volcano sides, where they were so strongly entrenched among sharp precipices that the positions heretofore held had been considered impregnable.

Only about half a dozen rebel dead were found, but it is declared that many others were killed. One of the leaders was killed and several were captured. The federals had five killed and six wounded.

Severe Blow to Rebels.

The war department describes this action as a severe blow to the revolutionary movement in the states of Colima and Jalisco.

The mother of Gov. Almeida, of Chihuahua, who has been ousted from office, has requested President Calles to grant her an audience in which she promises to explain the situation as it relates to political maneuvers in Chihuahua against her son.

This request has tended to confirm the belief in political circles here that Gov. Almeida is not in revolt, as has been charged, although his whereabouts is unknown. There is a belief in some quarters that the governor has abandoned Chihuahua City, seeking support of 12,000 loyal guards, with which he intends to reaffirm his position. In such case fighting is possible.

See Lives Endangered.

Others are of the opinion that both Almeida and Mayor Garcia have been seized and are held prisoner by their political enemies and that their lives are endangered.

Meanwhile President Calles has ordered Gen. Caraveo, military commandant, in Chihuahua, to give protection to everybody in that state. The conviction has gained ground in government circles that the Chihuahua difficulties involve only local political rivalries and do not mean that Almeida is in rebellion against the Calles government.

A group of congress members in Mexico City supporting Gen. Obregon for president express the belief that anti-Obregon factions in Chihuahua assisted in the ousting of Gov. Almeida because he was strongly in favor of Gen. Obregon for the presidency.

FEDERATION TO BACK CAR UNION IN COURT

Would Appeal Ruling Against Railway Men to the Highest Tribunal.

(By the Associated Press.)

Full support of the American Federation of Labor will be extended to the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes in its fight against court injunctions restraining railway employes from joining trade unions, William Green, the federation's president, said yesterday.

He favors the appeal to the Supreme Court of the circuit court ruling that the association violated an injunction by persuading employes of a street car company of Indianapolis to join a trade union The Federation of Labor will support such an appeal, Green said, because "it is difficult for workers to understand that any representative of organized labor would be committing a crime by merely asking men to join a trade union. We can not believe that the highest court in the land will sustain this decision."

The Federation of Labor also will support an effort to have set aside an injunction issued by Judge Delahanty, of New York, restraining the association from attempting to organize employes of the Interborough Rapid Transit Co., Green said.

Goodyear Sued Over Patent.

New York, April 17 (By A. P.).—The Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co., of Akron, Ohio, has been named a defendant in a suit by the Overman Cushion Tire corporation, which charges that the Goodyear factories in manufacturing cushion tires for heavy trucks, have infringed on patents held by Max Cyrus Overman, and assigned to the Overman corporation. An accounting of the business done by the Akron concern for the past several years and a temporary injunction are sought.

Hesse Spends Easter Day Handling 4 Big Crowds

Maj. Edwin B. Hesse, superintendent of the police force, yesterday experienced one of the busiest days since he became head of the police department. Fatigued and bruised last night, he retired to bed early, praying that he would never experience another such day.

At 7 o'clock he was present to oversee the handling of the crowds at Temple Heights at the sunrise services. After breakfast, he went to St. Patrick's church, Tenth and G streets northwest, where he saw that the crowds awaiting admittance to the late mass were being properly cared for, and at 11 o'clock he went to the Washington auditorium.

At the latter place the superintendent, in civilian clothes, was pushed, shoved and bruised. He proclaimed the crowd at the auditorium one of the largest church gatherings he ever witnessed. Not satisfied with those experiences, he went to the American League baseball park and saw the crowd of 25,000 safely handled. Then after a few hours in his offices he retired for the evening, rbeathless and fatigued.

was pushed and shoved back to the rear.

Holders of the reserved seats began to pour into the building more than an hour before the service, which began at 11 o'clock.

Half an hour later the doors were closed, all the seats having been taken. The crowd then began to collect outside.

Order appeared, almost magically, as the presidential party swept around Twentieth street in automobiles. Without command the crowd fell back, and through the avenue of humanity President and Mrs. Coolidge walked into the building. Immediately after their entrance, the clamoring crowd fell again to clamoring and mauling.

Simplicity Marks Services.

The service was marked with simplicity. The choir, vested in the customary black cassock and white vestment, opened the ceremonies with the caroling of Easter hymns on the lily-banked stage.

The Rev. Jason Nobel Pierce, pastor of the church, gave the invocation, the prayer of consecration and the Easter sermon, "God Calls to Life."

The auditorium was stifling, but soon all ventilations were thrown open. The use of the auditorium was gained through the courtesy of the Daughters of the American Revolution holding convention sessions in the building.

When the service was over, attendants strongly aided the police, who were reinforced by Third precince reserves, in keeping back the crowd. A few moments before the benediction was pronounced, there was a rush for the exits, but these were blocked by the attendants, who allowed no one to leave the building until the departure of the presidential party.

Mrs. Coolidge was particularly in the eye of the women attending the service. She wore a modest brown hat, trimmed with black and tan ribbon, and turned up in the back. There was a touch of rose color blended with the brown of the hat. She wore a simple dress of light brown color. A red fox fur was draped over her shoulders.

Services were held in all the churches commemorative of Easter. "Sunrise services" were held at Temple Heights, Connecticut avenue and Florida avenue northwest, and at Walter Reed hospital.

Diplomats and many distinguished persons attended a solemn pontifical mass at the national shrine of the Immaculate Conception at Catholic university yesterday morning. The mass was conducted by the Most Rev. Pietro Fumasoni-Biondi, apostolic delegate to the United States.

The principal Episcopal services were held in Bethlehem chapel of the Washington cathedral at Mount St. Alban at 4 o'clock, Bishop James E. Freeman preaching the sermon. Eventide services were held by the Community Bible Readers League on the Monument grounds from 5 to 6 o'clock.

The National Zoological park received its usual share of Easter visitors. It was estimated that 40,000 persons visited the park during the day.

The sight-seeing buses did a great business. Railway officials at Union station estimated that 70,000 persons arrived during the day. All trains were doubled and were crowded.

Twenty-three special trains also brought visitors. Thousands of automobiles came bringing additional numbers. Traffic was jammed in many places. Additional street cars were pressed into service. The fashions and the vogues of a thousand Main streets mingled with the brilliant colors with which Washingtonians attired themselves. The number of visitors, it was said, was the greatest in years. Besides those who came yesterday, great numbers were already here, having come during the week. Many of the thousands who came yesterday left last night.

The celebration of Easter will be continued today with the annual egg-rolling on the White House lawn, in which hundreds of children are expected to participate.

Dr. Simon to Address Ministerial Session

Dr. Abram Simon, of the Washington Hebrew congregation, will address the opening session of the National Ministerial alliance at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning at the Metropolitan A. M. E. church, Fifteenth and M streets northwest.

The delegates will consider ways and means of creating a better understanding between the races, according to Dr. C. L. Russell, national president. The alliance will meet in Washington for four days.

BACK PARACHUTE ASKED

Important changes in flying equipment in the naval air service are likely as the result of the hazardous escape from death last Friday of Lieut. Stephen A. McClellan, marine corps reserve officer, who leaped to safety with a parachute when his machine crumpled beneath him at an altitude of several thousand feet.

Naval authorities are considering recommendations that the naval air station at Anacostia be equipped with a sea sled for the rescue of fliers who fall into the Potomac river, and that the use of the back type of parachute be made compulsory in all high-speed planes of the naval service. These suggestions have been made by Lieut. McClellan to members of the bureau of aeronautics, it was learned yesterday, and pressure is being brought upon ranking naval officials for their immediate adoption.

Marine and navy officers who saw the collapse of the plane are agreed that if Lieut. McClellan had used the seat type parachute he probably would have been killed. The freedom of movement afforded in emerging from the cockpit, the protection given by the back type of parachute when the aviator was thrown violently against the rear part of the machine, as well as the fact that the pack of silk was not torn off on the side of the plane, were advanced as reasons for the superiority of the back type parachute.

Lieut. McClellan remained in the water about fifteen minutes after falling into the Potomac before a motor-sailer could reach him. Authorities pointed out that the same situation would have been serious to an injured man, and that help could be brought speedily through employment of a flat-bottomed seasled with a speed between 50 and 75 miles an hour. Recommmendations for adoption of essential safety equipment are being actively furthered by Lieut. McClellan.

Gentlemen:

It might interest you to know the result of a fuel economy test made by the writer a short time ago in Virginia.

Several leading gasolines, both high and low grades, were given the road test under the same conditions, and Amoco proved to be the most economical, costing us less per mile (at 32¢ per gallon, which was the pump price at the time) than any of the others, even though some of the so-called straight or regular gasolines cost us 24¢ per gallon.

Thirty two cent Amoco cost $.011 per mile, which was the lowest. One 24¢ gas cost $.028 per mile, which was the highest.

Very truly yours,
Baltimore Paige Motor Co.

SEASONAL SLOWING CAUSES SPOTTINESS ON BUSINESS CHART

Steel Output, Still Heavy, Displays Decrease in Momentum.

FREIGHT LOADINGS ALSO BEGIN DOWNWARD TURN

Cotton Manufacturers Make Further Strides—Retail Trade Only Fair.

New York, April 17 (By the Associated Press.)—Irregularities in the chart of general business became rather more numerous last week, accentuating the spotty character which became more or less manifest two or three weeks ago. This condition no doubt was due to the seasonal slowing up, following the winter and early spring activity, and occasions no feeling of pessimism among competent observers.

Steel production continued at a high level, but with evidences of decreasing momentum. United States Steel ingot output was cut from approximately 95 to 93 per cent of capacity, which has led to expectations of a gradual decline in operations. It was explained that the unsual activity of the last few weeks was partly in preparation for the coal strike. Steel prices showed little change during the week.

Freight loadings also contributed to the downward curve in the business chart. The decline to less than 1,000,000 cars, however, was produced by the falling off of coal shipments, due to the strike of bituminous miners. Leaving coal shipments out of the calculations, freight loadings would have shown a substantial gain over the preceding week, as well as over the corresponding week of 1926.

The oil industry continued to suffer from overproduction, and fresh price cuts were announced around the middle of the week. However, resistance to the disturbing conditions continued to grow, and curtailment of production in the Texas panhandle and in Venezuela was ordered by several companies. Slight decrease in the amount of oil produced east of the Rockies was reported, while the California supply continued to grow.

Progress in Cotton Manufacture.

Cotton manufacturing made further strides, while other branches of the textile industry remained irregular. Overproduction, particularly in silk lines, exerted a dragging influence on the markets, but on the whole signs of further improvement were becoming a little more conspicuous.

Building, which declined from last year in March and in the first quarter of 1927, showed some slight improvement. Curtailment in the Pacific Northwest led to some stiffening of lumber prices.

Bank clearings fell off sharply from the preceding week, but gained around 2 per cent over those of the corresponding week of 1926. Debits also showed a respective loss and gain as compared with the two related periods.

Credit conditions remained easy, slight stiffening of money rates being attributed to seasonal demand for funds and the absence of recent gold imports.

The weather throughout the week was particularly beneficial to crops Seeding of spring wheat in the Northwest progressed satisfactorily, and oats sowing was practically complete in the Southwest, while delays somewhat in more northerly localities. Plowing for corn moved along normally.

Retail trade, although stimulated by Easter buying, was on the whole reported as only fair. Springlike weather in the East was counteracted by rains and bad roads in the West. Wholesale business was quiet.

Employment fell off in most centers, particularly in Detroit.

The Foundation Company

The Foundation Co. is one of the largest construction and contracting concerns in the world and is the leader in foundation construction and excavation in which it specializes. The company has branches throughout the United States and operates also in fourteen foreign countries.

During the eight years which ended in 1925, aggregate net income available for dividends amounted to $4,373,261, or to $546,658 annually. Profits in 1925 were equal to $10.10 per share of common stock, as compared with $13.45 per share earned on nearly 30,000 fewer shares in 1924. Results reported for 1926 show per share earnings of $10.06, practically equal to the figure of the previous twelve months. At the time of last report the company was in sound financial condition with current assets which were in excess of current liabilities by over $4,000,000. No bank loans are outstanding, and funded debt totals only $402,000. There is no preferred issue ahead of the common shares.

Dividends of 7 per cent were paid on the former preferred stock until it was retired in 1925. On the common stock there were dividends from 1902 to 1916 in every year except for the period 1905-1907 and for 1915. Since 1917 common dividends have ranged between $1 and $17 per share, the present rate being $8.

BROAD PRICE CHANGES FEATURE CURB TRADING

Numerous High and Low Records Mark Dealings During Week.

UTILITIES MOST ACTIVE

New York, April 17 (By the Associated Press.)—Brisk trading and wide price changes, both up and down, characterized last week's curb market. Numerous high records and a number of new minimums were established in shares of practically all groups.

Activity of the new Lackawanna securities stock was an outstanding feature of the week. These shares, responding to reports of an arrangement for the absorption of Philadelphia & Reading Coal, sold up to a fraction below par, as compared with a low of 91½ early in the week.

As a group, public utilities held the position of greatest prominence, several issues establishing new high records. Earning reports of public utility companies have displayed gradual improvement.

Motor shares, while changing hands in considerable numbers, maintained a comparatively even price level, with the exception of Auburn Auto, which advanced to a new high record. Oil issues were extremely irregular, some of them advancing in the face of further price cuts, while others dropped to new lows for the year.

The widest irregularities occurred among specialty shares, unusual strength being manifested by some of them, while others dropped to record low levels. Coal company issues were in demand and strong.

Admission to trading of A and B stocks of the Swedish Match Co. marked the first definite step in the curb market's new policy of trading in foreign issues. Other new listings included common stock of the American Milling Co., preferred stocks of National Tea Co., and Central Indiana Power Co., and the new $25,000,000 New South Wales 5 per cent bonds.

PRICES OF BONDS MOVE SLIGHTLY DURING WEEK

Observers Predict Period of Quietness for Market; Await June Financing.

FOREIGN ISSUES POPULAR

New York, April 17 (By the Associated Press.)—Trading in the bond market settled down last week to a steady, normal progress, while prices showed little change from the level of the preceding week-end. The tremendous reinvestment demand resulting from the enormous amount of money poured into the market at the end of the quarter had been substantially supplied before the week opened, and the stimulus to prices effected by the announcement of new government financing in March had about spent itself. Consequently the bond business began to mark time until the advent of the next significant development.

Observers in Wall street are agreed that the bond market will remain relatively quiet for five weeks or so before entering its next phase. At that time Secretary Mellon will bring out the Treasury's plans for the June financing, and until these plans are known, traders will be disinclined to add to their bond commitments. What form the new government financing will take few are prepared to predict with any degree of definiteness.

Slight hardening of the money market probably had no more than a superficial effect upon bond trading, inasmuch as demand had fallen off, and buying already had reached a rather desultory stage. Competition offered by new offerings, however, probably kept considerable money out of the market for listed bonds.

Of these new offerings there were three of major importance, all quickly, even eagerly, absorbed. The domestic field was represented by an issue of $55,000,000 Duquesne Light Co. 4½ per cent bonds. It was offered to the public at a price considered unusually high in many quarters, and its ready oversubscription was regarded as having no little significance. Offered at 95, it was in demand over the counter within a few hours at a premium of nearly a point.

New foreign issues included two of $25,000,000 or more. New South Wales figated a loan of $25,000,000, and an advance to the City of Milan amounted to $30,000,000. Each of these was received with enthusiasm, and oversubscribed within a few hours after reaching the market.

The market for listed foreign bonds was featured by a sudden flurry of buying of Italian Public Utility Credit 7s toward the end of the week. These bonds, some $20,000,000 of which were originally offered, jumped to within an eighth of a point of par on reports that they might be called soon at 105. The issue may be called at that figure on any interest date, in whole or in part, after 60 days' notice. The loan was floated at 93 in February of last year, and the proceeds were apportioned among six Italian hydroelectric companies. One of the companies, it is reported, believes it can advantageously withdraw from the agreement and refund its portion of the loan.

The total of new issues last week was approximately $182,000,000, compared with $193,000,000 in the week before, and $78,000,000 in the corresponding week of last year. New financing in contemplation includes a $12,000,000 advance to the State Mortgage Bank of Jugoslavia, a number of additional Italian loans, which are to be guaranteed under a new governmental credit plan, and several South American issues. A loan of $100,000,000 or so to the Republic of Brazil is not expected to be arranged for at least eighteen months.

U. S. Aircraft Ships Due at Norfolk Soon

Norfolk, Va., April 17 (By A. P.).—Aircraft tenders and supply ships of the United States scouting fleet, now participating in maneuvers off the coast of Virginia with the battle fleet of the Pacific, are due here within the next ten days, it was announced yesterday. The ships later will join the fleet as it continues maneuvers off the New England coast. The Wright, flagship of the aircraft squadron scouting fleet, and the tenders Sandpiper and Teal are due here Wednesday from Guantanamo and will sail May 6 for Narrangasett. Others will follow almost daily.

The fleet will cruise from Cuba up the Atlantic coast during the next few weeks, staging a war game off New England. At the end of the maneuvers the vessels of the battle fleet from the Pacific will come to Hampton Roads to stay from May 29 to June 8, making the largest rendezvous of the United States fleet since the war.

MORE TIME ALLOWED FOR CHAPLIN'S REPLY

Comedian Has Until Thursday to Answer Divorce Complaint of Wife.

Los Angeles, April 17 (By A. P.).—Charlie Chaplin received three additional days from Superior Judge Walter Guerin today in which to answer the divorce complaint of Lida Grey Chaplin. As a result, the film comedian will have until next Thursday to file his answer.

Judge Guerin's action followed a telephone conference with Chaplin's attorneys in San Francisco in which they asked for the additional time to prepare the answer of the actor to the sensational charges of his wife's divorce complaint.

The 90-day publication of summons to bring the actor, now in New York, under the jurisdiction of the California court expires Monday. A motion to quash the service by publication made by Chaplin's attorneys was denied by the superior court yesterday, and Chaplin would have had to file his answer then or default had not the additional time been given.

Court attaches interpreted the request for additional time to mean that an answer or cross complaint will be filed.

20 Cents and Token All Office Burglars Get

Twenty cents and a car token rewarded the efforts of thieves who broke into the office of Gallihar & Huguely, lumber dealers at Sherman avenue and W street northwest, early yesterday. Despite the pettiness of the larceny, Headquarters Detective Benjamin Kuehling investigated the case and is seeking a suspect.

The thieves gained entrance by forcing open a rear window. The safe was tampered with but could not be opened by the intruders.

Associated Gas and Electric System

Keeping Abreast of the Industry

Only a few years ago electricity was used principally for lighting. Today only one-fifth of the electricity produced is used for lighting and three-fifths is used for power.

Industries of all types in the United States increase about 4% a year. The electric light and power industry has increased approximately 10% each year during the last 20 years.

100.4% Increase in Electric Kw. Hr. Sales

From 1920 to 1926 inclusive, the electric Kw. Hr. sales in the United States as a whole increased 73.9%. During the same period, however, the electric Kw. Hr. sales of the Associated System increased 100.4% or approximately one-third more rapidly than that of the industry as a whole.

This growth indicates the well established utility territories in fourteen states served by the Associated System and reflects the successful manner in which the management has been able to supply the electrical needs of the communities served.

PASTOR AND HIS DAUGHTER ARE MURDERED BY CHINESE

prehend the bandits and to guarantee reparations.

J. E. Jacobc, the American consul at Yunnanfu, who is at present detailed to the Shanghai consulate, has also telegraphed the British consul at Yunnanfu for details and has urged him to use his utmost efforts to obtain the release of the captives.

The tragic fate of the missionary recalls the fact that Joseph Rock, an employe of the Harbard arborium, was captured assumably by bandits near the same place several months ago. He has not been heard from since, but it is believed in some quarters that he may have escaped and made his way toward Thibet.

With the Slichter outrage to intensify the situation further action by the foreign powers with regard to their joint demands for apologies and reparations in connection with the Nanking outrages is awaited with anxiety. Dispatches from Peking say that the representatives of the five powers there, in the belief that the reply made by Eugene Chen, the Cantonese foreign minister, to the notes of the powers was unsatisfactory, see no alternative except to adopt additional measures, and have asked for instructions from their respective governments.

Should the powers decide on some action other than that suggested in Chen's note their warships are well distributed for service up and down the coast and along the Yangtze river. Thirty-six foreign warships are at present at Hankow, the seat of the nationalist government. These include 13 Japanese, 11 British, 7 American, 3 French and 2 Italian craft; others are patroling on the Yangtze between Hankow and Shanghai, among them the American Cincinnati, Preble and Noa

There also are large forces at Shanghai, Hongkong and Tientsin, with additional marines on their way from the United States, more Japanese troops for Manchuria, and another brigade coming from England.

With reference to the appointment of an international commission suggested by Eugene Chen, stress is laid on the fact that the official investigations already carried out have disclosed evidence, with numerous affidavits, establishing the guilt of the nationalist troops at Nanking.

Fifty students, representing most of the Chinese schools in Shanghai, have held a session and voted to organize a new union, ousting the communists. A resolution was adopted demanding the expulsion of communists from the Shanghai schools and recommending the circulation of the manifesto urging the people to support Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek, generalissimo of the Cantonese army.

A dispatch from Swatow says that members of the right wing of the Kuomintang (Cantonese political organization) carried out raids against the communist headquarters, resulting in many casualties

The chief of the labor union and ten others were arrested. Thirty Cantonese soldiers attacked the political department of military headquarters at Lungswa, outside of Shanghai, raided the Chinese seamen's union in the native city and arrested twelve alleged communists. They found inflammatory handbills on the premises and seized many rifles and a large quantity of ammunition.

The police report that 8,824 Chinese left Shanghai during the week ended April 15.

While violent agitation is still carried on in Hankow against Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek, rumors came from that place that Chiang is planning an advance on Hankow with the purpose of clearing out the "reds."

American missionary workers have evacuated Chuchow, proceeding on the steamer Pingwo. Twenty thousand troops wearing northern uniforms are reported at Wuhu. Lawlessness there is widespread and there has been much looting.

It is declared officially to be imperative that all shipping moving between Chinkiang and Nanking shall have a naval escort, as firing across the river is hot and continuous. All the British residents have evacuated Holhow, Hainan, except the harbor master and the lighthouse staff.

Third Marines Board Ship For Orient Amid Cheers

San Diego, Calif, April 17 (By A. P.). The Third regiment of United States marines lined up in heavy marching order today at their base here and amidst a cheering crowd marched on board the liner President Grant, China bound.

Col. Henry C. Davis gave the order that set the regiment in motion on its way to China, the second war equipped body of marines that have been dispatched to the Orient from this base in less than a month.

The Third regiment, of 97 officers and 1,560 men, marched two miles today from the base to the President Grant, which was taking on the last of 1,500 tons of supplies. All vantage points along the line of march were occupied by spectators and the water front was crowded with citizens.

The usual scenes of leavetaking between service men and their families and sweethearts were reenacted on the dock as the regiment formed up to board the ship.

PLAN FOR U. S. LOAN TO POLAND ATTACKED

Warsaw, Poland, April 17 (By A. P.). Severe criticism of the loan negotiations now going on between the Polish government and American interests has developed in the Polish press.

The projected loan is being attacked by the political opposition and also by former Premier Grabski, who is a former finance minister. Grabski contends that American representation on the board of directors of the Bank of Poland, provided for in the negotiations, is a blow at the prestige of Poland.

He also has declared that German money is hidden behind the American bankers with the motive of gaining control of Poland. Finance Minister Czechovicz and Vice Premier Bartel today denied that there was any German interest behind the loan.

The cabinet itself, however, is not unanimous regarding the loan and it is no secret that President Moscicki objects to some of the proposed terms.

UNITED STATES COURT OF CUSTOMS APPEALS.

Present: Presiding Judge William J. Graham and Associate Judges James F. Smith, Orion M. Barber, Oscar E. Bland and Charles S. Hatfield.

The following decisions were handed down today:

No. 2787. United States vs. May Department Stores Co. Opinion by Graham, presiding judge. Bead necklaces were assessed at 60 per cent as jewelry. The importer protested that they were properly dutiable at 45 per cent as beads in imitation of precious or semiprecious stones. The United States Customs Court sustained the protest of the importer and their judgment is reversed. Dissenting opinion by Barber, associated judge, in which Smith, associate judge, concurs.

No. 2807. N. D. Costogue, et al. vs. United States. Opinion by Graham, presiding judge. Imperfect or broken olives resulting from the manufacturing processes where pitted and stuffed olives are prepared were assessed at 50 cents a gallon as pitted or stuffed olives. The importers protested that they were properly dutiable at 20 cents a gallon as olives in brine, or at 35 per cent as vegetables cut. The United States Customs Court overruled the protest of the importers and their judgment is affirmed.

No. 2872. A. W. Fenton Co., Inc., vs. United States. Opinion by Graham, presiding judge. A shipment of diamonds entered at a value of $1,318.60, was appraised for dutiable purposes at $2,104.20. The importer was thereupon assessed 10 per cent additional duty for undervaluation. The importer protested against the assessment of additional duty, the United States Customs Court overruled the protest, and their judgment is affirmed.

No. 2838. United States vs. Samuel Shapiro & Co. Opinion by Smith, associate judge. Cotton cloth in the piece, having plaits or tucks produced during the process of weaving the cloth, was assessed at 90 per cent as a fabric in part of tucking. The importer protested that the merchandise was properly dutiable as articles made from cotton cloth or as manufacturers of cotton. The United States Customs Court sustained the protest of the importer and their judgment is reversed.

No. 2801. United States vs. Finkelstein & Kommel. Opinion by Barber, associate judge. The petition for remission of additional duties involved herein was filed by the importer 60 days from the date of final appraisement of the merchandise, but prior to the liquidation of the entry. The government moved to dismiss the petition on the ground that it was filed prematurely, having been filed before liquidation. The United States Customs Court denied the motion of the government to dismiss and their judgment is reversed, and the cause remanded with directions to enter an order granting the government's motion to dismiss the petition for remission, without prejudice to the right of the importer to file another petition after liquidation, within the time prescribed by law.

No. 2806. United States vs. Bigelow Hartford Carpet Co. Opinion by Barber, associate judge. Certain wool assessed at 31 cents per pound as wool not specially provided for, was claimed by the importer to be properly dutiable at 12 cents per pound as wool not improved by the admixture of merino or English blood. The United States Customs Court sustained the protest of the importer and their judgment is affirmed.

No. 2840. William H. Masson vs. United States. Opinion by Bland, associate judge. Merchandise known as cottonseed pitch or distilled stearine pitch, made from black cotton grease, a residue from milling processes in making cottonseed oil, was assessed at 20 per cent as a non-enumerated manufactured article. The importer protested that it was properly dutiable at 10 per cent as waste not specially provided for. The United States Customs Court overruled the protest of the importer and their judgment is reversed.

No. 2824. United States vs. C. J. Tower & Sons et al. Opinion by Hatfield, associate judge. In reappraisement proceedings before a justice of the United States Customs Court the importer challenged the validity of the original appraisement. The justice held that the original appraisement was illegal and void and that he, sitting as a trial court, had no authority to reappraise the merchandise, and he dismissed the appeal. The government, thereupon appealed to the United States Customs Court for a review of the decision of the trial justice. The court held that the original appraisement was valid and proceeded to consider the merits of the case upon the record made before the trial justice, and reappraised the merchandise. From this action the government appealed here. The judgment of the United States Customs Court is reversed and it is held that that court, having correctly decided that the original appraisement was legal and that the trial justice had jurisdiction, it should have reversed the judgment of the trial justice and remanded the case for proceedings in conformity to law.

No. 2829. G. & R. Transport Co. vs. United States. Opinion by Hatfield, associate judge. Kid skins with the fur on, dyed and dressed, were assessed at 25 per cent as furs dressed on the skin. The importer protested that they were properly dutiable as plates and mats of goat skins, at 10 per cent. The United States Customs Court overruled the protest of the importer and their judgment is affirmed.

No. 2836. Watson, Geach & Co., inc., vs. York Metal & Alloys Co. (American manufacturer), the United States, appearing. Tungsten steel scrap. Petition of appellee for rehearing denied.

No. 2783. Maine Central Railroad Co. vs. United States. Sheep—lambs. Petition of appellant for rehearing denied.

No. 2880. United States vs. American Rug & Carpet Co., et al. Antidumping duty. Dismissed upon stipulation of counsel.

No. 2920. Charles D. Bradbury vs. United States. Christmas trees. Dismissed upon stipulation of counsel.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

IMPROVED METHODS OF TESTING HEARING.

THE old method of testing hearing was far from satisfactory. It consisted in striking a tuning fork and then holding it at varying distances from the ear. This was supplemented by holding a watch at varying distances from the ear. The estimate of hearing was based on the distance at which the sound ceased.

At the present time these cruder methods have been supplanted by methods that are more scientific. There are devices by which the sound made is scientifically regulated and the method of registering the tested person's response is improved. The sound is regulated as to intensity, volume and pitch.

The person under test is told to hold an earpiece against one ear with one hand and to use the other hand to signal, by means of light, when he begins to hear and when he ceases. The operator turns a dial which throws sound of a given pitch on to the wire. The person under test signals that he hears. The operator turns another knob which causes the sound to fade away at a steady rate. When the sound is no longer heard a button is pressed and the signal light goes out. The operator records on a chart the point at which the sound was no longer heard.

The next step is a repetition of the first, except that the bass sound is replaced by one of higher pitch. This is repeated with sounds of different pitches up to twelve in number.

The tests are repeated on the other ear. The marks on the chart are connected up by lines; the figures are corrected by means of a table. The averages are calculated by a few simple, arithmetical computations and the testing is complete. The chart, when finished, shows the acuteness of the hearing of each ear, with sounds of all degrees of intensity from deep basses to high sopranos.

The chart on which all of this is plotted has a curve which shows what is regarded as total loss of serviceable hearing. Deafness due to catarrhal ear trouble gives a curve of a certain kind; that due to nerve trouble a curve of another kind; still other varieties of deafness, curves of still other types. The nature of a curve of a given case of deafness points to the general type of hearing device that would help the hearing of that person.

A simpler machine is used to test the hearing in the same general way. This simpler machine does not make a diagram for record purposes as does the first one.

A third machine is one designed for use in schools and in other groups similar to a school group. It can be used to test the hearing of 40 persons simultaneously. Forty persons sit, each with an earpiece to his ear. Before him lies a sheet of paper ruled for a record of four tests. The machine is started up. A woman's voice calls off 24 numbers. She starts with a loud tone; for 12 numbers the tone loses force. Then it becomes loud; and then fades away again.

The pupil writes down each number he hears in the proper column. Now the record goes through the same procedure, but a man's voice gives the numbers. At the conclusion of the test the pupil writes in the answers to a few questions about pain in the ear, noises, and running from the ears; signs his name and grade, and hands in the record. The records are passed on by the examiner.

If any child is found to be markedly deaf his hearing may be more closely examined by individual tests and the methods given above.

For More Than Pleasingly Plump

DEAR Vogue: I am more than "pleasingly plump, weighing about 175 pounds, and just 5 feet 3 inches tall. Please plan a dress for me for spring that is not surplice, as I am heavy through the shoulders and have a thick upper arm. Something that would be a suitable all-around dress for church or street and business wear. A READER.

Vogue has always believed that there is no reason in the world why the "more than pleasingly plump" should limit herself to the surplice line and vertical tucks. You should be able to choose from a number of smart frocks that include neither of these features. The dress in the sketch is a good example. Any woman of your acquaintance might choose such a smartly simple coat-dress for spring, and yet there are a number of features that will add to your height and reduce your inches. The deep V of the front, the shallow V of the vest, the straight line of the wrapped skirt, closing at the side front, the bloused waist, are all very much in the mode and all decidedly flattering.

Make the dress of black canton crepe, and, if you want to be new and very smart, make the vest and cuffs of white crepe de chine. Black and white make the smartest of smart combinations just now, and black is the most "slenderizing of all colors." And fasten your belt with a metal buckle. If you want to add a very modern touch, a little black felt hat, patent leather shoes—and you will be smartly and beautifully dressed. When you make the dress be very careful to fit it loosely. Too many large women are under the illusion that a tight dress makes them look thin, when, as a matter of fact, they only look uncomfortable and a little strained at the seams.

"FALSE LOVE AND TRUE"

By CAROLINE BEECHER

SYNOPSIS.

Bab Livingston's maiden aunt, Alice, who had brought her up so carefully, died on Bab's eighteenth birthday, the day of her coming-out party. Her aunt had lived well on an annuity, but there is only $240 left for Bab. She goes to New York, and, inexperienced in business, finally gets work at $15 a week, then $20, answering the phone for Mr. Marvin, in what she thinks is a broker's office. A $52 hotel bill sends her to a $10 furnished room. After two chance meetings, the lonely girl accepts the invitation of Bob Thornton, artist, about 30 years old, to dine and dance. George Allison, a hometown boy, calls and suffers by comparison with the lively Bob. Edward Clark, associate of Marvin, tries to make a dinner engagement, but instinctively she dislikes him. Bab goes to the Ritz with Bob, and meets Matt Waters, and he makes an engagement with her.

Bob hugs and kisses her when they part and, despite herself, she thrills to his caresses. Marvin's violent lovemaking angers her, and she quits her job. She takes a cheaper room. With Bob in mind, she refuses when Matt asks her to marry him, but they are still good friends. She reads of Marvin's arrest as a bootlegger. Meeting Clark by accident, she reluctantly has luncheon with him, but she is hungry and has only $10 left. She plays the piano at a movie house and works evenings. When Bob next sees her he talks of the beauty of the society girl whose portrait he is painting. At a party at the apartment of Irene Copeland, Rosenblatt's stenographer, there is drinking and petting. She learns that Harry Jessup pays Irene's bills. George Mason takes her home in a taxi and makes love. She shares a room with Peg Andrews, a blunt-spoken girl she met at Irene's party. Peg is a good cook, and they live cheaper.

Bob sends roses on Bab's nineteenth birthday, but breaks a dinner engagement. Peg gets up a party with flasks. A roomer objects to the noise, and calls the police station. Bab slips out unnoticed, and after the party is broken up by a policeman, tells Peg she is going back to her old rooming house. Irene tells Bab she is squeamish. Matt calls.

Caught off guard while dining with Matt, she gives her address to Clark. It is evident that Matt is going to propose again. "Please don't ask me again," she tells him. "It hurts to keep saying 'No.'" She finds roses from Clark when she returns home. Bab had gotten Bob's address from Matt.

She goes to see Bob. He kisses her, and tells her nice girls don't go to studios. Puzzled, she wonders about the girls he paints. She feels she has made herself cheap. She waits a week before he calls.

"Trying to come that game—I won't bother you any more," is Bob's angry good-by when she refuses to let him kiss her. Matt says a girl who allows a man to kiss her cheapens herself.

Weeks pass, and she hears nothing from Bob. In desperation, she goes out with Clark, a man about 40. He tells her he loves her, is married, but wants to take her away from the miserable movie house and take care of her. Bab jumps out of his machine.

Unhurt, she consents to get in again if he will take her home. She is lonely and disgusted with life. She dines with the Hunters. Jim Hunter is the other piano player in Rosenblatt's movie house.

When Peg takes Bab out on a petting party with George Moore, she doesn't know that Jessup is to make the fourth. Irene and Jessup had quarrelled. Irene happens into the restaurant and slaps Jessup's face.

Irene is found dead the next morning, a gas tube in her mouth. While Bab is dining with Matt, Bob comes in and merely nods casually.

CHAPTER XXX.

"I DON'T know much about such things Bab," Mary Hunter said, "but if your friend had been allowing this man to kiss her, embrace her," she blushed, "perhaps he thought she was trying to force him to declare himself—to ask her to marry him by holding him off. I can't think of anything else." I had said that a friend of mine wished to know.

"But, Mary, my friend was trying to do right, not make herself cheap. Why should he think that?"

"She had let him have his way too long, perhaps. He found it hard to believe she was honest in saying she wasn't going—to go on."

If Mary was right, and I felt that she was, what had trying to do right brought me? Unhappiness. Bob's disdain. He thought I had stooped to a trick like that. He thought my efforts to be decent a game to force him to —marry me.

Not once had the thought of marriage entered my mind in all my association with Bob, I had been happy just to be with him. Unhappy when he stayed away. Beyond that I never had thought or looked. If he believed I had refused his kisses—kisses I wanted, for such a reason, no wonder he despised me, wanted nothing more to do with me.

I remained with Mary for an hour, chatting, playing with the baby. When I left I was more unhappy than I ever had been in my life. I not only had lost Bob's friendship. He despised me.

There was nothing I could do.

Never could I let him know I now understood his angry leave-taking. Never could I belittle myself to acknowledge that he could think such a thing of me. If girls, cheap girls, did such things—I tried to excuse him—but he should have known me better. He might have understood. He might.

Oh, the shame of it!

My eyes burned, but no tears came.

"A gentleman called to see you," Martha told me. "I think it was Mr. Bob."

I was too hurt for tears. Chagrinned. He had thought me capable of such a cheap trick. A girl was cheap if she allowed liberties. She was even cheaper when she denied them. Then she was playing a game. A rotten game.

I almost hated Matt. It has been because of my talk with him—partly—that I had taken the stand I had with Bob. Memories of Aunt Alice. She was old fashioned. She too, had been—partly—to blame. Yet all the time I was blaming them I knew that it was more than them; that it was something inside of me that had revolted. They had simply emphasized that revolt.

I had taken the happiness the moment sent; short lived as it was. Now I had only the memory of it. Even so it was better than having nothing but the gray days that had followed. Hurt, chagrinned, unhappy, I yet treasured the memory of my outings; the hours I had spent with Bob. I could shut my eyes and hear him say: "Tonight at 7." Or hear him call me "Sweetness" and "My Babikins."

Was it better to take what the moment sent? Keep on taking it as the moment glided by—sipping the sweetness. Forgetting the tomorrow.

I thought of Irene. She was at peace now. Poor Irene, buffeted about. Her love scorned. She had courage, had Irene. I shuddered. I would never have such courage. No, I would go on and on—to what?

Thoughts of Jim Hunter's little home. Of Mary. The Baby. There was happiness and—peace.

If I married Matt—why couldn't I? There was no reason why I shouldn't; many why I should. He loved me, would protect and care for me. And —I wouldn't be lonely any more. All my weary problems solved.

No—it wouldn't be fair. I didn't love Matt, good as he was. And he deserved all a woman had to give. Honesty. Love. Devotion.

Would I ever stop thinking? My mind went about in circles, always coming back to where it started. To Bob. What he thought of me.

Shadows, deep, frightening, were all about me.

My birthday. Twenty.

I had mentioned it to Jim Hunter in a careless way. But I felt sad as I remembered other birthdays. Always gifts, a little surprise. Children invited without my knowledge. As I grew older, the theater, a short trip somewhere. Aunt Alice had made much of my birthdays. Could it be she knew how it was with me now? How she would grieve if she did.

"Mary insisted I bring you to dinner," Jim told me. "Ed" (a friend) will play tonight."

Mary welcomed me heartily. The dinner was delicious; and more delicious was the atmosphere of love and kindness that surrounded me. The dessert was a cake with 20 candles burning on it. Tears came to my eyes when Mary proudly set it before me, and I had to try several times before I could blow hard enough to extinguish them.

I left early. Part of my feeling of loneliness gone. Yet in another way their happiness in each other had made me feel it even more keenly.

"A gentleman called to see you," Martha told me. "I think it was Mr. Bob. His voice sounded like he used to sound over the telephone. He left this for you. Gave me a dollar to wait up and see you had it tonight." She handed me a sealed note.

WIVES OF TOMORROW

The Day Dream.

DEAR Miss McDonald: I have been married just two years and we are in debt. It would not be so bad, but a store from which we bought some things has become so ugly and are embarrassing my husband by going to his boss on pay day for the installments. You see, we married on hopes and the hopes never became real. Meanwhile I ordered $300 worth of household things—I did not buy extravagantly—only the things we absolutely had to have; but my husband did not get the job he expected, and other expenses came along; so we got in debt, and then in arrears for our furnishings, too. Now my husband blames it all on me—tells me I had no right to get the things in the first place, and says I have "no head." Am I to blame, and has the store any right to make all this trouble for us each week?

"BITTER EXPERIENCE."

The store is within its rights in taking any reasonable means to protect itself against loss. Stores that sell to persons without credit on a credit basis take long chances and must sometimes take drastic steps to keep from heavy loss, for the folks who never will have either one. They are the folks who spend as they go and spend more than they earn—and their number is legion. I do hope you will step out from the ranks of that army at once. Do not march along with the day-dreamers. Do not join that long file of those who go through life in a daze, living from meal to meal with as little thought for the future as a house cat. You are a woman and a wife. Be a truly intelligent one. Know what you can and what you can not afford. You know what you are doing, and why—and know not only what you are and what you do today, but what you want to be and what you want to be doing one year hence, and why. Then you are going to arrive purposefully at a destination, and not merely land, wind-blown and bewildered, just anywhere. You know, I have marveled in domestic relations court at the aimlessness and futility of most adults. They are so helpless. Quite often a lad of 10 is the real head of a family, he being the only one in the family using his head. Such a boy once, relating to me his personal grievances, delivered himself of an indictment applicable to most of the people who are failures in this age of magnificent successes. With a young brow full of furrows, he assured me that sometimes his mother would send him four times to the same store within an hour—and this when he was tired out after delivering some 100 newspapers. His mother always remarked that Joe didn't mind running errands, as he was used to walking! Joe's mother was very fat and lazy and not used to walking or thinking of others, and her general outlook upon life, and upon the rights of others, and her own place in life and in relation to the rights of others was average. The people who live from day to day without the least thought of tomorrow are mentally of the same caliber as the woman who sends out for butter, and then for bread. They are mildly paranoic—harmless, but helpless, and likewise hopeless. We all know such people, and we recognize their many lacks; but are we so very much in advance of them when we leave to chance the many matters that are by no means the business of chance? You say that yuo bought only what you needed, and you bought without the faintest idea of how you were going to pay—and you are now embittered by the consequences. Be grateful, instead of bitter, if you have learned that the life run by chance is a life full of mischances. Be intelligent—plan, reason, know what you are doing, and why, and charge this first lesson up to experience, and resolve that it shall be an experience worth all that it cost. And from henceforward be efficient; it pays in the end.

Conduct and Common Sense

By ANNE SINGLETON

DEAR MISS SINGLETON: Our club is giving a party. Just the members are to ask a boy friend. There are three boys whom we would like to have, but every girl has her own friend to ask. We do not want to ask other girls. Is it proper to have more boys than girls? Or just to have the even amounts? K.

I wish I could have answered this nice girl at once. I hope the party isn't over, but I fear it may be. My inquirers must remember that no personal reply can be sent unless a self-addressed stamped envelope is provided and also that newspaper columns have to be prepared some weeks in advance.

It is very usual to have more boys than girls at a party, so that the same boy and girl will not have to stay together all the evening. In the social world, boys and girls do not dance with the same partner all evening. Even if a girl sees more of one boy (whom she may like best) than she sees of any of the others, she still changes her partner many times. The party would not be considered a success by a girl who danced only with one partner. So I advise the club, if my advice does not come too late, to invite the three extra boys they all like, in the name of the whole club, and give them as good a time as possible. I am sure they won't regret it. And I think if the girls try changing about a bit during the dancing, they may find it a pleasant innovation. They need not neglect their particular boy, but they can be pleasant to others also.

Mr. Work's Pointer On Auction Bridge

THE pointed today is:

When selecting the card for the opening lead, consider whether the contract is suit or no-trump, and whether your partner has bid.

The original lead, frequently called "the blind lead" because it is made before any card in the hand of the Dummy is exposed, is a most important part of the game of Bridge. The selection of the card to be led is affected materially by two important factors: (1) whether the partner of the leader has bid, and (2) whether the contract is a suit or No-Trump.

Each day during the current week I shall give the thirteen cards of a hand and four different biddings supposed to have taken place before the holder of that hand leads. A blank will be furnished to enable you to pencil in your selection of the lead in each case; on the succeeding day the leads I would make will be given with a full explanation.

I suggest that all who read today's article fill out the blank, and get their friends to do likewise, and tomorrow see who has the most that tally with my answers.

An exceptionally interesting contest would be to continue each day for the entire week and, out of the twenty chances, see who will name the most leads that appear with my answers.

Today's Hand.

No. 3, South, deals, bids one Spade, and obtains the contract.

BEAUTY AND YOU

By VIOLA PARIS

THE WEIGHT-GAINING DIET.

NOT every one, thank fortune, needs to lose weight. Many women are lucky enough to be "just right." Even those who are quite slim (and in good health) ought not to try deliberately to gain more pounds. For, once started, the pounds have a fatal way of coming thick and fast, and then they are not so easy to control.

But there is a difference between slimness and downright thinness. The scrawny woman can scarcely have a pretty figure because she seems to be made up of angles, not curves. It is she who should add to her weight, and the best and quickest method lies in an appropriate diet. Rest and exercise and freedom from worry are important factors, too.

What shall she eat? The fat-forming foods are really very easy to recognize—the starches, sugars and fats. Combining quantities of cream and butter in cooked dishes adds to their nutriment. It is not necessary to eat heavy foods, nor should fruits and green vegetables be forgotten. Fruits can be stewed with sugar, green vegetables served with butter and salads with plenty of olive oil. Creamy milk is the ideal drink and may frequently be taken between meals.

Here is a list of foods that can be especially recommended to the very thin. Make your own choices and combinations, for the nourishing quality of what you eat is to some extent governed by how well you relish it.

Vegetables—Potatoes, sweet potatoes, beets, beans, lentils, peas, carrots, parsnips, corn, squash, oysterplant, creamed onions and creamed cauliflower.

Grains—All starchy or farinaceous foods, rice, macaroni, spaghetti, noodles, hominy, bread, crackers, cake, tapioca, cereals, et cetera.

Fish—Crab, shrimp, salmon, shad, mackerel, clam and oyster cream stews.

Salads—Potato salad, egg salad, beet salad.

Eggs, milk, cream, butter, cheese, nuts, puddings, preserves, ice cream, cocoa, chocolate, malted milk.

Dear Viola Paris: Please tell me if lemon and glycerin combined together will raise superfluous hair? BESS.

Answer: No, not if there is no special tendency to have superfluous hair. If you already have this trouble, however, I should advise you to use glycerin sparingly.

CABINET MINISTER SELECTED BY LOT

Mecklenburg Candidates in Tie, Parliament Acts So It May Eat.

Berlin, April 17 (By A. P.)—Choosing a cabinet minister by lot is a political innovation of the German free state of Mecklenburg.

When the socialist-democratic coalition government, headed by Premier Paul Schroeder, stumbled over the budget bill and failed to obtain a vote of confidence, the Mechlenburg parliament reassembled to choose a new cabinet by the prescribed method of voting. Schroeder was reelected by a vote of 25 to 24, as was also the minister of finance, Ash. When the position of minister of education came up for vote, three ballots resulted in a tie between the democratic incumbent, Moeller, and the candidate of the right, Stammer. The salons of Mecklenburg, finding that meal hour was well advanced, yet duly mindful of their responsibility to their constituents, decided to cast lots. Moeller won.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

IN THE FUTURE.

Oh, little girl just half-past four
With laughter in your eyes,
And all your trinkets on the floor
Some day you must grow wise.
You'll pick the truth from all the sham
And learn how commonplace I am.

Some day with all the fairies fled
And all the dolls put by,
Strange thoughts will come into your head
And sadness in your eye.
Then if, perchance, I still am here
You'll look at me and think me queer.

Though now you clamber on my knee
And press your cheek to mine,
You'll see how old I've grown to be
And mark each wrinkled line.
Then in your wiser, brighter days
You'll laugh about my funny ways.

Yet when the mystery has flown,
And you discover me,
With all my little failings known.
When old I've grown to be
I hope at times you will recall
The fun we had when you were small.

WAGNER'S WIDOW, 88, GETS NO ROYALTIES

Prussian Academy of Arts Leads Agitation for New Copyright Law.

Berlin, April 17 (By A. P.)—The Prussian Academy of Arts is sponsoring agitation for a modernized copyright law which would extend copyright privileges to 50 years. The existing limit is 30 years.

Authors, playwrights and composers argue that they or their heirs are entitled to income from royalties for a longer period. Cosima Wagner, 88-year-old widow of the famous composer, it is pointed out, isn't receiving a cent in royalties on her husband's compositions which others are exploiting at a handsome profit.

Many publishers, however, oppose the plan. Works of men like Theodor Storm, Gustav Freytag, Gottfried Keller and many others, they say, are never really available for the large majority of the people until the copyright expires and prices fall.

Gourmets Assailed By French Feminists

Paris, April 17 (By A. P.)—French gourmets have run afoul of the feminist movement. The suffragists are down on the old household law that sets man in a comfortable chair at the dining table to await woman's masterpieces from the kitchen.

Andre Lamande, speaking for the "good forks," as his countrymen describe those who sit long at table, has voiced a protest against quick lunches, apartment house common kitchens and a proposal to develop catering services that would do most of the cooking for families.

"Good cooking," he declares, "is the honor of our country."

"Since when," reply the feminists, "is the national honor in our stomachs? If the gentlemen wish to eat in their particular manner, let them also learn to cook."

If more people knew how their property will be disposed of by law—more people would make wills and name the

MODISH MITZI

Mitzi Learns About Passport Pictures

By Jay V. Jay

"If you are going abroad, Mitzi, we'll have to see about the passport," says Dad. "Oh, do," replies Mitzi with her mind still upon her new helmet felt of two colors. "Well, you'll have to have a passport picture first," says Dad. What will she wear for it?

She'd like to wear this hat with the brim because it is new. The crown features a boucle effect—very smart. Dad sarcastically remarks from the next room that she should remember the picture is to be of her—not the hat. But why not, wonders Mitzi when it's so becoming?

"To the right a little more," says the photographer. Mitzi wants to argue this instruction for it won't show the high line of her hat at all, at all. The ruthless photographer does not consider the ornament at the side back, or her white flower, or the scarf neckline.

"Me, not really me?" exclaims Mitzi at the incredible results she holds in her hand. The photographer is assuring her that they are better than most. Mitzi wonders if she will be able to pass any port even in a storm. Will they let her enter France—looking like that?

ATHLETICS SMOTHER NATIONALS UNDER 13-3 SCORE

Yankees Lead In General Play

Average Nearly 12 Hits Per Game During Week's Play.

White Sox, Yanks and Cubs Best Fielding Teams in Majors.

NEW YORK, April 17 (By A. P.).—Averaging nearly 12 hits and less than a single error per game, the New York Yankees led the two leagues in all-around baseball in the first week of play. As a result they head the American league with four wins and a tie in five engagements. The Athletics, whom they defeated three times and tied once in four tilts, were less effective both with the bat and in the field.

Leadership in the Nations circuit is shared by three teams—the Cubs, Pirates and Giants—all of which dropped one game in four starts. The weak-hitting Cubs owe a place in the sun to their tight fielding, the best in either league.

On their first week's showing, the three best hitting teams of the sixteen are the Yankees, who were expected to be a strong bunch of clouters; the Phillies who did not loom as particularly powerful with the club, and the Giants, whose murderers' row was augmented this year by such sluggers as Hornsby and Roush.

The best fielding clubs, as reflected in low error totals, are the Cubs, Yankees and White Sox, all three of which made less than one bobble a game. The Red Sox, on the other hand, led both leagues in making errors.

Each team in each league had the first four games of the season, which opened Tuesday, scheduled with the same opponent. In these duels in the American league, the Yanks took three out of four from Connie Mack's men and tied the other. Washington beat the Red Sox three times in three games, the Indians and White Sox broke even, and so did the Browns and Tigers who have played only five innings of baseball out of five scheduled games, because of rain.

As for the National league, the Cubs won two out of three from the world champion Cards, the Pirates took all three played with the Reds, the Giants carried off two games of their three with the Phillies, and the Braves won three out of four from luckless Brooklyn.

WASHINGTON'S CLOWNS AID MACK'S ELEPHANTS TO STAGE 3-RING BASEBALL CIRCUS

Hugh Miller, Post Staff Photographer.

The baseball game at American League park yesterday rivaled many of Barnum's shows under the big tent. The horseplay of Altrock and Shacht was the completing gesture. At left—Pitcher Decatur Jones, of the Nationals, is seen acting the clown after intercepting a throw from Rice that might have caught Collins coming home in the fifth inning had the rookie pitcher allowed the ball to go to Ruel. Jones intercepted the throw for no reason at all and is seen exhibiting it to the crowd for the same reason. Center—Ty Cobb slides safely into third base as he has done for 22 years. He made the base easily from first base after Rice allowed Simmons' single to trickle through his legs. Bluege is seen catching the ball too late to tag Cobb. At right—Nick Altrock, as Vincent Richards, and Al Schacht, as Suzanne Lenglen, mimicking the two tennis stars before the game yesterday. They showed better form than many of the Washington players yesterday.

CITY SOCCER CLUBS SPLIT EVEN

German-Americans in 4-0 Victory; Loss for Concords.

WASHINGTON soccer teams split with New York yesterday on the Rosedale playground, where a small crowd of fans witnessed the German-American club defeat the first team of the Germanias, 4 to 0, and Concord bowed to the second team of the visitors, 1 to 0.

Although the score indicates otherwise, the game in which the German-Americans triumphed was by far the best played. Even in defeat the passing game of the visiting team caused favorable comments among the fans. The German-Americans were in their best form of the season. Staatz, the local teams goalie, was exceptionally brilliant.

Bluer opened the scoring for the locals early in the game, and he and his teammates continued to press for the next 30 minutes but were unable to count again until five minutes before half time. Then Beyerlin broke through with a nice shot from a scramble, beating the visiting goalie easily.

Beyerlin also accounted for the first marker in the second half after Warner had made a neat pass. The visitors rallied after the third success of the locals and succeeded in worrying Staatz for ten minutes, but could not penetrate the home team's goal. Near the close of the game Werner scored the best goal of the day from a difficult angle.

Concord was in poor shape for the game yesterday, and the visitors were but little better. Neither eleven displayed much in the way of speed, and the contest would have ended a scoreless tie had not Jones, Concord goalie, remained out of his goal too long after

Wills Sought as Foe Of Spalla's Conqueror

Buenos Aires, April 17.—It is reported that arrangements are being made to match Harry Wills with Victorio Campolo, the Argentine heavyweight, who last night knocked out Ermino Spalla, in Buenos Aires, for May 25.

MASON-DIXON TITLE TO VOIGT

District Golfer Wins Finals Handily, 11 Up and 10.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W Va., April 17.—George Voigt, young Washington golfer, whose brilliant work in recent tournaments has attracted nation-wide attention, today added another championship to his list of laurels when he defeated R. A. Stranahan, of Toledo, 11 up and 10, in the 36-hole final round for the Mason and Dixon title. The match was played over the Green Brier Golf club course.

As is indicated by the score, the result was never in doubt. Voigt was driving for an average of 250 yards, was pitching his approaches right up to the pin, and was putting well. He negotiated the 26 holes necessary in today's match only one shot over even fours.

The victory marked the sixteenth Voigt has won since 1923, his list including top honors in the recent North and South tournament at Pinehurst and the Middle Atlantic golf association crown.

In this morning's round Voigt did not start his real playing until after the first nine holes. In his outward trip he held Stranahan even, but coming home he won eight of the nine holes, giving him such an advantage that playing the final round was a mere formality, and it was simply a question as to how big his winning margin would be.

Cards, Alexander Up, Beat Reds, 2-1, on Rally

Cincinnati, Ohio, April 17 (By A. P.). St. Louis by bunching three hits in the fifth inning won a tight game from Cincinnati today, 2 to 1. Outside of the fifth frame, Donohue kept the hits of St. Louis scattered. Alexander pitched good ball, although he was hit rather freely.

"Charley Horse" May Keep Speaker on Bench Today

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

OUTFIELDER TRIS SPEAKER yesterday pulled a "Charlie horse" in his right leg and there is a possibility of him not being able to play in this afternoon's contest with the Mackmen. The veteran received the injury when making the quick start necessary to beat out a bunt which filled the bases in the first inning of yesterday's game. Speaker tried to continue in the game, but finally gave way to Sammy West in the lower half of the fifth frame.

According to Speaker, there is no doubt but what he will be able to patrol the middle pasture as usual this afternoon, but Trainer Mike Martin is not so sure of this. Although admitting that the player's "Charley horse" is a small one—just a "colt"—he states that the answer depends upon whether or not the leg muscles tighten-up overnight.

Manager Stanley Harris can no longer stand the strain of inactivity and announced last night that he intended to put himself in the Nat line-up this afternoon. Bucky was "in again" opening day and "out again" in the next game, but he hopes today's "Finnigan" will be permanent.

"I may not go any better than Stewart; in fact, I may look like a monkey out there after my lay-off," he stated last night, "but I've made up my mind to get back in harness, injuries or no injuries. My finger is improving steadily, although far from being healed, while my hurt toe is as sore as a boil, but a manager's place is not on the bench and I'm willing to take my chances on further injuries."

Harris' decision is not a wise one under the circumstances, but he must be given credit for his grit.

Pitcher Hollis Thurston will serve the "apples" to Connie Mack's Elephants at the Georgia avenue orchard this afternoon. Manager Harris had hoped that Stanley Coveleskie, veteran spitballer, would be ready to resume duty, but although greatly improved, the Pole's salary wing is still bothering him and indications are that he will not be available for two or three more days.

Thurston, obtained from the White Sox in the deal which gave them Peckinpaugh, turned in a good performance against the Boston entry in Thursday's game, when he allowed but four hits. He is one of the few players on the Harrisian roster whom "Lady Luck" has overlooked when passing around injuries or illnesses and is showing indications of recovering his 1925 form, when he was the best flinger in the American league.

Just whom Mack will call on to do his pitching is not known; in fact, the veteran mahout of the elephant herd

Three D.C. Boys Make Grade in Va. League

The Virginia league has passed a week of their scheduled season and three Washington youths out of five candidates for tryouts in that league have made the grade. "Bob" Pollen, pitcher, failed to make good at Petersburg, due to his wildness, and Earl Moser could not make the same club on account of his weak hitting. His catching was said to have been up to the standard.

Among the District boys to stick in the Virginia league is Earl Clark, of the Richmond team, who has been hitting at a terrific pace and fielding his position in the outfield in a capable manner. "Sonny" Burdine also made the class, due to his powerful hitting and has earned himself a regular berth with the Petersburg club. Dick Streeks is holding down the second base position for the Petersburg team and is hitting capably enough to make him a regular second sacker for that club.

D. C. NETMEN SPLIT WITH COLUMBIA

Racquet Club Team and Collegians in 3-3 Tie.

THE newly organized Racquet club tennis team yesterday broke even in its first match of the season when it divided honors with the racketers of Columbia university. Six matches were played, each team scoring victories in two of the four singles and one of the two doubles set-tos.

Columbia started with a rush, taking the No. 1 and 2 singles matches. Bowden and Chargrel fought three hard sets before the visitor earned the verdict. D. Maclay defeated Harding in the second match in straight sets, but he was extended to the limit to take set 2, which called for twelve hotly contested games.

White and Burgwin then evened the singles count by turning in victories. The former, opposing M. Maclay, was given a great battle in the first two sets, both of which were deuced. White took the first, 8—6, and then dropped the second by the same score.

Maclay seemed to wilt after the strenuous going in these two sets and was easy in the deciding one, losing it, 6—2. Burgwin had little trouble in disposing of Pschorn, allowing the visitor but three games in the two sets needed to decide the match.

In the first doubles encounter, Howenstein and Burwell started with a rush and swept the Maclay brothers off their feet, winning, 6—2. The latter came back in the second set, however and forced the score to deuce before finally being subdued. This put it up to Benton and Mills to give the Racquet clubmen the match victory by trouncing Bowden and Pschorn, but they were unable to rise to the occasion and, when they went doyn, 6—2, 6—3, the affair ended in a draw.

SINGLES.

F. Bowden (Columbia) defeated C. M. Charest (Racquet), 8—6, 2—6, 6—4.; D. Maclay (Columbia) defeated Paul Harding (Racquet), 6—3, 7—5; A. O. White (Racquet) defeated M. Maclay (Columbia), 8—6, 6—8, 6—2; H. H. Burkwin (Racquet) defeated F. Pschorn (Columbia), 6—2, 6—1.

DOUBLES.

Howenstein and Burwell (Racquet) defeated D. and M. Maclay (Columbia), 6—2, 7—5; Bowden and Pschorn (Columbia) defeated Benton and Mills (Racquet), 6—2, 6—3.

Western Nine Leaves On Three-Day Trip

Today is unique in local school sport circles as there is not a single event scheduled. Western High school baseball team furnishes the only excitement of the day by leaving on a three-game trip, stopping at Staunton Military institute tomorrow, where they play the first game.

Wednesday, Coach Ahearn's men will journey to Waynesboro, where they will play Fishburne Military school. They will play the last game of the trip against the Washington & Lee Freshmen, returning home on Friday.

YANKS POUND WAY TO 14-2 VICTORY

Red Sox Hurlers Give 18 Hits; Gehrig Gets Two Homers.

NEW YORK, N. Y., April 17 (By A. P.).—Lou Gehrig featured in today's Yankees' 14-to-2 victory over the Red Sox. His two homers and single drove in six runs for the locals, two less than the American league record for a game. Johnny Tobin also hit a homer for the Red Sox.

The Yankees made 18 hits for 28 bases off Russell and MacFayden, two Red Sox youngsters:

Critz Signs With Reds For $12,000 Per Year

Cincinnati, Ohio, April 17 (By A. P.). Hughey Critz, star second baseman of the Cincinnati Nationals, who has been a holdout, signed his contract today. Critz had refused to sign at the club's salary terms, but after a conference with President Herrmann affixed his signature to a one-year contract, under which he is to receive $12,000.

Critz appeared in unifrom on the field before the game today and was given a rousing welcome by the fans. He will not get into the line-up during the two remaining games with the Cardinals, but very likely will appear against Pittsburgh later in the week.

Harris Forced To Call On 4 Hurlers

Simmons Hits Homer. Gray Hurls Well After Bad Start.

Sports Editor, The Post.

THE city's Easter parade was staged at American league park yesterday for the benefit of the Philadelphia Athletics and 27,000 other persons. The line of march was from the Washington dugout to the pitcher's box and four of Bucky Harris' pitching staff passed in review to the unrestrained music of Philadelphia's bats. The presence of umpires and the catcher's mask gave the proceedings a semblance of a ball game and official scorers announced the tally as 13 to 3 in favor of Philadelphia.

While Washington's pitchers were exhibiting their brand-new Easter styles of pitching, Sammy Gray who chucked the entire nine innings for Philadelphia did so in a modest but highly effective manner. Gray worked easily after being staked to a large lead and he was never in tro ble after the third inning.

Garland Braxton, left-handed pitcher obtained by Washington from New York last season, set the style for the remainder of his team's hurlers and his performance can not be said to be very good.

Decatur Jones followed Braxton to the mound and Marberry followed Jones. Hadley brought up the rear in the last two innings and by that time the only doubtful part of the proceedings was the size of Philadelphia's score at the end of the game. Of the quartet, only Marberry can take any satisfaction out of the parade.

While Bucky Harris' recruits were playing the new styles of baseball, Connie Mack's Athletics, with Tyrus Cobb showing the way, were playing the good, old-fashioned kind which consisted of swinging freely at pitched balls and running fast after the spheres sailed out to unprotected spaces.

Ty Cobb, whose legs were supposed to be creaking audibly to the crowds in American League ball park, took a new lease on life yesterday. He played quite well considering he batted out three hits in his first three times at bat and then batted out another in his fifth trip to the plate. And as he also worked his part of a double steal very nicely in the fourth inning, it may be said that he was the star of the ball game.

There were a few sidelights that detracted from the interest centered in the pitching parade. Al Simmons knocked a home run with Cobb on base in the third inning. The blow was inside the park and Speaker almost made the catch, but when he dropped the ball after a hard run, Simmons circled the four bases.

With the bases full in the fifth, Bill Lamar intercepted one of Braxton's screw balls and slammed it straight out to right field for a two-base hit, scoring three mates.

The game was close for two innings, Philadelphia scored two runs in the first and Washington tied the score in the same inning. Both teams failed to score in the second and at the start of the third Philadelphia commenced to win the game. The Athletics thenceforth scored in clusters. They

OUT STEP COLLYER'S CHOICE ON POOR "GRAW" CARD

Giant Named To Graduate In Third

Swenke Pair Picked to Beat Red Spider to the Wire.

Clarimode, Chic Valez Are Other Choices of Turf Expert.

By BERT E. COLLIER.

FORM players are crying murder and police after slanting the Monday offering at the "Graw." This is probably the worst "wash day" card ever presented an unsuspecting public. Where they got the nags scheduled to perform in the seven races is a mystery. It really takes ones appetite to discuss such races. And if you don't believe me, just ask Sophie Glutz.

Twenty juveniles are carded in the opener at four and one half furlongs. OUT STEP is likely to be one of the starters and seems just a shade better than FIRE FAIRY, which is also practically sure to sport silks. For what is left, one should string along with UPPER CRUST. "Slim" Winfrey is as busy as a bird dog in November getting down wagers on TALLEDGA in the second. It seems as though he has picked out the proper spot. He doesn't even need the help of Col. James, the demon handicapper. The best of the eligibles in the heat run for my old friend Mr. Sweeney.

Maiden three-year-olds compete in both the third and fourth events. These are good races to pass along to your neighbor, especially if you happen to dislike him. GIANT may graduate and the boys at the track send word that FRANK ANDERS is to carry some wise coin.

"Sarge" Swenkes will bring out the old darning needle in the fifth, when he sends MADLYN and TIPPERARY MARY to the post as an entry. He has little to beat save RED SPIDER and it is certain that he will have his money on the line. This appears to be a good spot to wager. For the sixth race, CLARIMODE; he may manage to last the route while in the closing spasm CHIC VALEZ was as good as any thing else.

HARPS POUND ARLINGTON HURLERS

Shamrocks Show Old-time Form in 13-3 Triumph.

THE Shamrocks, one of the leading contenders for the District unlimited title, exhibited plenty of punch yesterday pounding out nineteen hits to defeat the Arlington A. C. 13 to 3.

The work of Sams and Frager, pitchers for the Shamrocks was outstanding, the pair allowing Arlington only six hits, four of which accounted for a run being made off the delivery of Sams who worked five innings, while Frager allowed the other two safties. Frager, however, was a trifle wild allowing three passes which together with the two hits netted Arlington their last two runs.

Mel Hamby, at second, played a fine defensive game for the "Harps" and in addition starred at bat with four hits out of six trips to the plate.

Sharing the honors with the stick with Hamby was Dutch Smithson, who had a perfect day with five hits in as many times to bat. Tennyson, also of the winners, played a nice game at short and hit well.

Arlington was forced to use three pitchers, but they all looked alike to the Shamrocks, Snovis, who started being treated rather roughly in five innings when nine hits were made. Fisher got into trouble much sooner, lasting only two frames. The third twirler Macffer, who finished the game, was also touched for nine hits.

The Shamrocks turned in two double plays, Tennyson, Hamby and Haas figuring in the first and Sams, Hamby and Haas in the second.

CHEVY CHASE WINS OVER ADDISON

Bearcats Open Season With 6-5 Victory; Burrows Stars.

THE Chevy Chase Bearcats, one of the leading teams of the Capital City league last year, opened their season yesterday by winning a hard-fought game by a 6-to-5 score from Addison, who were entered last year in the Arlington County league.

The Bearcats led, 6-to-2, in the eighth inning, but Addison made a mighty effort to tie up the score in a ninth-inning rally which netted them three runs, just one short of their mark.

Preston Burrows and Irving Claude did the twirling for Chevy Chase. Burrows, a youngster, and pitching his first game for the Bearcats, held Addison to but two hits in five innings. Five hits in the remaining four innings were garnered off Claude's delivery.

Robinson and Brown did the pitching for Addison, Robinson allowing six hits in four innings and Brown four in five frames.

Cumberland, playing at second base for the losers, starred with the stick, pounding out two three-baggers.

MACKS ROUT WASHINGTON HURLERS

scored three runs in the third inning, three in the fourth and three in the fifth.

Washington, meanwhile, had adopted a policy of passive resistance. The team tried hard to back up its pitchers well, but there is a limit to all endeavor. Washingtons' infielders and outfielders were so busy chasing loose balls that there is little wonder that they not produce a punch in their turns at bat. It was three up and three down for Washington in the third, fourth and fifth innings.

Eddie Collins started the game at bat for Philadelphia and his single in the first inning was followed by singles by Cobb and Simmons and two runs resulted. Washington drew up on even terms in the same inning.

Rice beat out a bunt, Stewart hit through shortstop and Speaker beat out another bunt to fill the bases. A run scored on Goslin's infield out and another came across when Myer hit to the pitcher.

Braxton struck out Gray and Collins in the second inning and only three Washington men went to the plate in the latter half, but in the third, first intimation of what was to follow came when solid hits scored three runs for Philadelphia. Lamar doubled to start the inning and scored on Cobb's single. Simmons then slammed the ball over Speaker's head and turned the clout into a home run when Stewart fielded Speaker's return throw slowly.

Four hits and an error accounted for the Mackmen's three runs in the fourth inning off Braxton. Boley singled to right and went to second when the ball trickled between Rice's legs. Gray surprised by hitting a single to left field and, after Collins struck out, Lamar's single scored two. Cobb obtained his third straight hit and Lamar later scored on the front end of a double steal while Cobb reached second safely. Jones then went in to pitch for the Nationals and Simmons and Hale flied out.

By way of variation, Philadelphia scored three runs on one hit in the fifth inning. Poole was safe on Stewart's error and Boley walked after Perkins went out to the infield. Gray struck out, but Collins obtained another pass and, with the bases full, Lamar emptied them with a screaming two-bagger. Marberry then relieved Jones, and Cobb popped to Ruel.

The next run was scored by Washington in the eighth inning. Goslin tripled and scored on Myer's single as Gray eased up.

Hadley had been sent in to pitch for Washington in the seventh and he got by the seventh and eighth innings, but was fallen upon for two runs in the ninth. Poole flied out, but Perkins doubled to left and scored on Boley's single to center field. Boley scored when, with two out, Collins singled to left field.

Tate, pinch hitting for Hadley, with two out in the ninth, singled to right field, but was stranded when Rice popped to Collins.

Golf Most Popular Sport, With Tennis and Baseball Next; Track, Lacrosse, Volley Ball and Polo Draw Many.

JUDGING from statistics released by the public building and grounds and playground departments the coming of spring means more to Washington's citizenry than the return of the robins and flowers. Heads of these departments declare that between now and the first frost of the fall hundreds of thousands of local people will actively engage in sports on public fields.

Golf heads the list with promise that near 300,000 will take part on the four municipal courses and the practice course on the Polo field. Last year East Potomac park handled 130,131 players, more than any other public course. Tennis follows golf with 188,000 raquet wielders.

Baseball will draw the next largest number of participants, based on last year's figuers when nearly 100,000 cavorted on public diamonds. In addition to this about 20,000 adults will play on the Plaza and Rosedale playground fields.

About 250,000 additional exponents of outdoor recreation will participate in track, quoits, polo, roque, lacrosse, volley, croquet and schlag. Fishing in the tidal basin will draw about 8,000, it is estimated.

Naturally these figures do not represent individuals, as some were necessarily counted many times, but advocates of outdoor exercise view with pleasure the rapidly growing army of Washingtonians who actually participate in some form of sport.

Stevens Hurls Modocs To Win Over Johns, 8-2

Behind the steady pitching of Stevens, who allowed only five hits, the Modoc A. C. trounced the Cabin John nine, 8 to 2, yesterday.

R. Burrough and Richardson, with three hits apiece, starred with the bat. One of Richardson's drives went for three bases.

ST. JOSEPH'S WINNER AT EASTPORT

Farrington Gives Four Hits to Md. Club; Morris Shines.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 17.—The St. Joseph A. C. team, of Washington, opened its season here today with a neatly administered 6-2 victory over the Eastport A. A. club.

The Washingtonians, under the management of Frank Cinotti, produced a brilliant pitcher in Jack Farrington, who not only breezed through the nine frames in midseason style but allowed only four hits to a club noted for its ability to pound all sorts of pitching.

St. Joseph's beat Catlin, the local star, getting to him for nine hits despite the fact that he fanned eight batters. The fourth inning, when the visitors scored three runs, was his only real bad frame.

THURSTON TRIES ARM ON ATHLETICS TODAY

stated last night that his moundsmen have been so badly treated in games played to date that he has been unable to work them in any regular order and probably would name the one who warmed up best before today's game.

Al Simmons, Philadelphia centerfielder and one of his team's hardest and most consistent hitters, believes he will end the present season with the highest batting average he has ever attained. He bases this hope on the coaching he is receiving from his room-mate, Ty Cobb.

Heretofore Al has stood back on his heels and slugged, using the same stance against all types of pitchers. Cobb, who shifts around while at the tee, hugging the plate sometimes and on other occasions standing near the back of the box, has convinced Simmons this style will help him and the big flyhawk is giving the shift a trial and is enthusiastic over the results obtained. He still manages to keep one foot in the "water bucket" much of the time, however.

"Brick" Owens, the big flower man from Chicago, who umpires during odd moments, had to [illegible] Sammy Gray for delaying the game [illegible] first stanza with the sacks loaded [illegible] Goose Goslin up. The flinger [illegible] trying to get the "Goose's" [illegible]

Collins' legs may not [illegible] as they used to be, but [illegible] yesterday that his brain [illegible] tioning as well as ever [illegible] he noticed that Braxton failed to touch second, following Rice's hit in the second inning.

He called for the ball, touched second, and "Umps" Ormsby waved the Nat pitcher out. This is the first time a player has been called out at the home park for not touching a base for more than two seasons.

When Goslin was at the bat in the third, before finally striking out, he cost the Washington club exactly $7.25 by fouling five balls into the stands. This baseball item, it might be mentioned, is a big one to major league clubs. Last year the Harrismen used more than 600 dozen, at a cost in excess of $9,000. On the training trip which just ended, 85 dozen, at $15 per, were used, and this $1,275 bill was larger than that for the team's entire season in 1912.

It's a good thing Manager Harris yanked Pitcher Garland Braxton when he did in yesterday's game or some of the Nat infielders might have been killed. The young southpaw evidently has not regained his strength following his recent grip attack.

He was effective in spots, however, fanning four in the short time he worked. Eddie Collins twice was a strike-out victim, this veteran once having gone through an entire season with only two "three-strike" deaths charged against him.

Utility Infielder Bob Reeves reports that his battered finger has just about healed and that he is now ready to do his stuff any time Boss Harris calls on him.

Despite Washington's rather sorry showing yesterday, members of the Harrisian forces managed to make the two best fielding plays of the game. In the opening inning, Buddie Myer made one of the prettiest stops seen here in many moons when he robbed Hale of a hit by diving for his grounder and tossing to second for a force play while lying flat on the ground. The other sensational play also was made at Hale's expense, Rice making a fine one-hand catch after a long run to end the eighth frame.

NORCROSS, GRAF TIE IN ARGYLE "KICKER" [illegible]

Amateur-Pro Tourney Today

Horning Captures Indian Springs Sweepstakes Event.

Argyle Course Sold. Links Available for 16 Months.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

THE members of the Argyle Golf club inaugurated their golfing season yesterday with a kickers' handicap in which more than 60 players participated. This event, as every golfer knows, consists of a medal play of 18 holes, each competitor selecting his own handicap. When all the scores have been turned in, a number is drawn and the player whose net score coincides with the lucky figure wins the prize.

It was announced before the play started by Forrest Thompson, chairman of the golf committee, that the number would be between 65 and 75 and all the contestants endeavored to bring their net scores somewhere within these limits. Only 17 were successful, the other scores ranging from a net 62, which was the card of George H. Marshall, who handicapped himself too high with 80 strokes, to 90 and over.

The number drawn was 70 and this figure was tied by Dr. A. C. Norcross, 96—26—70, and J. E. Graf, 86—16—70. The tie was decided by drawing and Dr. Norcross won the first prize.

For the third prize there was a quadruple tie, between F. M. Shortall, 99—30—69; William Keane, 90—21—69; F. M. McCarthy, 98—27—71, and Harry Peacock, 91—20—71. After these names had been placed in a hat, Shortall won the prize. Other net scores between 65 and 75 were as follows:

F. A. Crawford, 92—20—72; W. A. Taylor, 99—26—73; William P. DiEste, 83—10—73; George Gist, 85—12—73; E. B. Pristoe, 104—30—74; Edward Watson, 94—20—74; G. H. Stiles, 113—39—74; L. P. DiEste, 89—15—74; John O'Connor, 94—20—74; C. W. Griffin, 92—17—75; D. F. Barnes, 95—20—75.

The first amateur-professional match of the season will be played this afternoon, beginning at 1 o'clock, on the course of the Washington Golf and Country club, competition being best ball, eighteen holes. Among the contestants will be the following:

E. P. Davidson, amateur, and Robert T. Barnett, professional, Chevy Chase; Guy M. Standifer, amateur, and Ralph Beach, professional, Burning Tree; Paul Keyser, amateur, Washington, and Walter Cunningham, professional, Burning Tree; Fred McLeod, professional, Columbia, and partner; Tom Moore, amateur, and Eddie Towns, professional, Indian Spring; Walter R. McCallum, and Frank Roesch, amateurs, and Dave Thompson and William Wood, professionals, Washington Golf and Country; F. P. Reeside, amateur, and William Hardy, professional, Chevy Chase; Arthur B. Thorn, professional, and partner, Town and Country; Perry B. Hoover, amateur, and Eugene Larkin, professional, Indian Spring.

The sweepstakes tournament at the Indian Spring club yesterday was won by J. B. Horning, whose gross score of 97, with a handicap of 25, gave him a net 72. The prize for low gross was won by Fred Walen, 43-40—83.

The present course of the Argyle club, near the Colesville pike, is eventually to be abandoned, an outcome predicted in this column some weeks ago. The transfer of the property to a syndicate which is purchasing large areas in the section east of Silver Spring has now become a certainty, although the new owners have agreed to allow the club to remain in undisturbed possession for the next 16 months.

In the meantime the club officials have been offered more than a dozen tracts of land upon which an 18-hole course can be constructed and will, as soon as possible, acquire new land and reestablish the club in its new location.

In the two-man team matches now in progress at Indian Spring, Pope and Mulroy and Hoover and Zimmerman continue to lead the first section, each tied with six points to their credit. In the second section the results of yesterday's matches did not affect the standing of Foley and Kluoken, who still hold the lead with five points, while in the third section Cantwell and Ray have forged into the front rank with five points.

The golfing members of the Washington Bankers' association will hold their annual spring tournament on the course of the Columbia Golf club this afternoon, the event to be followed by a dinner at the club-house.

Next Wednesday the first golf tournament of the season of the Washington Dental association will be played on the course of the Indian Spring club, with a dinner at the conclusion of the competition.

Tigers Beat Tribe, 5-1, In First League Game

Cleveland, Ohio, April 17 (By A. P.).—Detroit played its first ball game of the 1927 season today and defeated Cleveland, 5 to 1. Uhle, Cleveland's premier pitcher, was hit hard from the start, finally retiring at the end of the seventh, when his lack of control, with hits by Warner and by Gibson, produced three runs.

Gibson not only held Cleveland to eight hits and one run, but made four hits himself, three off Uhle and one off Buckeye. Cleveland's only run was the result of doubles by Jamieson and Spurgeon.

By DOROTHY S. GREENE.

CHILDREN 10 per cent or more under their normal weight will not be eligible for strenuous athletic activities on the Municipal playgrounds or in the public school athletic button tests this year.

In an effort to protect these children from overactivity lists of those found to be within the danger zone in the schools where the child health department of the Tuberculosis association carries on, weight-height-age surveys have been prepared. These lists have been sent to Miss Maude N. Parker, of the playground department, and Dr. Rebecca Stoneroad, supervisor of physical education in the public schools.

All physical directors on the staffs of these two city departments will be provided with the names of children in their sections and will use precautions in guarding the health of the girls and boys who need to be built up physically before they will be able to participate in strenuous games without harming themselves.

Lists of red star children, as the seriously underweight are called, have been compiled by Miss Margaret H. Craig, director of child health education of the Tuberculosis association, from the following schools where her staff has worked this year: Arthur, Gales, Blake, Seaton, Blair, Hayes, Bryan, John Burroughs, Corcoran, Jackson, Raymond, Hubbard, Van Ness, Lenox, Wilson Normal, Bancroft, Johnson, Takoma Park and Woodridge.

Similar precautions are being taken in the following parochial schools: Holy Comforter, Holy Name, Nativity, St. Paul's school and St. Paul's High school.

SWIMMING MEET LISTED.

Washington Recreation league swimmers will open their swimming activities this evening at 8 o'clock in the new Y. W. C. A. tank on K street.

Members of any league club who have not yet had their physical examinations should call Miss Margaret H. Craig, at Main 992, for an appointment.

Pirates Stop Cubs, 8-3, As Root Blows in 7th

Chicago, April 17 (By A. P.).—Charley Root blew up in the seventh inning after permitting only one hit and the Pirates knocked his offerings to all corners of the lot defeating Chicago 8 to 3, before a capacity crowd estimated at more than 45,000.

The crowd overflowed into the field, making ground rules necessary. Nine hits into the overflow went for two bases.

Kremer pitched a steady game, but looked like a beaten man after Hack Wilson had smashed a home run in the fourth with a man on base. Manager Donie Bush rushed pinch hitters and pinch runners into the fray during the seventh inning rally and succeeded in turning the tide of battle.

Chisox' 9-Run Rally Beats Browns, 12 to 5

St. Louis, April 17 (By A. P.).—The Chicago White Sox evened the series with the St. Louis Browns here today by trouncing them, 12 to 5, with a spectacular rally in the ninth inning, when they brought in nine runs. Confident at the end of the eighth that they had the game stowed away, 3 to 5, the Browns were dismayed to see the Sox hitting and walking to a seven-run lead.

WORK LEADER IN DUCKPIN LEAGUE

Veteran Bowler Tops National Capital Circuit.

AL WORK, southpaw pin artist of the Joseph Phillips Co. club, won high honors in the National Capital league for the season of 1926-27 with an average of 116-1 for 75 games. His nearest competitor was Arthur Logan, of the Meyer Davis team, with 114-53, which was just 24 pins better than the mark established by Reds Megaw, of King Pin.

Work also figured again when the strike prize winner was determined. Though the veteran of many seasons on the drives had made but 47 strikes while both Farnum, of the Knights of Columbus, and Price, of Arcadia, were credited with 48, the Joseph Phillips star won the event with an average of .627, the award being made on that basis instead of on the greatest number made.

Likewise, in the matter of strikes, Frank Miller, of the Belmonts was way out in front with 204, but inasmuch as he completed in 81 games, his average fell considerably and allowed "Reds" Megaw to capture the honors with 182 marks in 66 games for an average of 2.757 per game.

King Pin and Meyer Davis, two of Bill Woods entries in the circuit won the first two places in the league with Belmonts nosing Joseph Phillips out of third. The King Pin club also took high team set with 1,856, while Howard Campbell, their anchor man, had high individual set with 434. Arthur Logan, of the Musicians, won high game with 172, while Arcadia figured in high team game honors.

THREE GAMES TODAY FOR COLLEGES

Georgetown, Catholic U. and Maryland Nines in Action.

BASEBALL among the colleges of the District group will be inaugurated this week with three games today, which will find Northern teams as the invaders in every instance.

Georgetown will be host to the Nittany Lions of Penn State at the Hilltop, Syracuse will invade Brookland stadium at Catholic university and Lafayette will meet the Maryland nine at College Park.

Georgetown today will strive to retrieve a bit of the prestige it lost last Saturday when beaten by the crack Holy Cross nine, 5 to 4. Against Holy Cross, Georgetown faced excellent pitching by Davidson but a rally all but tied the score in the ninth inning. Gillespie is the likely hurler for Georgetown today. Little is known of Penn State's prowess although the Pennsylvanians were beaten by the University of Virginia last Saturday, 6 to 4.

In meeting Lafayette, Maryland will be seeking its sixth straight victory. Richmond, Springfield, Wale, Lehigh and Stevens have fallen before the smooth playing of the Old Line nine, which has combined good pitching with timely hitting.

Catholic University's foe, Syracuse, comes to Washington from Lexington, Va., where it was beaten by Washington and Lee's nine in an eleven-inning game last Saturday. Syracuse will encounter Catholic University at a time when the latter is in top form, having shut out the Stevens institute team in its last game.

BALLSTON A. C. WINS.

The Ballston A. C. won, 7 to 2, on the Ballston field yesterday over the Loudoun A. C. The Ballston aggregation plays the Liberty A. C. Sunday. The team will practice Tuesday and Thursday at 5 o'clock on the Ballston field in preparation for the game.

Elliott Enters Auto Race; To Drive Front-Wheel Car

Entries of Harry Hartz and Dave Lewis Also Received for International Sweepstakes at Indianapolis on May 30.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 17.—Frank Elliott, one of the better-known speedway racing drivers, will be in the lineup of the fifteenth annual international sweepstakes on May 30 at the Indianapolis motor speedway.

Not only will Elliott be at the starting line, but he will make his first appearance on any track as the driver of a front-wheel racing car. Not only is it a front wheeler, but its claim to fame lies in the fact that its chassis, at least, graced the first front-drive racing car that made a good showing at Indianapolis. Reference is to the junior eight special, which Dave Lewis drove to second place in the fastest race that ever has been run on the historic 500-mile race course. This was on May 30, 1925.

Very little is left of Dave's history-making car other than the chassis, but the name still remains and with all the skill that Frank Elliott is known to possess in making racing cars fast it is not expected that it will be any slower than when Lewis drove it.

Elliott drove a Miller special and finished sixth in the Indianapolis race last year. So well had he driven throughout the year that he won fifth place in the American Automobile association driving championship for 1926.

Elliott's entry for the great motor classic comes on the heels of the announcement of the entry of Harry Hartz, 1926 champion, and Dave Lewis, both in front-wheel cars, and a car nominated by Jack Le Cain.

Elliott belongs to the type of driver that is not sensational, yet, because of this very fact, is dangerous in competition at all times.

INSECTS WOULD PLAY.

The Earl McNeesley Insects are looking for a game for Tuesday. Teams should call Manager Pickett at Adams 961.

Doak Beats Robins, 7-2; 25,000 See Braves Win

Brooklyn, N. Y., April 17 (By A. P.).—The Brooklyn Robins "unofficially" opened their championship home season today and before 25,000 fans suffered their fifth straight defeat, to the Boston Braves, 7 to 2. Bill Doak, veteran spitball pitcher, attempting a comeback after two years of retirement in Florida, held Boston to seven hits in seven innings. He was removed for a pinch hitter. The Robins knocked Benton out of the box in the sixth.

CITY DUCKPIN MEET TO OPEN

Thirty-Eight Masonic Teams Bowl for Two Prize Lists.

By W. CHARLES QUANT.

WHEN the 38 teams of the Masonic league inaugurate the seventh annual tournament of the Washington City Duckpin association at Convention hall tonight, they will not only be competing for the many trophies and other prizes offered by the Washington City association but also for the special awards being made by the Masonic league to its league members.

This situation is brought about by the action taken by the directors of the Masonic league last fall. At that time it was voted to enter the Masonic league in the annual tournament as a body and to set aside three nights for determining the winners of the Masonic prizes in lieu of holding their own tournament which they have been accustomed to staging in midwinter each year.

Tonight's program calls only for team competition with twenty going on the drives at 7 o'clock and the other eighteen at 9 o'clock.

The first singles and doubles will be rolled tomorrow night which has been nominated for the government department teams. Wednesday will find the Electric league boys in action with the Agricultural circuit teams predominating Thursday's program. The first week of the event will be concluded on Friday with the postoffice clubs in command.

Barring some upsets, no record breaking performances can be expected during the first week as a survey of the schedule fails to reveal any of the star clubs or bowlers in action at that time.

HESS MIDGETS WIN.

The Hess Midgets defeated Somerset Midgets yesterday by a 10-to-3 count. Schneider and Warner started at bat for the winners.

WRC WILL BROADCAST 'THE TALES OF HOFFMAN'

National Grand Opera Company to Be Directed by Cesare Sodero.

D. A. R. PROGRAM BY RADIO

So popular with listeners, Offenbach's fanciful opera, "The Tales of Hoffman," will be heard tonight at 10 o'clock over WRC. While it is generally known that the opera was composed by Offenbach it is not of such common knowledge that death overtook him before he had a chance to complete the work. Ernest Girard finished it and made the instrumentation. The words of the opera were written by Michael Carre and Jules Barbier. It was first produced in Paris in 1881.

The presentation tonight will be made by the National Grand Opera company, under the direction of Cesare Sodero.

Roxy has selected for his headliner tonight the old reliable Frank Moulan, who is about as sure-fire, all-round a comedian as Walter Johnson is a pitcher. Roxy divulges the interesting fact that Frank Moulan began life as a choir boy.

Germany, which is rich in folk songs and student songs for male voices, will be the country which the traveling Harvesters will visit tonight. In addition, they will pay a fleeting visit to Austria. The Manhattan Male quartet will take part in this program, in addition to the usual orchestra.

The Gypsies, under the direction of Harry Horlick, tonight will play selections from the "Desert Song" and the "Lady in Ermine," well-known Broadway successes. John Barnes Wells is the tenor soloist. Other features tonight include baseball scores and Meyer Davis' Swanee Syncopators.

A special afternoon feature of operalogues by Miss Julia Schilling will be heard at 1:15 this afternoon. They will include "Traviata" and "Cavalleria Rusticana." The afternoon program also includes concerts by the Palais d'Or orchestra, the United States Navy Band orchestra and the Hofbrau orchestra.

Two short-wave transmitters located at WGY in Schenectady will broadcast a special message from Dr. James Roland Angell to alumni assembled in London, Paris, Rome, Honolulu and Tokyo.

From 8 to 10 o'clock tonight station WMAL will broadcast the program of the Daughters of the American Revolution convention from Continental Memorial hall. The program will include an address by Secretary of the Navy Curtis D. Wilbur, Bishop James E. Freeman and a concert by the Marine band.

Radio, it seems, is coming to be more and more standard equipment of railroads. Just recently the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul installed a set on their special short runs between Chicago, Sioux City and Omaha, which picked up over 30 stations en route. Likewise the L. & N. railroad has been using radio sets on their trains between Louisville, Nashville and New Orleans with such excellent results, it is said, that 15 to 20 more sets have recently been contracted for.

A remarkable instance of long distance daylight reception has come to the attention of KFI, Los Angeles. Recently that station received a card from James Weaving, of Auburn, R. I., stating that he had heard the Sunday morning church services broadcast. Because of the great distance and the hour of the day, KFI thought there might have been a mistake in the station he heard, and asked for a detailed log of the program, which was promptly furnished by Mr. Weaving.

RADIO RULING MAY HURT STATUS OF 20 STATIONS

RESTRICTED POWER SEEN

(By the Associated Press.)

There are 129 radio stations among the 732 now operating which will find difficulty in obtaining desirable status and temporary permits to continue service after Sunday.

This calculation was made yesterday by H. A. Bellows, a member of the Federal radio commission, from data compiled on applications for permits which the commission has received from virtually every operating station.

The unlucky 129 stations are those which have, since July 1, 1926, abandoned the original wave length channel assigned them by the Commerce Department and have been operating at what is technically classed as "intermediate frequency." Radio communication channels have been set at 10 kilocycles apart by national and international agreement, and the 129 stations have been operating regardless of this, producing, Commissioner Bellows' statement declared, "interference on two wave lengths besides their own."

Each of these 129 stations is being assigned a new wave for future operation, and will have to stick to it under penalty, though the channel allotted may be in the "short wave" area of the broadcasting band which is not highly congested.

Further, Commissioner Bellows said, some of the high power stations operating in residential districts may find that their power rating has been sharply cut down, although the number of installations likely to be affected has not been determined. In the view of the commission, both steps are likely to result in the more advantageous conditions to the listening public.

Bicycle Fractures Motorist's Bones

Special to The Washington Post.

Frostburg, Md., April 17.—A motorist is in Miners' hospital here with both jawbones broken, collarbone fractured, probable fracture of the hip and numerous cuts and bruises from having been struck by a bicycle. Gerald Wilhelm, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Wilhelm, is the victim.

At the foot of Big Savage mountain last night Wilhelm had stopped his car on the right side of the road and was in the act of walking to the other side of the road when Harry Brown, 18, riding a bicycle en route to Frostburg from Meyersdale, Pa., struck him, knocking him 15 feet.

Brown was coasting down the steep mountain and, while thrown to the side of the road head first, is not thought to be seriously injured.

3 Youths Lose Lives In Crossing Accident

Gary, Ind., April 17 (By A. P.).—Three youths of Riverdale, Ill., were killed and a fourth probably fatally injured last night when the automobile in which they were riding was struck by a Pennsylvania passenger train at Lansing, Ill., southwest of Chicago.

The four youths attempted to negotiate a crossing in the business district of the town and ran squarely in front of the locomotive of the train bound from Chicago to Indianapolis.

OFFERINGS AT THE THEATERS

STRAND

"Irish Eyes Are Smiling," is the Strand Players' presentation for this week. There are songs of old Erin that would touch any heart. The enthusiasm of the actors added to the snappy chorus, makes the Easter week attraction one of the best yet shown at the Strand.

Hamp, Lewis, Root, Brewer and the Misses La Monte, Vincent and Adair appear in such scenes as "On the Links," "Niagara Falls," "The Doctor Shop," and "A Day In the Park."

Grant and Adair, the specialty dancers, perform "The Chicken Reel." It is presented with the same grace that is characteristic of this pair. Grant has acquired much success through his never-ending, novel presentations.

The Misses Deery and Shaeffer are again featured in singing skits that include Irish songs, put over with ability.

The musical hits are "Ragtime Rosie," "Pat Rooney," "What a Funny World," "Wild Irish Rose," and "Mother," which was sung by Hamp.

Arthur Manvell's orchestra helps greatly in the production of the melodious Irish songs.

"The Mysterious Rider," with Jack Holt, David Torrence, and Betty Jewel, is the screen attraction, showing this week. It tops the thermometer with thrills and clever gun play.

The finest used cars in Washington are listed regularly in Post Classified Ads. Big values at little cost.

Little Mitzi Romps Along In a Comedy With Music

"The Madcap," an Adaptation From the French, With Plenty of Dance Tunes and a Comely Chorus, Opens at Poli's.

The Messrs. Shubert present Mitzi in "The Madcap," a comedy with music in three acts. Adapted from the French by Gladys Unger. Lyrics by Clifford Grey. Music by Maurie Rubens. Dances by Harry Puck. Staged by Duane Nelson. Musical director, Edwin E. Ludig. The entire production under the personal supervision of Mr. J. J. Shubert.

In the original French "The Madcap" was undoubtedly good comedy. It has all the ear-marks of having been broad farce. The music served with it, in its present form, is of the type that sets feet dancing and, when played minus the lyrics, swells to popular proportions. Mitzi is still Mitzi. Yet, the offering at Poli's fails to click.

One night out of Allentown, Pa., is probably the answer, though there are several others that might be offered by the experts. Suiting the comedy to the star, the star to the comedy, is quite a task in these days of sophisticated theater. Mitzi, in several recent starts, has failed to meet with the success her ability and popularity deserves.

In all justice, the end of the week may have another story to tell; for, in spots, "The Madcap" jogs along—if only in spots. However, the great American public has come to look for more than jogging in comedy, with or without music.

Hard luck attended the premiere of the "The Madcap" here. Sydney Greenstreet, cast in a principal role, was stricken ill, confined to his apartment in Dr. Frank Morse's celebrated sanitorium—The Benedict. Though Eric Blore gallantly stepped into the breach, filling the role with credit to himself and the scenery, there was still a semblance of amateurishness throughout the cast, as if the opus had not been properly rehearsed. Despite this, there were flashes of the old Mitzi—which means the young Mitzi, the Mitzi of "Pom Pom" and "Sari." So a first night audience should have responded; yet it did not.

Off hand, it seems that Mitzi is meant for a complete evening of musical comedy and not mere comedy with music, though the line of demarkation may be a very thin one. Since the present vehicle gives her an opportunity to play the hoydenish young girl in baby clothes the ever winsome Mitzi may eventually do something with "The Madcap," but the road ahead is a rocky one. At least, here's wishing her luck. The girl has ability.

PALACE

Easter week bursts over Loew's Palace and showers down for the interim Norma Shearer in "The Demi-Bride" for the delectation of the movie public, a French love story shot through with well-barbed shafts of levity. The stage feature continues to be Irving Aaronson and his flashing "Commanders."

"The Demi-Bride" in the story of a lively French girl who would be herself despite the good intentions of her "mamma" and the sisters of the convent where she is domiciled. Glimpsing a gay blade over convent walls one day she determines to follow the impulses of her heart and join the worldly throng. Over the fence she hops and falls into his lap. Now it chances tha tthe gay young fellow is not a "gay young fellow" after all, but a roue who is most ardently in love with the maiden's "mamma"—and a hundred other women also.

As matters fall out, in her blissful ignorance of the ways of the world and men, the little convent lady "carries on" in her own impetuous way until she and the "gay young blade" are married. And then follows a revelation and a true understanding of each other.

The role of the "Demi-Bride" appears, on the whole, a little difficult for Miss Shearer. She comes off exceedingly well in the comedy parts, but in the more serious ones, it seems a little hard for her to get off to the best account of herself.

Aaronson's Commanders have lost nothing of their musical charm in the week that has passed since first they graced the stage at the Palace. Peggy English, syncopating songstress sings her "blue songs" with verve and feeling. "Voices of Spring" reveal the artistic touch, always in evidence at the Palace, in a new fantasy; while not the least of the outstanding program is the theme song, "Give Me a Smile," composed by O. J. Ratto, house manager for the Palace. Minute Views and an overture, "The Fortune Teller," by Victor Herbert, round out the bill. Joseph Cherney, as guest conductor, wields the orchestral baton for the week.

METROPOLITAN

On the principle that anything can be believed about the magic city of Venice, the new picture of Constance Talmadge, at the Metropolitan this week, may be accepted as telling an interesting and amusing story. Some movies are incredible in the wrong way to be entertaining, especially when they ask to be taken seriously. "Venus of Venice" is a frolicsome bit of romance that makes no such demand. All you need to believe is that a ragmuffin, lass of the Veitian waterways, a trained thief and the ward and companion of cutthroats, could be so captivating, as she must be in Miss Talmadge's person, that a wealthy young American artist and collector would attempt to reform her, and anyhow marry her.

As such a fairytale figure, absurd and delightful, Miss Talmadge holds the center of the screen throughout the series of exciting and comical incidents. Antonio Moreno as the American is credible enough, and there are several other cleverly drawn character bits. But the most attractive side of the film, apart from the heroine, is the intimate depiction of Venetian ways, houses and places, such as are passed over in the more showy views of the travelogue. They are convincing enough, whether made in Venice or THollywood. This ridiculously dainty little thief Carlotta is a regular water rat, and when the police are about to nab her she merely dives out of a window.

Other films in the program are news pictures and a "Helen and Warren" comedy, which appeals to many, but not to some. To new Vitaphone reels are offered. In one Sylvia Froos, once known on the screen as "Baby Sylvia," sings and dances as growing girls must. The other brings to us again Waring's Pennsylvanians, the popular orchestra. They give three numbers, of which the last, called "Where you Worka, John?" is a bit of original fun that should not be missed.

EARLE

Johnny Harron stars in the film feature, "Love Makes 'Em Wild." Comedy of the best is incorporated in the story, which has no very deep plot. Willie Angle, termed "The Worm" by the office force of Barden & Green Co. because of his want of initiative, is the office goat. A new stenographer, Mary O'Shayne, takes an interest in him. Willie falls ill from love at once and is assured by a quack doctor that he has but two weeks to live. Charlie McGuire (Arthur Houseman) poses as the "friend in need" and helps him spend his $4,000 savings. Willie finds himself in high life and returns to the office to square accounts with janitor and elevator man, from whom he had taken insult and injury. After a somewhat disastrous fight with the janitor an interested doctor proves helpful in more ways than one.

The comedy is breezy and snappy, and on the safe side of the ridiculous.

Johnny Harron gives satisfactory characterizations of both the weak and resolved Willie Angle. Sally Phillips portrays Mary without a flaw. Ben Bard, J. Farrell MacDonald and Natalie Kingston are others in a good supporting cast.

Newsreel, orchestral and organ embellishment complete the Easter bill.

An "extra" on the bill is an interruption for a short explanation of national vaudeville artists' week—during which a collection was made. Miss Jerrie Dean sang a song and two local girls entertained.

Outstanding on the vaudeville program of the Earle this week is the appearance of the George Washington University Glee club of 48 voices, two soloists and a pianist. Opening with "Jolly Roger," then "The Merry Frogs" (probably their best number), Mrs. Harmon, at the piano, followed with "Can't Do That Sum" with a chorus accompaniment. "Miserere," from Il Trovatore, in solo by Juanita Froehlich, and an unnamed tenor, with glee club accompaniment was in fine technique.

Miss Jerrie Dean, in her impersonations of "Mary Pickford," was best as "Little Lord Fauntleroy."

The act of Billy Wayne and Ruth Warren, titled "The Last Car," needs a little more pep, but the idea is new and entertaining.

You don't have to stand "depreciation costs" when you purchase a good used car that is advertised in Post Classified Ads.

KEITH'S

This is National Vaudeville Artists week—and as everyone knows, or should know, it calls for a great deal of hilarity on the national variety stage. In consequence of this happy season Mr Robbins, of the local Keith's house, has had the music hall decked in flags—the lady ushers sport new harlequin suits—Mr. Raymond Hitchcock is stationed at the door to greet the variety fan, and everything, so to speak, is mapped out for a very happy week.

Topping this week's bill is Raymond Hitchcock himself, who does the master of ceremonies in the approved style. He appears early in the bill and lends a jovial word of encouragement during the entire proceedings. His skit calls for very little in the way of scheduled amusement, but he manages to make the most of the assignment and is received quite well.

Jay C. Flippen might be identified as the extra added attraction on the current bill. "The Ham What Am," as the utilitarian title states, has the same skit seen on the local boards some months ago. True, there are a few new songs—but these were inevitable. His stories don't vary in substance—his makeup is as correct as need be—and his cigar hasn't diminished the fraction of an inch during his absence. The Flippen fans will probably get a big kick out of this triumphant return of the black-face one.

Eva Clark, who is good for three encore numbers on any stage, opened the latter half of the program at yesterday's performance. She presents a charming song cycle, including some of her older numbers—as well as some new material—in fine style. As usual, Dan Caslar presides at the piano. He obliges with his famous, if a bit ancient, rendition of "The Rosary."

Arthur Aylesworth and company have an interesting little playlet "Envy," which is paraded for the edification of the folks who like short comedies. The piece is well acted—the short plot interesting—and Mr. Aylesworth seemed to get a deal of satisfaction out of the effort. It was written by Edwin Burke and is staged nicely.

A young gentleman with a vaudeville voice, to-wit: Master Raymond Eiseman, holds down the deuce spot with his song and dance number, "A Little Artist." His song offerings are put across with a variety of Jolsonisms and his dances are eager and well-received. The act, all told, registers favorably.

Gracella and Theodore have a revue number entiled "Nights of Love." It is presented in three flash numbers with this twain doing the heavy work in the opening and closing pieces. The revue offers somethings new in the way of gymnastic terpsichore. Julene Carten, Chester Bright, Helen Ruth and John Torina are in support of the principals.

Gene Pearson and Bob Anderson are on the bill with their "A Daisy and a Dame," featuring some stuff that has been heard and seen of yore. Claude de Carr and company open the bill with "A Pantomime Acrobatic Novelty" and a pomeranian pup. And the rogust icelander Johannes Josefson kills several Indians in his cameo-drama, "The Pioneer."

LITTLE THEATER

The opening program of the Little theater, now appealing to particular tastes from its gilded quarters on Ninth street, between F and G streets, has found so many sympathetic souls that another week is needed to give them all a chance. "Potemkin," the Russian film that makes most of the show, is a faithful rendering of the dramatic events attending the famous mutiny of the crew of the armored cruiser of that name, in the Black sea off Odessa, in June, 1905, in the midst of the Russo-Japanese war. It is tremendously vivid and moving, and it differs from any well-known American films, unless we except the Yale Chronicle series, in depending solely on actual events for the maintenance of interest, without injecting anything like plot or story.

The program also includes "A Dog's Life," one of the best of the old Charlie Chaplin films; a rare picture showing Shaw, Barrie, Pinero and other British notables discussing the cinema; a burlesque arranged by Leonard Hall, and a fantasy in abstract color effects produced by the Eastman Co.

NATIONAL

"Ben-Hur" opened the second week of its current run—fifth week counting the first run—at the National yesterday. This fact alone should be sufficient proof of the picture's greatness.

The film abounds in thrills, pathos, beauty and heart interest. The thundering chariot race in the arena at ancient Antioch, in which Ben-Hur (Ramon Novarro) defeats his arch enemy, Messala (Francis X. Bushman), is a never-to-be-forgotten spectacle, perhaps the most thrilling thing of its kind ever filmed.

The picture is adapted from the novel by Gen. Lew Wallace. The time is the time of Jesus Christ, and the life of the Saviour is entertwined with that of Ben-Hur, a Jewish prince. Through the picture runs the thread of a charming love story.

The cast reads like a Who's Who in the movies. Besides Novarro and Bushman, there is May McAvoy, Betty Bronson, Carmel Myers, Claire McDowell and a host of others.

RIALTO

Dolores Costello, rising luminary of the starry firmament of Hollywood, is seen featured at the Rialto this week in "The Third Degree," film adaptation of Charles Klein's dramatic piece by that name. Miss Costello handles well a most difficult role.

Annie Daly was a child of the circus. All her lifelong from babyhood until 18 she had known nothing of the world save the sawdust ring. And then came into her life the son of a wealthy and artistocratic man. They are married.

The mother of Annie Daly had not been a good wife. When the baby was 2 she had followed off "her lover" leaving, with a heavy heart withal her baby, to a new world.

Married Annie Daly finds herself an outcast from the home of the father of her husband—the old story of low birth and high caste. The second wife of the boy's father looks on sympathetically. She seems to understand the futility of social barriers.

The father determines to regain his boy by fair or foul means from his ill-chosen but beautiful and tender wife. He concerns himself more with foul means than fair. And thus it turns out that the detective chosen by him to spy upon his children and wreck their love is none other than the man who stole the mother of Annie Daly from her husband. And who is the mother now—though all unknown to Annie and the rest—but the second wife! The plot thickens. There is a murder. The detective is killed. The boy, found in the home, is accused. He is given the grewsome third degree. He confesses. And then comes the untangling—a mother's sacrifice—and happiness for the two children.

The stage presentation for the week is Helen Eley, musical comedy favorite from Broadway, in a "Festival of Fun and Song." The Rialto orchestra, Rox Rommel conducting, renders with shaded beauty, as an overture, "From Dawn to Twilight." The funfest for the week is a Stern Brothers comedy, "Kid George."

COLUMBIA

John Barrymore frolics, cajoles, suffers and loves throughout his first independent production, "The Beloved Rogue," now playing its second week at the Columbia. As Francois Villon, poet, pickpocket and patriot, Barrymore has decisively created a new film character that will be memorable. His characterization of Villon as "king of the fools," favorite of the king, exile poet, victim of the cruel Duke of Burgundy, and lover is vivid and spirited.

The story of Francois Villon, beggar poet of France, has been retold in countless ways by countless artists by story, stage and now by screen; a vagabond, with a heritage only of a poet's soul and a flaming love of country, who turns a king's anger to fawning love; who goes from rags to riches and back to rags again as suddenly; who loves and woos the ward of the king, Charlotte; who falls victim to the cruel tortures of his rivals and France's enemies, but who finally wins Charlotte and supposedly, happiness.

The picture is rather a succession of spectacular scenes, permeated with mob spirit and Barrymore's personality than preeminently Barrymore himself. As Villon his acting is excellent always, but Barrymorian only in flashes. He is especially good in the torture scenes and, of course, in the love scenes, which are surprisingly few. "The Beloved Rogue" is a fine picture from the cinema viewpoint—photography, setting and ensemble acting—but no better than his last, and not his greatest.

The story approaches the historical drama in that it is closely related to the political events of the time, 1450, but the person of Villon is always predominant.

Conrad Veidt as Louis XI of France, superstitious, crafty and half mad, does splendid character acting. Under his hands Louis stands out despicable, but nevertheless a creature to be pitied greatly. Marceline Day achieves a triumph in a slightly different role, as Charlotte, the beautiful ward. With very little opportunity to come forward, she is yet a distinct character; proud, regal and exquisite.

Song hits from the "Vagabond King" feature the orchestral overture, and add atmospheric prologue. Newsreel and a pictorial magazine with organ music surround the feature film.

GAYETY

Hey! Hey! for Mollie Williams! She's back at the Gayety for this holiday week with a better show than ever and all bets are off. She can't miss.

Although she leads the whole show around, Mollie doesn't appear until it's half over, but she still holds her own with her revivalist stunt of handshaking and being friendly with those boys in the aisle seats. She has with her Bee Paige and Louise Allen. Bee and her brother George work hard, doing innumerable song and dance numbers in an amiable way. Louise Allen was last seen here as a member of the chorus, but she's now raising the deuce as a lively little ingenue. She deserves credit for her pep-plus personality.

Billy Wild, a new member of the company, and Harry Seyon are the clowns. They are at their best in the Seven-Eleven scene, which is an exposition of higher mathematics. The Nadel Brothers are really clever boys, and last night's audience could not get enough.

Miss Williams always has a number devoted exclusively to introducing her chorus girls to the folks in front. The girls are scantily but attractively clad, and Mollie puts over some of her spontaneous wit, so that altogether there is more fun!

NEW ITALY-JUGOSLAVIA COMPLICATION FORESEEN

NETTUNO PACT IS CAUSE

(Special Cable Dispatch.)

Rome, April 17.—New complications between Italy and Jugoslavia are forseen in the tone of the interpellation announced for the chamber of deputies this week. It would open the question of the denunciation of all the existing treaties between the two nations.

For some time there has been a feeling in Italy that, in view of the nonratification of the Nettuno pact by Jugoslavia, this treaty should be denounced. Deputy Alessandro Dudan, a fascist, will seek more drastic action by the interpellation he has sent to the chamber.

Deputy Dudan's interpellation says: "The undersigned requests to interrogate his excellency, chief of the government, Premier Mussolini, in order to know, in view of the enormous continuation of systematic violations of international treaties perpetrated by the government of the kingdom of Serbs, Croats, and Slovenes, to the damage of Italy and the Italians, whether the government does not believe that the moment has come to examine the eventual denunciation on the part of Italy of all the aforesaid treaties, violated to its damage, and especially that of Rapallo, which is the basis for all successive treaties concluded between Italy and the kingdom of the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes."

By this interpellation Premier Mussolini will have an opportunity for a clear statement on the relations with Jugoslavia and a declaration of the Italian policy in the chamber.

The attempts at reconciliation between the Italian and Serb representatives have failed. The conversations had little result beyond confirming the wide differences which arose over the Tirana treaty which Italy made with Albania.

The resulting failure of the Serbs to ratify the Nettuno agreement, which long ago was ratified by Italy, kept the diplomatic relations between the two countries strained.

The resignation of the government of M. Ouzounovitch of Jugoslavia to make way for a cabinet which will take a firmer stand on internal and foreign affairs has not served to reassure Italy of the Serbian intentions.

Prussian Law Courts Partially Modernized

Berlin, April 17 (By A. P.)—The Prussian law courts have at last succumbed to a form of modernization.

More than 3,000 typewriters have been installed in the principal courts where most of the clerical work, with the exception of letter writing, has been done with pen and ink as of old. Adding and bookkeeping machines are being installed gradually. The ministry of justice has asked all justices and clerks to contribute suggestions for systematizing and speeding up legal machinery.

In the central Berlin district court building a moving belt arrangement for distribution of mail and interdepartmental mesages is being constructed. The innovations are not being carried out without protest from older jurists, who look with abhorrence on what they call "factories of justice."

FLIER LANDS ON POLO FIELD TO AVOID CRASH

Three Women Passengers Are Unaware of Peril Until Plane Touches the Earth.

Avoiding what seemed to be a certain crash when a broken piston crippled the engine of his commercial plane while flying at an altitude of 1,000 feet over Potomac park yesterday, Earl Fahy yesterday maneuvered to a successful landing on the Washington polo grounds.

Three passengers, all women, were unaware of their danger until the craft had been brought to earth. Witnesses declared Fahy was roundly rebuked by park policemen, who, before they had been brought to realize his predicament, upbraided him for landing in the restricted area.

It was only through expert manipulation that the plane was prevented from falling in the Tidal basin, witnesses said. The craft, locally built, with a German engine, is owned by a commercial flying firm operating near Arlington beach. The engine was repaired on the field and flown to its hangar before nightfall.

EPISCOPALIAN OFFICIALS WILL BE ELECTED TODAY

Wardens and Vestrymen, After Ballot, Will Select Other Workers.

MANAGE PARISH AFFAIRS

Episcopalian parishes in the diocese of Washington will hold their annual election of wardens and vestrymen today. Each congregation will name two wardens and eight vestrymen. These will elect a registrar, a treasurer and delegates to the diocesan convention.

The "registered voters" in the diocese of Washington are required to assemble in their respective parish churches on Monday after Easter and elect wardens and vestrymen for the management of parish affairs during the coming year.

When suffrage for women became a fundamental part of American government the "vestry acts" were amended to permit women to vote. Now women in nearly half of the parishes in the diocese vote. Reports of the year's activities of the societies of the churches will be read.

The custom of holding the annual election of vestrymen dates back to 1692 when a law was passed in Maryland directing that it be held on Easter Monday. Included in the diocese of Washington are the District of Columbia and Montgomery, Prince Georges, Charles and St. Marys counties of Maryland.

ARMY'S COOK BOOKS COVER WIDE GROUND

New Issue Gives Instruction From Frying Bacon to Making Soap.

Instruction ranging from frying bacon to washing windows, will be contained in the new army cook book prepared by the office of the quartermaster general, revising the former cook book for the new 50-cent ration that will go into effect July 1.

The book will contain a large variety of menus, explaining every conceivable method of cooking, use of utensils from skillet to rolling kitchen; telling in plain language how the soldier can cook his own meal; how to wash dishes properly; make soap from kitchen waste, and wash windows.

The new book offers strange comparison with that issued after the civil war which stated, in part, "The presence of worm holes in coffee should not occasion its rejection, since they generally indicate age, weigh nothing, and disappear when the coffee is ground." The new cook book advises that hunger is the best sauce. The quartermaster general's office has received requests for the new cook book from schools, colleges, churches, Boy Scouts, Camp Fire girls, lumber camps, jails and motor tourists.

Oil Workers' Safety Is Aim of U. S. Study

Safeguards for men working on oil derricks is the subject of an investigation by H. C. Miller, associate petroleum engineer of the bureau of mines, it was announced yesterday.

The danger of the work is due to falls from working platforms or ladders, and as regards men on the floor, to machinery hazards and to falling tools or materials. In a report just issued, Mrs. Miller pointed out that railings or life belts could be placed on the platforms, that ladders could be inclosed in wire cages, and that the falling of tools or materials could be prevented by tacking toe boards on the edges of working platforms.

Of course not, but if all these misfortunes were yours, and if you did need this help to raise you from depths of sorrow and misery, it would be yours for the asking, for the Salvation Army is in Waashington ready to help. The Salvation Army must carry on and we need your help to do so."

FREEMAN CONDUCTS EVENSONG SERVICE

Bethlehem Chapel Crowded; Easter Is Declared Home Festival.

Easter is primarily a home festival, declared Bishop James E. Freeman at the choral evensong in Bethlehem chapel, Washington cathedral, yesterday afternoon before a congregation that filled the chapel to the doors. The evensong was broadcast through WRC, and it was conservatively estimated that more than half a million persons in the unseen congregation heard it by radio.

"If Easter does not mean newness of life and a better understanding of the things of the spirit and a prophecy of immortality, it is only a meaningless holiday," continued the bishop. "Furthermore, if the lessons of Easter do not penetrate the home it has not reached its full realization to the people."

The first religious service in the Chapel of the Resurrection, the Norman crypt chapel recently completed in Washington cathedral in memory of the Rt. Rev. Alfred Harding, second Episcopal bishop of Washington, took place yesterday morning when morning prayer was read by the Rev. William L. DeVries, chancellor of Washington cathedral. There was no music or sermon, but an interested group of worshippers was present for this first service in the new chapel.

During the last fiscal year 234,956,753 pounds of oleomargarine were produced. This is an increase of 32,740,803 over the preceding fiscal year. At the beginning of the fiscal year, July 1, 1926, there were 61 oleomargarine factories in operation.

8,000 PAY HOMAGE TO RISEN SAVIOR AT SUNRISE RITES

Secretary of Navy Wilbur Presides at Federation Easter Service.

LIVING CROSS FEATURES WALTER REED MEETING

Col. John I. Axton, U. S. Army Chaplain, Scores Cynics in Sermon.

Sunrise yesterday found more than 8,000 persons gathered to do homage to Christ the risen Savior.

More than 3,000 attended the fourth annual Easter sunrise service held under the auspices of the Washington Federation of Churches at Temple Heights, the proposed site of a new Masonic temple, which had been loaned for the occasion by the grand lodge, F. A. A. M. Secretary of the Navy Wilbur presided.

A living cross of 300 members of the hospital personnel, massed on the terrace, added to the impressiveness of Easter services in the garden amphitheater of the Walter Reed general hospital.

Five thousand persons thronged the hospital grounds for the exercises, believed to be the first of the kind ever held on a government reservation. Gay Easter frocks, bearing sharp contrast to the uniforms of soldiers and nurses, mingled in the crowded amphitheater.

Easter music by "Pershing's Own" United States army band, and singing by a huge massed choir, led by Robert E. Pogue, was followed by the sermon, by Col. John T. Axton, chief of chaplains of the United States army.

The Saducees of biblical times, the first to cast doubt on the resurrection, are still with us, Col. Axton told his audience.

"They are the cynical type," he said. "They know the price of everything and the value of nothing. They attempt to find the soul of man in a laboratory, but they never will find it." Col. Axton paid tribute to the nurses and members of the medical corps, who, he said, are sacrificing their lives "for the men for whom the world war has not ended."

The living cross, designed by Chaplain A. C. Oliver, jr., occupied the slope between the main building and the bandstand. In length, 150 feet, the base was composed entirely of enlisted men of the medical detachment, and the head and arms were made up of members of the army nurse corps, all wearing white uniforms.

The center was a replica of the American Red Cross symbol, and formed by 60 Red Cross workers, led by Miss Margaret H. Lower, field director of Red Cross at the hospital. Students of the Army School of Nursing and members of the occupational and physiotheraphy staffs, in blue uniforms, outlined the formation.

Voices of the speakers were carried clearly to all parts of the amphitheater, by amplifiers furnished by the army signal corps, and broadcast to other thousands of radio listeners by WRC.

Prayer was said by Capt. Ernest R. Holz, divisional commander of the Salvation Army, scripture reading by the Rev. Thomas C. Clark, of the Takoma Park Presbyterian church, and benediction by Chaplain Oliver, who arranged the services. A soprano solo was given by Mrs. Walter K. Wilson, with band accompaniment.

The Temple Heights services began at 7 o'clock with a trumpet call to worship blown by a quartet from the United States Marine band. Group singing of sacred hymns followed. Percy S. Foster leading.

Secretary Wilbur said that the same sun which greeted the gathering yesterday morning had already greeted troubled China and the empty tomb at Jerusalem. He declared that "Our prayer must be that there might be unity in China, Nicaragua and Russia."

The invocation was delivered by the Rev. Frederick Brown Harris, pastor of the Foundry Methodist Episcopal church and president of the Washington Federation of Churches. His plea also was for unity between nations.

Because of the sudden illness of the Rev. Joseph R. Sizoo, pastor of the New York Avenue Presbyterian church, he was unable to deliver the Easter message. The Rt. Rev. William F. McDowell, Methodist bishop of Washington, spoke in his stead.

Signal corps amplifiers were placed in order that the service might be audible to the large throng of persons from practically every Protestant denomination who attended the service. The offering, which was collected by representatives of the Baptist Young People's Union, will be used to help defray the expenses of the hospital chaplain employed by the federation.

The committee in charge included Dr. Harris, who was chairman; the Rev. E. M. Bowman, the Rev. H. J. Councilor, the Rev. Godfrey Chobot, the Rev. John Weidley, the Rev. H. B. Wooding, Ensign Rose, John S. Bennett, Rosco Brane, Ishmael Burton, Page Etchison, Earl Taggart, W. Warwick and James H. Wurdeman. Much of the preparatory work was done by the Rev. W. L. Darby, executive secretary of the federation.

O'DEA WILL DIRECT SEARCH FOR KOPPER

Detective Proffers Services When Quest at Great Falls Fails.

Failure of another searching party to find any trace of Capt. Fred Kopper, jr., in the woods near Great Falls, Md., where his coat and overcoat were found a week ago, was followed yesterday by the announcement that Larry O'Dea, jr., head of a local detective agency, will give his services to solve the mysterious disappearance.

O'Dea is a member of the Vincent Costello post, American Legion, to which Kopper belonged. In view of the fact that Washington police are conducting no investigation, and Maryland authorities have only one policeman assigned to the case, friends of Kopper are hopeful that O'Dea's interest may lead to a solution.

Led by William F. Franklin, adjutant of the Costello post, a party of friends of Kopper and associates in the legion, yesterday visited the region near Great Falls where the missing mechanist's automobile was found locked with a flat tire, shortly after his disappearance April 5.
